UP to October 31st of the present year the footings of foreign trade show a balance in favor of the United States of $61,517,395. The total imports for the ten months were $604,280,968, and the exports for the same time were $665,798,358. It is a somewhat cheerful circumstance, indicating that the persistent urging of economical habits upon the people may not have been without effect, that the imports for October, the last of the ten months, were $11,700,403 less than the exports.

A MEETING was held on Saturday in New York at the office of the United States Life Insurance company of the representatives of the companies interested as defendants in the Dwight cases. After hearing the report of the committee in charge of the general defense and the counsel who conducted the defense of the Germania insurance company in the recent trial at Norwich, it was unanimously resolved in regard to each case now pending in policies on the life of Dwight to resist every effort to collect the same or any part thereof, until a final decision in the court of the last resort was obtained.

ONE of the principal competitors for the Speakership chair of the Assembly is Theodore Roosevelt of New York. Up to the time of the veto of the Five Cent Fare bill, relating to the New York elevated railroads, by Gov. Cleveland Mr. Roosevelt had made a record that was entirely unimpeachable, but when the bill, with the veto, came before the Assembly for reconsideration he displayed vacillating qualities which are in the highest degree undesirable in a legislator, stating that he voted for the bill in the first instance, not because he believed it a wise measure, but to satisfy popular clamor. Certainly, so weak-kneed a politician is the last man who should be selected to preside over the Assembly.

THE TIMES of a recent date contained a brief death notice of Mrs. Lany C., wife of Leonard Reynolds of Bridgeport, Mich. As Mrs. Reynolds was a lady of rare kindness of heart and as she had many friends in this vicinity a more extended account of her life will doubtless be interesting. She was born in the town of Parish, this county, Oct. 2, 1830, and was united in marriage to Leonard Reynolds January 5, 1855, and came to Fulton where she resided with her husband until 1877, when they removed to Bridgeport, Mich. to which place Mrs Reynold's parents had removed a few years previous. When the war broke out her brother, George W. Simons enlisted in the 24th Cavalry under Major Richards. He served scarcely a year when a portion of his skull was carried away by a rebel shell while with his comrades before Petersburg. He was left on the battle field for dead, but it was afterward discovered that he was alive and he was picked up and sent on to Washington, where Mrs. Reynolds went and ministered to him until death relieved his sufferings. The only child of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds died in his seventh year in his mother's arms as she was crossing the Detroit river, coming eastward. She had hardly buried her boy, when she was summoned to return to Michigan to care for her mother, who expired a few weeks later. Just before her death Mrs. Reynolds was making preparations to revisit the east and had intended to start the day her husband started east with her remains. Mrs. Reynolds' father, Isam Simons, who resides in Michigan still survives her, but he is in very feeble health.

Judge Vann decided that the defendants (the two men) were liable to a penalty of $20 for having venison in their possession.

Improvements are in progress at the Thousand Island Park. The building in which was located the post-office has been moved away and made into a farmhouse. The pavillion has also been moved, thus making a large park, free from buildings. A road has been made to South Bay, affording a delightful drive. It is proposed next summer to place the telegraph office in the hotel and the post-office in Wesley hall.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The following resolution was introduced and read by Trustee Francis.

Whereas, Charges of official misconduct and neglect of duty were in the month of May last duly preferred against and served upon Lyman Patterson as clerk of this village and a hearing upon such charges duly had by this board and

Whereas, Further acting in such matter by this board was restrained by an injunction order granted in an action brought by said Patterson, against the board seeking to perpetually restrain it from further action in the premises and

Whereas, such injunction order has been duly vacated and set aside and the complaint in such action duly dismissed, therefore

Resolved, That said charges be and hereby are sustained.

Resolved, That said Patterson be and hereby is removed from his said office of village clerk and that said office be and hereby is declared vacant.

Trustee Hart moved to adopt the resolution. It was carried.

Trustee Francis made a motion to ballot for clerk. The same was carried.

On motion by Hart, the ballot made formal.

Three (3) ballots were cast for Mr. Pentelow. Trustee Francis made a motion that the election be made unanimous. The motion was carried and the President declared Mr. Pentelow to be the unanimously elected clerk of the village.

The following bills were reported by the clerk pro tem and after being referred to the finance committee were reported each to the board favorably:

George McCann, lamp lighting	$43.83
Jas. Sweet, special police	6.00

On motion of Trustee Francis the above bills were audited and the clerk was to be instructed to draw an order on the treasurer for the several amounts.

Dr. Woodbury came before the board and called attention to the great danger to the walking and riding public from boys riding down sidewalks and roads upon sleds. He said "we can buy a good sled for ($1.00) one dollar, but a broken limb, a wrecked body or life lost to man or beast cannot be bought at any price."

Motion was made by Trustee Hart that the ordinance prohibiting the riding of sleds on sidewalks be strictly enforced. It was immediately carried.

The motion was made and carried that an oil street lamp be erected on Fourth street between Buffalo and Academy streets under the direction of the lamp committee.

On motion of Trustee Francis the meeting adjourned.

A Brilliant Success Promised.

The preparations for the grand reception by the Uncas club this evening are fully completed and if this can be taken as any indication the affair will be the most brilliant social event of the kind ever seen in Fulton. Eight hundred invitations have been issued, some of which have found their way into nearly every city and village in this section of the State. But few regrets have been received by the invitation committee and they predict a large attendance. The rooms of the club have been elaborately decorated with numerous flags, evergreens, and about 1,000 yards of bunting in the national colors, which taken together gives a splendid effect. The reception rooms are connected directly with the Lewis House dining room where the guests will be served. The musical program will be executed by Nicht's orchestra of Auburn, one of the most efficient and accomplished musical organizations in the State. This effort on the part of the Uncas club is indeed praiseworthy and bids fair to inaugurate a series of entertainments creditable to the organization and of which they may well be proud.

"Paris, the Magnificent."

This will be the title of the lecture to be delivered by Prof. H. H. Ragan at Stephens Opera House next Friday evening. Of this lecture the Albany Journal has the following to say: "The brief historical sketch of Paris and the French, which he used as an introduction, the discrimination which he showed in selecting important facts and salient points in his descriptions of the objects illustrated, the vividness of his expression, and the justness of his observations upon past events and present affairs, as they were from time to time suggested by the illustrations, all gave evidence of a power which would be generally acknowledged without the aid of the magnificent and well selected views with which the canvass was continuously filled.

On New Year's Eve.

Next Monday evening the melo-dramma "New York after Dark" will be presented at Stephens Opera House by a first-class theatre company. Of the play and the company a press notice reads as follows: "'New York After Dark' was produced for the first time in this city, at the Opera House, last evening, before a crowded house. The play is one of the most interesting we have ever seen. Mr. Gustavus Clarke, as Frederick Lester, being repeatedly called before the curtain at the end of each act. Miss Laura Linden, as Rillah Clayton, was very fine. The balance of the cast was good. The scenic effects were grand, especially the Brighton Beach Race Course and the Brooklyn Bridge at night, lighted by Electric Lights."

No family should be without ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS; their healing powers are wonderful and their efficacy far reaching and lasting. For years past I have seen and known them to cure and relieve the most obstinate and distressing cases of rheumatism, kidney complaint bronchitus, neuralgia, lumbago, inflamation of the lungs and throat, paralysis, asthma, spinal weakness, and coughs and colds. In my own case they have afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. They are a blessing in disguise; and no wife or mother should be without them if she values her peace and comfort and freedom from nervous exhaustion and other ailments. As a strengthening plaster, also for backaches and weaknesses, they have no equal. I have never yet found a plaster so efficacious and stimulating, or to give so much general satisfaction. AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.
J. T. HAYES."

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resource in art and letters commanded by St. Nichlas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributiors:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trobridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurace Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Dudley Warner, Joaquin Miller,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,
Julian Hawthorne, Celia Thaxter,
Mary Mapes Dodge, Lieut. Frederick Schwatka,
Rose Hawthrone Lathrop, E. S. Brooks,
George W. Cable, Chas. G. Leland,
Susan Fenimore Cooper, John G. Whittier,
"H. H.," W. O. Stoddard, C. P. Cranch,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine, It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is for boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

The price is $3 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers, and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express order, bank check, draft, or in registered letter.

Yesterday [illegible] the sleighing was [illegible] the atmosphere warm and pleasant and everyone who owned a horse, or who had the means or inclination to hire one was out upon the road. First street fairly rang with hilarity, and from midday to setting sun it was crowded with dashing turnouts. Among the fleetest and sleekest steeds we noticed those of Wallace Summerville, Fred Roberts, Fred Gage, James Morrow, H. Hulett, J. H. Case, Walter Boomer, Leonard & Wilson, driven by Will Tucker, F. M. Wilson, Daniel Shattuck, Jerome Moyer, Ed. Waugh, Tobey Burden, W. E. Taylor and numberless others. It is only an outing of this kind that evinces the fact that there is a large amount of excellent horse flesh owned in Fulton.

On Sunday morning at the M. E. church the Rev. W. F. Markham preached a Christmas sermon, taking for his text the angel chorus found in the 14th verse of the second chapter of Luke: "Glory to God in the highest." After speaking of the day, its history and meaning, Mr. Markham said he considered the text an announcement of the purpose of Christ in coming to earth. It was important, he said, first because in it God assumes the right and infers the necessity of interpreting his own acts, and second because it is a summary statement of Christ's work and a platform and creed of the universal church of Christ. The speaker then analyzed the text in a very interesting manner.

Sunday evening at the M. E. church the following program was carried out:

Organ Voluntary.
Hymn.........."Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"
Prayer..........Prof. Asa Boothby
Solo and Chorus.........."Hark! Hark! My Soul"

At the lecture room of the M. E. church last evening there was a distribution of Christmas presents to the Sunday school.

The Christmas eve service at the Baptist church consisted of a concert by the Sunday School with the following program:

Song by the school, "Jesus is Born;" Prayer by Rev. Mr. Dow; Address of welcome by a class of young Misses; singing a "Welcome to our Concert;" "Christmas," Miss Emma Breed; Randolph's; Faith," Jennie Laycock; "If I were a Boy," Melissa Ellis;" "If I were a Girl," Willie Dexter; singing by Mrs. Streeter's primary class; a sermon text "God loveth the cheerful Giver," Harold Shackleton, song; "Contribution Box," Oscar Babcock; "Young America," Miss Cora Sylvester; Childs Hymn, Minnie Wybron; Recitation, Harold Adkins; Singing by the the Choir; Christmas Eve, Lelia Roberts; "Surrender," Lilly Pratt; "ChristmasDay," Willie McCrea, Good Bye; A class of young Misses singing, "Glory to God;" Benediction.

Everybody acquitted themselves very creditably but Miss Cora Sylvester and Miss Lelia Roberts deserve special mention. The church was handsomely trimmed and after the concert a most excellent oyster supper was served in the lecture room which was free to the school. At the suggestion of their teachers the pupils brought gifts for poor children. These gifts were many and various and in many instances indicated real self denial. They will be distributed first among the less favored in our midst, next to the "Judson Home" in Hamilton, and the remainder for little cripples in New York. The bright happy faces of children really indicated that they fully realized that "It is more blessed to give that to receive."

On Monday evening the Sunday school of Zion church had a supper and Christmas tree, accompaned by a literary program at Whitaker's hall. The exercises were opened by prayer by the rector, followed by Christmas carols by the children and these were very nicely rendered. The children then partook of a bountiful supper, after which they were introduced to Santa Claus and a Christmas tree, Dr. W. A. Hall acting in the capacity of Santa Claus. The exercises were then closed by several well rendered recitations and declamations. Mrs. E. W. Ross presided at the organ.

There were Christmas services at Zion church yesterday.

On Monday evening the Universalist Sunday school had a Christmas entertainment at the church. A Christmas dialogue from St. Nicholas, introduced by a chorus and participated in by the children opened the entertainment. This was followed by another dialogue by four children, in character. Santa Claus then made his appearance and acted his part, when a heavily loaded Christmas tree was uncurtained and nearly every one present was made the happy recipient of a present.

At the church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday there were Christmas services at 8 and 10 o'clock and vespers at 7 in the evening.

The Methodist Literary Society.

The Young People's Literary Society of the M. E. church met last Wednesday evening at the residence of Dr. D. E. Lake. President F. E. Goodjon presided. After an instrumental solo entitled "Robin's Return" by Miss Ida Charlton, H. C. Markham conducted an exercise in German history. J. R. Cary then rendered some excellent music upon the violin and Miss Fannie Lake played a piano accompaniment. [illegible]

For some time past the Rev. W. S. Titus, formerly of Fulton, has been the pastor of the Deansville Methodist church. Unfortunately the church, which had been recently rebuilt was destroyed by fire last Friday morning. Mrs. W. S. Titus is at present visiting friends in town.

The cold wave which was common throughout the country Sunday struck Fulton and the various thermometers in this vicinity registered the mercury anywhere from 10 to 20 degrees below zero, and during the day Sunday the mercury did not rise to the zero mark, but on Monday morning it rose to about 20 above zero; before the day was over, it was so warm again that a disagreeable mist troubled pedestrians and others.

Closed for the Holidays.

For a number of weeks past one of THE TIMES force has been very mysterious in some of his actions and remarks and at times a chuckle of satisfaction as from one who can laugh at the world and is perfectly contented with himself was heard from that part of the office occupied by his case. On the 13th of September, 1829, about eleven years after the organization of the Fulton Presbyterian Church, Frederick Seymour became one of its members and on the 29th of August, 1830, he was elected an elder. He has always lived an exemplary life and for a great many years has been familiarly known as Deacon Seymour.

A pleasant anecdote, illustrating his firmness of character, was told this morning by one of his old associates. Shortly after he removed to his farm in 1838 he built a new barn and invited a number of young men to assist in raising the frame. In those days it was considered impossible to perform such a task without the aid of whiskey, but Deacon Seymour refused to furnish the article, but supplied in its place tea, coffee and other wholesome refreshments and the barn was raised. The funeral will occur at the residence of the deceased at 2 p. m. Friday, and the Rev. J. S. Riggs will officiate.

A Revolution in Clothing.

Democracy has found a powerful ally in the Ready Made Clothing business. The occupation or the standing of a man may no longer be determined by his dress, and in so far as clothes designate the individual, it is hardly possible to distinguish a Supreme Court Judge from a grocer's clerk. To-day, good, serviceable garments, of attractive appearance and closely resembling custom made goods, can be bought at Kent & Miller's, 18 and 20 South Salina street, at surprisingly low figures. Their window and their tables are filled with such garments, and the prices at which they are offered leaves no excuse for him who is slovenly attired. Years ago, when the Ready Made Clothing business was in its infancy, it followed the fashions afar off. To-day the styles are closely followed; and the mandates of fashion affect almost instantaneously the manufacture of Ready Made Clothing. Kent & Miller always have the latest styles and by improved methods of manufacture, are enabled to put the prices way down low. Call and examine—then buy.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

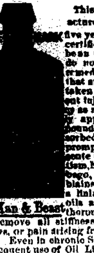
THE WORLD CHALLENGED



This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparallel success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT DUST-PROOF

Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm. Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these case cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding Case, [illegible]

[illegible] largely on carrots. A peck of carrots a day is not an excessive ration, though it may appear to be so to the ordinary farmer. The crop is one that ought to be more used for this purpose.

Speaking of ensilage, one of our successful farmers, who conducted a silo two years ago says: "I prefer to take the judgment of my cattle, who consume ensilage with avidity and thrive under its use, than to be governed by the vague theories of such professional men as have had no personal experience in the new system of feeding."—[American Cultivator.

There is no doubt that a well-kept flock of poultry is the most profitable of all farm stock. But a little flock well kept like a little farm well tilled, brings the most profit to the farmer. Just so many can be kept without crowding, and with ease and convenience, will be the most profitable. Poultry will not bear crowding, any more than sheep or pigs or people, and it is well known that when any of these are too closely kept, disease appears and works mischief. It is a necessity of the case, because cleanliness must be sacrificed to necessity.

The quantity of food needed by stock varies even among animals of the same age and breed, and it necessarily varies to a greater extent among animals of different breeds. Upon this subject a farmer in England says it is sufficiently correct to reckon a sheep consuming twenty-eight pounds of green food, an ox or cow 100 pounds, a calf forty pounds, and a yearling eighty pounds daily. At this rate an ox or a cow consumes as much as five sheep. The latter will require 10,220 pounds, or nearly five tons apiece, the former 54,750 pounds, or nearly twenty-five tons of green food, for its yearly maintainance.

Farmer Groesbeck, of Fishkill Plains, N. Y., thinking to play a joke on a village doctor, sent for him in great haste. As the doctor's carriage wheeled into the farmer's yard he asked hurriedly to be shown to the patient. The joker led him to the poultry house, and pointed out a goose with a broken leg. The doctor without a word immediately set the leg, left minute directions for the cure of the fowl, and saying he would call again in the morning, stepped into his carriage and drove home. He kept up his attendance until the goose could walk as well as before the accident. In the mean time the farmer was having lots of fun telling his neighbors the joke. But he ceased to smile when the doctor sent in a good round bill. At first the farmer refused to pay, but when legal proceedings were talked of he compromised the case to the doctor's satisfaction.

The heaviest mail that ever left the United States went out recently in the Alaska. There were 208,541 ordinary letters and 14,702 registered letters without 260 sacks of newspapers. At the New York Postoffice 250 tons of papers are sent away every week.

☞ GILMORE'S AROMATIC WINE is more highly recommended by physicians and medical societies than any other remedy in the world. It is warranted to cure all diseases peculiar to women. Sold by M. M. Williams Fulton. 2y1

Suppression of the Menses may be relieved by a dose of Ayre's Pills, which produce the desired effect through sympathetic action.

An Annapolis student kicked a ball fifty yards at one swing of his intellectual foot, and the fact has been telegraphed all over the country. Few people appreciate the educational advantages of our government centres of scholarship.—[Detroit Free Press.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it. but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation. and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

CHAPTER II.

"Malden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1880. Gentlemen—I suffered with attacks of sick headache."

No doctor could give me relief or cure until I used Hop Bitters.

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised; and then you will want to know how to get well, which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

Frances E. Willard has carried the temperance war into Arkansas at the risk of life and limb.

The Unitarian Church of Clinton, Mass., has voted unanimously to use water instead of wine at the communion table.

To pulverize the rum power, says Nasby in the Toledo Blade, is the duty of the sober citizen, no matter what may be his party affiliation.

He is a mean man who will contribute to the purchase of a sealskin sacque for the saloon keeper's wife, and allow his wife to wear thin calico and a faded shawl.—[New Era.

We are going to have Prohibition in three-fourths of the counties in this State inside of two years. The prayers and tears and sacrifices of the temperance people will not be in vain.—[Mississippi Argus.

The Prohibitionists have a majority in one or the other party in every State in the Union; and yet the dramsellers control all the nominating conventions. Why is this thus in a free country?—[National American.

Lager beer, which 30 years ago was practically unknown in this country, is now made by 2,500 immense establishments, with over 150,000,000 capital invested. The value of this production each year is over $200,000,000.

Reports to the Internal Revenue Bureau show increased activity in Illinois distilling circles. In that State 17 distilleries were in operation November 1, making 103,000 gallons per day, against 90,000 gallons daily on the same date last year. Twice as much whisky is made in Illinois as in any other State.

A Lafayette lady—a model wife and mother—broke her husband of the saloon habit by walking up to the bar beside him and calling for the beer. She broke the awful silence, as they walked home, with the remark; "I love you, my husband, and if you are going to hell I'm going right along with you."

At a meeting of temperance women the other night an old lady got up to tell her experience: "I know something of the evils of rum," said she. "I have buried three husbands and all were hard drinkers. But I am glad to say," she continued, "that I didn't fight with them. As soon as I found they would drink, I got them to insure their lives heavily and let them go ahead. Ah, me! each one died from the effects of liquor, but thanks to a kind providence, each death netted me a clear $10,000."

The last preceding product was murder. Now it is the debauching of young girls. Thieves' rendezvous, ruffians' and burglars' dens, nests of ballot-box stuffers, hives of counterfeiters, haunts of bogus bail-goers and forgers of wills we have had samples of all along among the "saloons;" and now breeders of the vilest debauchery and murder. These are the products of the State's free-trade license system for Philadelphia "for revenue only," leaving Philadelphia to suffer the deplorable results and to foot the bill in her almshouses, refuges, corrections and prisons. There is a picture for whom it may concern.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

An Obstinate Wife.

The other day a policeman who was patrolling High street east heard a whistle blown, followed by shouts for "police!" and after a run of half a block he came to a halt in front of a house where a second-story window was raised and a man had half his length over the sill.

"What's the row?" demanded the officer.

"Some purglers vhas in mein house!" was the answer.

"How do you know?"

"I hears 'em make a noise more ash six times!"

"Where were they?"

"Down in der kitchen?"

"Have you been down to look around?"

"No! no! I tells my vhife to go, but she won't stir! She shumps into ped und covers oop her headt, und I vas left to do all the fighting und be kilt! Dot's der koind of a vhife she vhas!"

The officer investigated to find that cats were responsible for the noises, and as he retired the householder was calling to his wife: "Mary, if you go down I shtand on der stairs mit a light und a shot-gun und shoot eafery burglar like tunder."—[Detroit Free Press.

THE INTREPID PASSENGER.

I took passage from Liverpool on a fine-looking English liner, and we hoped to make the run to New York inside of 20 days.

The cabin passengers were soon pleasantly acquainted with each other, and the time passed agreeably for some eight days in the playing of games, cards, chatting, etc. I was particularly pleased with the appearance of one couple, a lady of some 19 years and a gentleman of perhaps 22. From casual observation, I could easily make out a story connected with them. The lady and her father, a wealthy New York retired merchant, were on their way home after a few months travel upon the continent, and the young gentleman, also an American, who had doubtless made their acquaintance somewhere abroad, was returning in their company exercised with the tenderest sentiments toward the daughter. Further than this, it was also easily discernable that the father from some cause looked coldly upon the advances that were respectfully but tenderly made by the young lady's companion.

On the passenger list, displayed in the cabin, the young man's name stood plain, Mr. Hammond, and without making further inquiry of the other than simply to settle the name and identity of each, we had with travelers' privilege, fallen into an agreeable intimacy with each other, as well as the rest of the cabin passengers.

It was a very fresh morning in our tenth day out of port when Capt. Goss had, for some object gone quite forward, and with one arm over the starboard cathead, was making an examination of the ship's "forefoot," when suddenly the cry of "man overboard" started us all, and looking forward to where the captain had just stood, we observed that he had disappeared.

Instead of either of the ship's officers immediately taking matters in hand, there at once arose a Babel of voices, each one suggesting some expedient, and two or three foremost hands jumped into a quarter boat, began to prepare for lowering it into the sea. I hastily looked towerd the first mate; a glance was sufficient. He seemed to be stupid, either half drunk or feigning it. Perhaps he did not know what to do; if he was as stupid as he appeared; this was the case. I saw young Hammond seize hold of the after booby hatch, and together we threw it into the sea, while he exclaimed:

"Never fear Captain Goss. We will pick you up!"

"Let go the gripes of that boat" shouted young Hammond in a tone of command such as we had not heard on board. "No boat can live in this sea."

The men instinctively obeyed, and seemed at once inspired by the confidential tones in which they were addressed.

"Cast adrift a dozen of those life buoys!" continued he who had thus unhesitatingly taken command of the ship.

"Ay, ay, sir," said a score of ready voices.

"Now lay aloft, one of you, and keep the run of that hatch;" for we could already discover the captain making himself fast to it by means of his neck cloth and handkerchief. "Mr. Reed," continued young Hammond, addressing the the first mate, who seemed to partially arouse, "all hands on deck, sir; call up the watch."

"What would you do, sir?" asked the mate, respectfully, for, spite the apparent impropriety, he was awed into obedience by the prompt manliness of young Hammond.

"We must work the ship to windward and come down upon him. Brace her sharp up, and bring her close by wind. With a will, sir, with a will—there's no time to lose."

Whether the obvious propriety of these orders struck the mate I cannot say, but they were instantly obeyed. Young Hammond himself seizing a deck trumpet, issued the necessary directions in detail, and with that firm and calm decision that inspired every soul with entire confidence. The ship was at the time of the accident under double-reefed topsails, reefed courses, jib and spanker, running at the rate of 12 knots, the wind abeam, consequently, before these orders were accomplished, the hatch on which the captain was floating was nearly two miles dead to windward of the ship, which had drifted to leeward.

As we have seen, the sea was too rough to lower a boat, and the only chance, therefore, of saving the captain was to work to windward of him; and now it was that our intrepid young passenger exhibited a skill and ability in handling the ship that amazed the oldest tar on board. He accomplished it in beautiful style, while the mates and men obeyed him without a moment's hesitation. Before the ship was hove about, the captain was on the weather quarter three miles distant. We could not fetch him on the next tack by nearly a hundred yards, but as we passed, we could see him distinctly amid the breaking spray, and young Hammond jumping into the main shrouds, hailed through his trumpet:

"Hold on, captain; we'll be back in a few minutes."

Whether he could hear these encouraging words or not, he understood the [illegible]

"Two of you rig a running bowline, and stand by to throw it round the captain. Steady, now, steady all of ye."

He was implicitly obeyed. In ten minutes after Captain Goss was safely in his cabin, and in a few hours was again at his station on deck.

The moment that Captain Goss was carried below, young Hammond, walking toward the first mate handed him a deck trumpet, to signify, in nautical etiquette, that he once more yielded him the command; but as he did so, there arose from the entire company three deafening cheers for his gallantry and the skill he had displayed, that made the ship fairly tremble in every timber.

"By the heavens above us," said the mate, as he took the insignia of his office "you are a man, every inch of you, and there's Jack Reed's hand upon it, be ye who you may!"

Young Hammond made no reply, but gently sunk into his former position, and returned to the cabin.

I know not what passed between him and Captain Goss, but I overheard the end; "Not 10 men in the British service could have saved me, though from the first moment I heard your voice on deck, I knew there was a hand on board that understood what was necessary."

As much as the manliness of young Hammond's conduct delighted me, its result upon Mr. Edwards was to me quite as gratifying. There was no longer any coldness on the part of the father of the beautiful girl toward her new friend. Both father and daughter had witnessed the entire scene which we have so hastily described, and young Hammond was admitted to their confidence and intimacy, as he also became the idol of the whole ship's company.

The confidence thus remarkably inspired ultimately resulted in an engagement which terminated in a most happy and appropriate marriage.

Arrived at New York, after we were dressed for landing, and as young Hammond was handing Miss Edwards over the ship's side, I observed that he wore the undress uniform of an officer of the United States navy.

William Montgomery, whose home is near Platte City, Mo., married Miss Alice Cooper, an orphan, with fifty men armed with shot guns as witnesses. The courtship had, to all outward appearances, gone on swimmingly for some months, but the other day the young man tried to recede, and was arrested. He gave bonds, and was released, and on Saturday evening fifty of the neighbors, including Justice Day and Miss Cooper's uncle armed themselves with shotguns and got a marriage license. Then they rode to Montgomery's father's farm and surrounded the house. They gave the youth the option of either occupying a lot in a neighboring graveyard or marrying Miss Cooper. He chose to live, and Justice Day immediatly tied the knot.

Shakespeare's gloves, were presented by the Mayor and Corporation of Stratford, to Garrick in 1769, are now in the possession of Miss Florence Beason, of London. They are made of substantial leather, without any ornament, and have seen much wear. The scroll stitching on the knuckles has been in red and gold, two colors maintained through all the accessories. The ribbon marking the cuffs is yellow silk, and that on the lower edge of crimson, with a yellow fringe. The cuff is of double leather, with a pattern pinked in the upper skin.

The clergymen of Indianapolis have formally recommended that funeral services shall be performed on secular days in private dwellings, and not in the house of worship; that the friends shall take leave of the dead in private; that the remains shall not be exhibited to the public, and that, with a view to reducing the burden of expense, the services shall be on one day and the burial privately performed on the next.

A French rural priest's salary averages $240, of which half comes from the State and half from the commune. He pays no rent, and gets some presents of food usually. The commune grant is revocable by the commune authorities, and is liable to be cut off if he comes to loggerheads with them. Appeal in this case is to the Prefect, who can, if he pleases, decree out of the funds of the department an equivalent.

John Huntington, of Cleveland, can not be blamed if he favors monopolies. Some years ago he put $36,000 into the Standard Oil Company, and has drawn large dividents ever since. The other day in New York he was offered $1,000,000 for his interest, and sold it. He came home with a deed for a $100,000 house in one pocket, and drafts for $900,000 more in the other.—[Cleveland Herald.

Let a man put a ten-dollar bill in his pocket and start out to make purchases, and about the only thing he will have to show for it on his return home will be a very strong breath. But give the mother of a very large family the same amount to use as she sees fit and when she comes back there will be a heavily loaded two horse truck following in her wake.—[Philadelphia Call.

FASHION NOTES.

All little girls carry muffs to match the sacques.

Very large bows of ribbon are placed on all caps.

Gauntlet gloves are fashionable for small boys.

Little girls of six wear tiny silver chatelaine watches.

Natural beaver is the most popular fur for trimming children's garments.

A dainty sacque for a little girl is of deep blue velvet, bordered with swan's down.

Rich mixed plaid are the most popular of materials for children's costumes.

Black velvet jackets, trimmed with gray Astrakan fur, are pretty for girls of six and eight.

Dark blue and salmon pink is one of the prettiest combinations for children's cloaks and hats.

Black stockings are the only correct kind for children to wear, except when the dress is plaid, then plaid woolen stockings may be worn.

Broad ribbons are sewn on all children's hats and tie under the chin, passing over the ears. On large hats the effect is very picturesque.

Plain white linen collars and pretty lace pins are very popular among school girls, and a great deal of attention is paid to the selection of the pin. Silver owls, pugs, daggers, rakes, race horses, pigs, tennis bats, and scrolls are among the designs.

Hats made of the dress material and ornamented by a bird or a bordering of fur, are also fashionable. These hats in the round capote shape, are manufactured by the girls themselves, and each girl takes special pride in making hers. A girl who cannot make her own everyday hat is voted useless in school girl society.

Noted Murder Trials.

Two noted murder trials have been concluded during the past few days. Sam Williams, known as the "Auburn negro boy," was tried at Lyons, Wayne county, for the murder of James Hall, at Sodus Point. The principal witness for the prosecution was a negro who claimed to have been an accomplice of Williams in the murder, and who pretended to turn state's evidence. Williams was once convicted of murder in the first degree on the evidence of this witness and was sentenced to be hanged. Some of the Auburn newspapers believed Williams to be innocent of the crime of the crime with which he was charged and pleaded his cause unceasingly. Mainly through the efforts of these papers the citizens of Auburn raised funds for carrying the case of Williams up. He was granted a new trial, and on Saturday, Dec. 22, was acquitted.

The other trial was that of Charles Higham at Watertown, who was indicted for murder in the first degree in the the first degree in killing F. W. Eames, the inventor of the Eames vacuum brake. On Wednesday the jury in the case acquited him.

Both these cases attracted much attention throughout the State and much comment was made on them.

The next case to attract attention will be that of Rowell, who shot Lynch at Batavia. He has been indicted for murder in one of the lesser degrees. It is expected that his trial will begin January 21st in Batavia.

Reasons for Rebellion.

"Mamma, is Aunt Mary an English lady?"

"Yes, dear; she was born and brought up in England; but when she married your uncle she came here because this is her home."

"Do they have the same kind of dinners in England that she has?"

"Your aunt frequently cooks in the English way."

"Did this country ever belong to England?"

"Yes, child; it was once an English province, but the Americans rebelled and became independent."

"I am so glad."

"And why, dear?"

"Cause turkey and mince pie are so much better than goose and pudding."—[Philadelphia Call.

In a plumber's shop at Montreal the other day, an employe writing at a desk discovered flames coming from a pigeon hole. An old block-tin candle mould, rather greasy and wrapped in soft paper, had been placed there, and the wrapping paper had taken fire from spontaneous combustion. Had the occurrence taken place at night, there would hvae been another of those mysterious fires which cannot be explained.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resource in art and letters commanded by St. Nichlas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trobridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurace Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,

The hop crop of the German empire in 1883 was a middling one, estimated at 42,000,000 pounds. The consumption amounts to 88,990,000 pounds. The production of beer aggregated 1,041,278,000 gallons; consumption per head 184.40 quarts. The production of beer in other countries in Europe was 3,000,500,000 gallons, and the consumption per head 56.25 quarts. In America the production was 376,775,000 gallons and the consumption per head 20.15 quarts.

Sullivan, president of the Irish Land League, in a lecture at Cincinnati, O., Sunday night on "How England has Educated Ireland," replied to the allegation that England invaded Ireland in the interests of civilization and that ignorance is voluntary. He said that before the invasion Ireland had numerous great schools, was a leading nation in learning, and English power destroyed them. The reformation furnished a pretext for making the revival of letters impossible in Ireland and the alphabet became a felon and a rebel.

The secretary of the American Iron and Steel association reports that the production of pig iron in the United States, in 1883, was 4,023,000 tons, which is equal to that of 1882. The consumption was 3,948,000 tons. There were 325,000 tons imported and consumed. There were 383,000 tons of domestic pig iron unsold at the beginning of the year. The production of iron and steel rails aggregated 1,300,000 tons, against 1,500,-000 in 1882. There were 100,000 tons imported, aginst 200,000 in 1882.

Gov. Cleveland sent his annual message to the Legislature last week. If the document was important relatively to its length it would be the most valuable document of its kind ever presented to the Legislature of the State. Covering 55 printed pages of the originary official form, it touches upon every question which could come within the purview of the Governor, and it treats all of them "for all they are worth." Only in one or two points does it call for comment. The Governor approves of the Railroad Commission and its work and of the new Bureau of Labor Statistics. He shows himself a champion of Civil Service Reform. He is in favor of the repeal of the Act creating a Captain of the Port and 11 Harbor Masters for New York, in the appointment of which he was so signally defeated on the last day of the last session of the Legislature. As for the rest of the message life is too short.

The statement of the sixth auditor of the treasury shows that the postage stamps sold during the quarter ended September 30, 1883, aggregated $10,701,-000, a decrease in the sales as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1882 of $19,000. The gross receipts for the same quarter were $10,497,000 against $10,508,000 in 1882. Deducting the expenditures, the balance due the United States by Postmasters was $[illegible], an amount smaller by $[illegible] than the balance for the same quarter in 1882. These returns are for the same quarter preceding the reduction of postage and the reduced revenue compared with the preceding year is accounted for by the fact that postmasters were endeavoring to close out their stocks of three cent stamps in anticipation of the demand [illegible]

[illegible], Jan. [illegible].—In October, [illegible], the Army of the Potomac [illegible] Maryland, where the battles of South Mountain and Antietam had been fought, and took up the line of march toward the "Sacred Soil of Virginia." The corps to which the Twenty-fourth belonged crossed the river at a place called Berlin, six miles below Harper's Ferry. The river at this place is, as near as I can recollect, about forty rods wide and quite turbulent, deep on the Maryland side but gradually shoals as it approaches the Virginia shore. There was a pontoon bridge laid for the passage of troops—all old soldiers know how they are constructed. When troops are crossing a pontoon bridge the order "Route Step" is given, which means to walk regardless of keeping step, as keeping step would endanger the bridge by swaying it. While the Twenty-fourth was crossing the river at Berlin each man was talking with his immediate comrade, all having a good time with arms "at will" when one of the boys espied the Quartermaster riding his horse just ahead of the Company. The boy began to whistle "John Brown" and as a matter of course every man naturally got step and the bridge began to sympathize with the tune, but somehow the horse didn't seem to "catch on" and after staggering a few steps, over went horse and rider, between two boats into the river which at this place was about four feet deep. The Quartermaster picked himself up, led the horse to a rock, mounted, and rode out. He got wet; he also got mad, and came riding up to Captain Taylor and asked "Who whistled 'John Brown?'" The Captain turned to his men, with a twinkle in his eye, and sternly asked "Who whistled 'John Brown?'" The conundrum passed through the company, but no answer returned, and it remains a mystery until this day who it was that whistled "John Brown."

Our march for the next few days led us along parallel to a range of mountains or high hills through which were several passes which afforded the enemy an opportunity to swoop down on our flanks if we left them unguarded. I remember on one occasion after marching all day we had just gone into camp for the night and had got our coffee made and our tents up and were doting on a good rest when orders came for our regiment to "pick up and light out." They "toted" us off about five miles toward this range of hills to watch for the "Johnnies." Our company was placed at a farm house, part being placed on picket in a corn field where the corn was cut and shocked, three men on a post. Each trio would gather a lot of cornstalks together and form a ranch to protect themselves from the October night air, the posts being about twenty rods apart. The remainder of us were kept at the barn as a reserve. We remained here two days. During the next day one of the boys came into the barn and reported a very peculiar odor which emanated from the loft of a large corn house, with cribs on each side. We all repaired to the place and sure enough the air was filled with the odor. We tried to gain an entrance peaceably, but finally had to force our way in, and upon climbing to the loft we discovered that the odor came from about forty bushels of apples.

This may not seem of much account to those who read this with a pan of apples and a pitcher of cider seething at their elbows, but it was a choice morsel to Companies E, H, and K, I can assure you. We reported to the Captain and four of us asked leave to visit the pickets, to see if all was quiet in the cornfields. We carried the counter sign in a bushel basket and successfully passed each post.

The G. A. R. is now in a flourishing condition in this department. George N. Morgan Post to which I belong has between three and four hundred members, there being 46 mustered in one night recently. The National encampment will meet here next summer and we are expecting over 50,000 old veterans in line. May we not see some from Oswego county? S. E. CHANDLER.

The New York, West Shore & Buffalo and the N. Y., Ontario & Western Railroad companies have opened their large depot recently, says the New York Sun, and begun the running of through trains between New York and Chicago. Since the opening of the road last June, passengers have been taken and landed at the depot of the Pennsylvania railroad in Jersey City, connection being made by special arrangement at New Durham. By the new arrangement passengers may either go to the Pennsylvania depot as before, or get off at Weehawken and land in the city at Forty-second street, and may leave the city by the same route. The new depot at Weehawken is an eighth of a mile long. It contains five ferry slips and commodious freight and passenger rooms, restaurant and company offices.

In Indianapolis, the annual meeting of the Indiana Democratic Editorial State Association was held Thursday, with 120 editors present. The interest centered on an address of Joseph E. McDonald. His subject was: "Our Commerce and its Relations to the State of Indiana." It was expected that the subject would embrace the tariff, but the speaker did not refer to the question. A resolution was offered declaring McDonald the convention's choice for the Presidency but it was withdrawn at the request of the ex-Senator's friends on the [illegible] [illegible] of them, and as they started to go up Oneida street they dashed into a snow-bank, overturning the sleigh from which they broke loose and took their course up Oneida street, carrying between them in rather a curious fashion another horse belonging to Patrick Cullen, and which they had run into. Cullen's horse fell down when part way up the hill and the team ran on and left her. Lambert, who was thrown violently to the ground when the sleigh was overturned was picked up for dead, but was revived after being taken to Dr. D. Pardee's office, where it was found that his injuries consisted of a sprained hand and a cut under the eye. Cullen's delivery sleigh was badly broken and his horse was seriously cut about the legs. The factory trucks were also considerably damaged.

The Greatest of the States.

Gov. Cleveland's message presents no very salient features, conveys no recommendations of commanding importance, and reports no events of extraordinary interest. Nevertheless, read attentively this official record of a prosperous and uneventful year in the State. Nowhere will you get a more suggestive view of the large activity of life, the vast range and diversity of interests, the energy, industry, and business success which give to New York its position and influence in the Union.

The figures tell the story. For education the State Government received last year $13,000,000 and spent nearly $12.000,000. In the 115 active savings banks in the State a million depositors have accounts aggregating $420,831,000. There is the sum of $114,000,000 on deposit in the 84 State banks of discount. The increase during the year in the deposits in the 200 banks coming under the supervision of the State authorities has been more than $50,000,000. Two hundred insurance companies, fire, marine, life and casualty, have assets amounting to $646,000,000, of which $134,500,000 belongs to the respective surplus accounts. In its National Guard the State has an efficient army of nearly 12,000 men. There are 2,829 convicts in our prisons, less than for several years past, while the total population of all the State penal, reformatory, and protective institutions is about 15,000. There are 11,000 insane. The various charitable institutions own property amounting to $[illegible] and they expended $[illegible] last year in the relief of the unfortunate. During [illegible]

[illegible] I felt a certain falling off in my natural condition of intellectual acuteness, activity and vigor. I presume this is the same way in which an innumerable number of other people feel, who, like myself are physically below par, but like thousands of others I paid no attention to these annoying troubles, attributing them to overwork, resorting to a glass of beer or a milk punch, which would for the time invigorate and relieve my weariness.

After awhile the stimulants commenced to disagree with my stomach, my weariness increased, and I was compelled to resort to other means to find relief. If a physician is suffering he invariably calls another physician to prescribe for him, as he cannot see himself as he sees others; so I called a physician and he advised me to try some chemical food, or a bottle of hypophosphates. I took two or three of the chemical food with no apparent benefit. My lassitude and indisposition seemed to increase, my food distressed me. I suffered from neuralgic pains in different parts of my body, my muscles became sore, my bowels were constipated, and my prospects for recovery were not very flattering. I stated my case to another physician, and he advised me to take five or ten drops of Magende's solution of morphine, two times a day, for the weakness and distress in my stomach, and a blue pill every other night to relieve the constipation. The morphine produced such a deathly nausea that I could not take it, and the blue pill failed to relieved my constipation.

In this condition I passed nearly a year, wholly unfit for business, while the effort to think was irksome and painful. My blood became impoverished, and I suffered from incapacity with an appalling sense of misery and general apprehension of coming evil. I passed sleepless nights and was troubled with irregular action of the heart, and a constantly feverish condition and the most excruciating tortures in my stomach, living for days on rice water and gruel, and, indeed, the digestive functions seemed to be entirely destroyed.

It was natural that while in this condition I should become hypochondriacal and fearful suggestions of self-destruction occasionally presented themselves. I experienced insatiable desire for sleep, but on retiring would lie awake for a long time tormented with troubled reflections, and when at last I did fall into an uneasy slumber of short duration, it was disturbed by horrid dreams. In this condition I determined to take a trip to Europe, but in spite of all the attentions of physicians and change the scene and climate, I did not improve and so returned home with no earthly hope of ever again being able to leave the house.

Among the numerous friends that called on me was one who had been afflicted somewhat similarly to myself, but who had been restored to perfect health. Upon his earnest recommendation I began the same treatment he had employed but with little hope of being benefited. At first I experienced little, if any, relief, except that it did not distress my stomach as other remedies or even food had done. I continued its use, however, and after the third bottle could see a marked change for the better, and now after the fifteenth bottle I am happy to state that I am again able to attend to my professional duties. I sleep well, nothing distresses me that I eat, I go from day to day without a feeling of weariness or pain, indeed I am a well man, and wholly through the influence of H. H. Warner & Co.'s Tippecanoe. I consider this remedy as taking the highest possible rank in the treatment of all diseases marked by debility, loss of appetite, and all other symptoms of stomach and digestive disorders. It is overwhelmingly superior to the tonics, bitters, and dyspepsia cures of the day, and is certain to be so acknowledged by the public universally. Thousands of people to-day are going to premature graves with these serious diseases, that I have above described, and to all such I would say: "Do not let your good judgment be governed by your prejudices, but give the above named remedy a fair and patient trial, and I believe you will not only be rewarded by a perfect restoration to health, but you will also be convinced that the medical profession does not possess all the knowledge there is embraced in medical science."

Mrs. Dr. J. P. Dunlap, wife of a prominent Syracuse physician, started from her home in a carriage about 2 p. m. Monday to go to a club meeting in another part of the city. When she reached the West Shore crossing the horse became frightened at an approaching train and refused to proceed. Before she could get out the engine struck the carriage, smashing it to splinters and throwing Mrs. Dunlap some distance ahead on the track. When picked up she was dead.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle has donned a new dress.

The Pulaski Democrat is one of the best village newspapers in Northern New York. Last week it gave evidence of the appreciation in which it is held in its parish by coming out in an entire new dress.

The Manhattan Magazine for February will be an interesting number. There will be an interesting poem entitled "The Queen's Revenge;" also Autumn Camp Fires on Cayuga Lake." Frank Beard will have an article on "Carricature," illustrated by many humorous drawings. Beside these there will be many other things of interest.

On the first of January, that excellent and influential paper the Syracuse Journal reduced its price from $3 to $6 per year and from three to two cents per copy. The Journal was cheap at its old price, but the new departure in this day of cheap newspapers will certainly meet with popular approval. At the same time J. G. K. Truair, who has with marked ability presided over the business destinies of the Journal for the past quarter of a century, retired from from the paper, selling his interest to Carroll E. Smith and General Dwight H. Bruce who become equal partners in the enterprise.

The Second Volume of the American Reformer opened with the issue of January 5. Among its interesting contents is an editorial review of and reply to Dr. Dio Lewis' argument against Legal Prohibition; an article from Hon. Neal Dow, on the "Republican Defeat in Ohio"; one from Rev. C. H. Mead, on "Moses, or Political Reform Among the Colored People"; one from Rev. O. P. Gifford, on "The Ideal Saloon"; one from J. D. Rice, on "Municipal Reform"; one from Mrs. M. S. Robinson, on "The Republic and the Indians." Also, a reprint of Mrs. Mary L. Dickinson's poem "Aunt Sally and Hopping Joe," with an original poem and other matter from the same popular writer. Sample copies mailed on application. Subscription price $1.00 a year.

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. Hall's Hair Renewer has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of Hall's Hair Renewer wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

A Famous Document That was Signed by Prominent Men.

FROM FRYING PAN INTO THE FIRE

A Man who Dragged Himself from the Mud to Jump into the Mire.

The "men about town" are agitated. At least a certain portion of them are, for the air is black with the smoke of approaching libel suits, and in fact the preliminary skirmish of the coming battle has already begun and one offender has been summoned to appear in Supreme Court, to answer for slander.

The moving spirit who is creating all this stir is one, Richard P. Miller, alias Richard P. Krause, who has resided in this town about five years and has gained a reputation here among those with whom he has had dealings which was not entirely enviable.

When Harry Comstock went to Akron, Ohio, last summer, he secured a position for Miller, knowing him to be an excellent mechanic and Miller went on and remained there after Comstock left, and it is said, made some allegations against that gentleman which were not very complimentary. This incensed Comstock, who furnished the Fulton Patriot with an article, in which he characterized Miller as a liar, thief, forger and scoundrel. Nearly fifty copies of the Patriot containing this article were struck off and sent to Akron, where Miller was still employed.

The article in question was supplemented with a certificate setting forth that Miller was a liar. This certificate was signed by John H. Case, H. S. Gardner, E. W. Ross & Co., Taylor Bros. & Co., Miller & Whitaker, George Johnston, Pat Cullen, Amos Youmans, Giles S. Piper, M. F. Crahan, D. A. Waterman, William Dexter, W. G. Gage & Co., and W. J. Watson.

Suit was brought against John H. Case in the Supreme Court and the counsel for Miller intimates that other summons will soon be served.

The interested parties, however, scoff at the idea of being sued and express themselves as perfectly willing to have a summons served upon them and aver that they can prove even more than they have certified too.

And some of them hint that Miller will come to grief before he is through with the matter.

But there is fun ahead, whatever the result may be.

The greatest joke of the whole affair, however, is the rather deplorable entanglement in which one of the above named parties has got himself. It was currently reported on the streets Monday that the gentleman alluded to had settled with Miller. This he admits, but declines to make any statement as to the basis of the settlement, but congratulated himself that he was well out of the matter. Miller in the meantime, it is stated, reported about town that he had received from two to three hundred dollars from this gentleman, who became so enraged at being continually pestered in regard to it by his numerous friends that he made a technical assault upon Miller in a public place, using at the same time some rather vigorous language. Miller retaliated by suing his assailant for assault, in the Supreme Court. The defendant in the action has already retained counsel and this time, apparently, proposes to fight out the issue to the bitter end.

Change of Time.

A new time table went into effect on the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad on Monday. There will be no night run over the road to and from New York during the winter. The night express which went south at 4:16 p. m. now passes through Fulton at 8:36 and runs only as far as Norwich, arriving there at 7:20 p. m. The freight and accommodation which was formerly due at Fulton at 9:07 a. m. now arrives at 8:30. The train which has hitherto been the night train from New York now runs from Norwich only, but the time of the train has not been changed. The accommodation which arrived here at 6 p. m., now gets here half an hour earlier. No change has been made in the time of the through New York day trains.

Persons having occasion to travel express themselves as highly gratified at the manner in which the winter omnibuses have been fitted up. Mr. A. Gregg of Pennellville furnishes the following report of business done in the board of trade at Fulton during the year 1883. "Thirty factories were represented with 42,199 boxes of cheese at an average weight of 60 lbs. per box, 25,319.40 which were sold at an average price of 10½ cents per lb., making $265,853.70. There was 28 sale days. The salesman may be very thankful to President Johnson for the interest he took in getting the latest dispatches from the New York and Utica markets. The highest price cheese sold for was 12 cts., and the lowest 8 cents. The market days, with the exception of three, were lively and satisfactory to all concerned. The make of cheese has been larger from the same number of towns the past year than for years previous."

Prof. Ragan's Illustrated Lecture —A Satisfactory Entertainment.

The third lecture of the course was delivered by Prof. H. H. Ragan on Friday evening, entitled "Paris, the Magnificent." The lecturer gave a most interesting description of the great French metropolis made more real by many fine illustrations upon canvas, illuminated by the oxy-hydrogen light. These were so wonderfully true to life that any person present who had never had the privilege of visiting this magnificent city might indeed feel that he had really beheld some of its most noted places of interest. The charming river Seine with its many bridges, the new Opera House, considered one of the finest in the world, Champs Elysees, the tomb of Napoleon, the old and new Hotel de Ville, the palace of the Tuileries, The Louvre, with many of its fine galleries of statuary, the University and the beautiful fountain of neptune were a few of the illustrations which would impress the beholder with the grandeur of this wonderful city of art and beauty. Prof. Ragan stated that probably no people on the globe had turned so many political somersaults as the French and yet they now stand where we stood one hundred years ago. To many persons this lecture was the most interesting of the course thus far.

Hannah Aggie Kelly's Fate.

The Oswego papers of last week give the brutal details of an outrage committed by three young roughs of that city upon the person of Hannah Agnes Kelly of Oswego Falls, whom they induced to go to an alleged club room where they said young ladies and gentlemen congregated, but which proved to be a private den of iniquity, the meeting place of young men and boys. One of the three male participants in the affair was Thomas Galloway, who formerly resided at Oswego Falls. Dennis Carey, the least guilty of the trio, was taken before a magistrate and has been held to await the action of the Grand Jury. Galloway and Daniel Carey, the other two offenders, have not as yet been apprehended.

Miss Kelly has been a servant girl until recently in various families in this village. Last summer she was employed in the family of H. H. Harris and later in the family of Myron Smith. For three weeks previous to New Year's day she worked for Mrs. James Sheridan. On New Year's day she went to Mr. Sheridan's and got her effects. The same evening she bought a ticket for Oswego of agent Johnson at the New York, Ontario & Western depot. She did not have but 35 cents and when the agent informed her that the fare was 36 cents she said that was all the money she had and rather than annoy her Mr. Johnson let her have the ticket for 35 cents. Miss Kelly has a father, two sisters and four brothers, their home being near the tannery in Oswego Falls. Her mother is an inmate of the insane asylum at Utica.

Mr. Langdon's Failure.

The liabilities of Amos E. Langdon, whose failure was noted in last week's TIMES, are nearly $7,000. The amount due the first preferred creditors, $4,145.65, as follows: John W. Pratt, Fulton, $850; Crouse and Walrath, Syracuse, 187.28; G. Thalheimer, Syracuse, 140.71; Broadhead & Hamlin, Syracuse, 126.18; Ostrander & Loomis, Syracuse, 236.80; D. H. Houghtaling, Syracuse, 222.09; Hubbel & Larrabie, Syracuse, 14.80; Jackson Perry, Syracuse, 30; W. P. Broome & Co., New York, 384.45; Eno & Co., Phoenix, 80.41; P. C. Garlock, Granby, 28.42; John W. Colton, Springfield, Mass., 49.26; Perine & Wright, Fulton, 30.26; W. G. Gage & Co., Fulton, 139.96; Gardner & Seymour, Fulton, 78.97; Hart Bros., Fulton, 14.14; Amos Keller, Oswego Falls, 200; James H. Langdon, 1,900; Citizens' Bank, Fulton, 600; George L. Smith, 54.16. The amount due unpreferred creditors is $2,786.01. With the exception of the amounts due the Citizens National Bank and James H. Langdon, the liabilities of the preferred creditors represent debts made by the firm of Robinson & Langdon and which Mr. Langdon became responsible for when Mr. Robinson went out of the firm. The unpreferred creditors are substantially the same as the preferred creditors in the above list, but for smaller amounts, representing debts incurred by Mr. Langdon since the dissolution of the firm of Robinson & Langdon.

C. Ellis, who has been a loomfixer in the Oswego Falls factories for the past two years, has severed his connection with the factories and will go to Massachusetts next week. Mr. Ellis is a native of England and has been in this country about ten years. He has made many friends during his stay here.

Some weeks since we mentioned the rare paintings brought by Dr. Beard from Paris which were the work of Mrs. J. F. Yale so well known here. The vote for the Palladium ran down as low as three on several ballots and twice the vote for the Patriot ran up as high as eleven. The Oswego Times was awarded the contract of printing 2,600 copies of the Supervisor's book at $1.33 per page.

Rev. Father Wilds'
EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

We do not claim to cure consumption when [illegible]

[illegible] The [illegible] Journal says that with all the dangers from disease hog-raising, though it requires more labor, is really the most profitable business which farmers can engage in where corn is a sure crop.

Some one who has tried it says that it is a good plan to burn sulphur in the cellars where milk is kept, especially if they are damp. The sulphurous acid evolved destroys the mildew, which if not checked, will injure the flavor of cream and butter. In many damp cellars the mildew wastes the cream, so that the butter product is seriously decreased, besides the injury to quality.

Fattening animals should be fed regularly. The grumbling hog and expectant steer or cow, are not doing their best when by carlessness, neglect or from any other cause their uneasy condition is induced by hope deferred for a sight of the swill-pail or provender box. It is not well to forget this. Starving to-day and feeding to satiety to-morrow was the Irishman's plan for a streak of fat and a streak of lean, but the theory is finer than the practice.

In dipping sheep for scab it is absolutely necessary to break up scabby crusts with something rough; a corn cob is the best thing, so as to cause the dip to reach the burrows of the scab mites in the dermis or under skin, which is below the epidermis, and in which the insect lives and deposits its eggs. Moreover, it is useless to use a dip of a lower temperature than a 102 degrees, and that is quite painful during a two or three minutes' exposure. But it must be done to destroy the scab insects and their eggs.

A correspondent says: Rye and Indian bread baked in a brick oven and brought warm the next morning on the table with ham and eggs, potatoes and coffee, flavored with maple syrup, make a breakfast in the spring fit for a king. At noon a piece of boiled pork, the same brown bread with potatoes and a dish of greens. For desert the roll or bag pudding, rich and yellow as gold, served with sweetened cream. At tea biscuit and butter, or brown bread and milk, including cold meat and vegetables, such was the farmers' fare as I recall it; and what stout and healthy workmen it produced. Nothing was better calculated to give strength and vitality than such fare for the labors then demanded in the hay and harvest fields.

Something for all the preachers.

Rev. H. H. Fairall, D. D., editor of the Iowa Methodist, says editorially, in the November (1883) number of his paper: "We have tested the merits of Ely's Cream Balm, and believe that, by a thorough course of treatment, it will cure almost every case of catarrh. Ministers, as a class, are afflicted with head and throat troubles, and catarrh seems more prevalent than ever. We cannot recommend Ely's Cream Balm too highly." Not a liquid nor a snuff. Applied to nostrils with the finger. 34w2

Gents—Having been afflicted with the Rheumatism over eight months in my left hip, at times so I could not get a night's rest, or even lie on that side on account of such pains running through my hip and down my limb, the Rheumatic Syrup was recommended. THE WORLD CHALLENGED

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

[illegible] He found the [illegible] and shortly afterward he reached his friend's office to claim his property.—(Sidney (Australia) Eye.

PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or some neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

[illegible] CASTLE.

[Translated from the German.]

[illegible], when the victorious German [illegible] their homeward march, [illegible] town of D——, on the Rhine, [illegible] overcrowded with soldiers that [illegible] stable or even a shed was to be had [illegible] the houses of the constantly [illegible] regiments.

[illegible] in the afternoon of the 18th of [illegible] of the year mentioned, a company of dragoons reached the town. The weather was very fine, and not being able to procure better accommodations for his men, the commander, Herr von S. gave orders to pitch the tents and [illegible] the horses in an open space near the town for the night. The rays of the fast sinking sun shone brightly in the windows of the castle that stood on a neighboring hill, causing fitful gleams of light to dart between the trees that almost hid the ancient building. The commander did not see the castle until after the camp had been pitched; then, turning to a bystanding burgher as he caught sight of the glinting rays, he asked: "To whom belongs that old castle, and who occupies it?"

"Oh, it has stood empty far longer than I can remember," was the answer.

"What!" angrily cried the dragoon. "Can you people deny us a single night's lodging, and that monstrous building without a tenant?"

"Oh, no, Sir Commander, but no one dares now to go into it. Many foolish and adventurous travelers have in the past gone into the castle to remain over night, but not one of them ever returned from it. What became of them is a mystery no one can solve, for though numerous searches have been made not a single trace of the missing ones has ever been found—not even the usual dead body. It is a mystery that never will be solved."

"Foolishness! foolishness!" was the commanders's gruff answer, as he tapped his foot angrily on the ground. "We'll see if I cannot drive out the spirit that haunts the place: or, at least, I'll see whether or not it is a spirit."

"For heaven's sake!" cried the superstitious burgher, "do not joke, Sir Commander, the object is a serious one, as we have cause to know. We must keep you from rash purposes. The many awful examples of fool-hardiness we have had makes this our duty. We never allow any one to enter the castle to satisfy a foolish curiosity, since it is as much as his life is worth to do so.

At this answer the officer turned away fearing to say more lest the citizens would attempt to oppose the plan he had decided upon. Disregarding the burgher entirely he proceeded to call his company together, and when he had mustered them he addressed them as follows:

"Dear Friends: You all see yonder friendly castle. I have been refused a night's lodging within its doubtless beautiful rooms for the foolish reason that wicked spirits inhabit them, who, when the opportunity is offered, move travelers out of this world into the next. In spite of their [illegible] proclivities, I intend making my home with them to-night. If I do not appear at yonder open window at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning, will you, who have followed me through many a bloody battle, swear not to leave one stone of that castle upon another until you find, alive or dead, the body of your leader? If I cannot, I hope you will clear up the mystery that surrounds that old place.

When he had finished, the cheer that followed, and the "We swear!" from a hundred throats, assured him that his trust was not misplaced.

"Good, I thank you, brave comrades," concluded Herr von S. Then, bidding his soldiers good night, he went to the hotel for his supper; and, being very tired, as soon as the meal was over he called his servant, told him to bring such articles as would be required, and went to the castle. He found the room with the open window overlooking the town, chose it for his bed-room, and, dismissing his servant, made arrangements for retiring for the night. He laid his weapons, two loaded pistols and an unsheathed sword, on a table within easy reach, on which he also placed two lighted candles, that gave the room an air of comfort. Then, closing the door and trimming the candles, he lay down to enjoy the long-wished for sleep.

It may have been midnight or thereabouts when a clanking, clattering noise awoke him from his light slumber. [illegible] up and looking toward the now [illegible], he beheld a tall, powerful [illegible] whose dress proclaimed him a [illegible]," with masked face and load[illegible] with rattling chains, stalk into [illegible]. Hastily cocking the pistol [illegible], the fearless commander [illegible]

[illegible] or I shoot."

[illegible] stopped instantly. "Hah!" [illegible] the soldier, "you understand; [illegible] out of this as quick as you [illegible]

[illegible] toward the door, [illegible]

"You are bold, main herr, to invade this castle. Are you aware that your life is in our hands, and that no one who is so foolhardy as to enter this place ever returns from it?"

Herr von S. quietly heard the man out, then cooly answered:

"I fear nothing! I have looked into the eyes of death too often to be frightened by anything this world can show." With a smile he continued: "I may as well tell you, too, that I have ordered my men, in the event of my not appearing at a certain window of this castle to-morrow morning, to search for me. So, if you do your usual very hospitable act to-night, you may expect to hear the walls of this old building rattling down about your ears in the morning."

These fearless words had the intended effect. The masked captain hesitated for a moment, completely dumbfounded at the words so unusual for a prisoner in his hands. Then he withdrew and called his men together at some distance from where Herr von S. stood. There was quiet conversation between them, and opinions were frequently expressed, but in an undertone. In ten minutes the leader returned again to the prisoner and said:

"After what I deem sufficient deliberation we have arrived at this conclusion: If you will take solemn oath never to divulge the slightest part of what you have witnessed here to-night, no matter what may happen you, then you will be allowed to return to your room and finish your sleep, and will not be molested further. I need not mention the alternative."

The officer considered how little credit there would be in his disappearing from his friends, and what small satisfaction there would be for him, even if his men did find his dead body the next day; so he willingly took the oath of secrecy, and was led back through the many intricate passage-ways to his room.

It is not hard to imagine the thoughts of the townspeople. Every one who learned that the commander had gone to the castle for the night was sure the last of him had been seen. Still he was a brave, bold man, and this fact made the slightest doubt in their minds—just enough to cause them to glance anxiously toward the castle window in the morning. Crowds were gathered in places where the window could be seen, none expecting to behold what all were waiting for, or, if any did expect to see the man again, they wisely saved themselves from ridicule by keeping the thought quiet. At last seven o'clock struck, and almost at the same time arose a deafening "Hurrah! hurrah!" Everybody cheered, and the drums and trumpets of the soldiers helped to swell the awful noise. Every eye was turned on that castle window; and there was the Commander, his body stretched far out, and his arms performing graceful military salutes.

Herr von S. was, indeed, a hero. Not only had he valiently aided in conquering the French, but now, all alone, he had overcome in one night a castle full evil spirits that had had full sway for years!

Time sped on, and years passed since this adventure, and Herr Von S. had retired from service and was living quietly in his private house. Early one morning the hall bell rang loudly. A servant opened the door and found a strange man outside, holding by the bridle a spirited, coal black horse—a most beautiful and noble looking animal. As the servant appeared the stranger said:

"I have been instructed to deliver to Commander von S. this steed and this small box," at the same time putting the rein into the servant's hand, and giving him a little ebony casket.

"Who shall I tell my master sent them?" asked the servant.

"He will know that when he sees this letter," replied the stranger, taking a sealed note from his pocket and giving it to the servant. Then the man turned away and soon disappeared. The servant gave the horse into the groom's charge, then delivered the box and the letter to his master.

The ex-Commander was greatly surprised, and his long suffering curiosity was satisfied when he read the following:

Sir Commander:—We have left the country forever. As a token of our gratitude for the noble manner in which you have kept your oath and guarded our secret, pray accept the contents of this casket. I also present to you my faithful horse. A nobler animal never breathed. I give him to you, not being able to take him with me, feeling sure a better master could not be found him. We all say, fare thee well.

With gratitude, yours

CHIEF OF THE COUNTERFEITERS.

At last it was clear to Herr Von S. in whose hands he had been on that memorable night. Now he knew who had made the old castle a place of terror for so long. Spirits indeed! How plain all was now. The better to execute their business, the ghost fright had been used. And how successful! And to secure themselves against betrayal, the counterfeiters had caused all persons caught in the castle at night to disappear. The prisoners were doubtless made to take the oath, as Herr Von S. had been, [illegible] pain of death, [illegible]

Rather Forgotful.

The Printer-Boy's Dream.

On a rickety old stool by a rickety door
Of the editor's room on the upper floor,

In the inner sanctum of pen and shears,
Sat a printer's boy of uncertain years,

Waiting for copy; and all was still
Save the rasping scratch of a rapid quill.

The Carrier's Address was being born
In the old-time verse for the New Year's morn;
And the editor wrote like a man inspired,
But the hour was late and the boy was tired.
Congressional Records, in binding grim,
And Patent Reports looked down on him—
Plump volumes revealing the nation's health,
And the books the editor's only wealth,
Large files of papers, dusty and old,
In unswept corners quietly told
That his paper was somehow a thing of dates,
While the plumbs were reserved for happier fates

Etiquette in Chicago.

"Is this an editor?"

The horse reporter looked up from a little idyl on the life and career of Rysdyke's Hambletonian into which he had been putting the best efforts of his surging brain, and beheld a rather short young man who was peeping in an affable and somewhat irresolute manner over a very high collar, and on whose upper lip was a delicate tracery which looked as if it might have been effected with some No. 2 molasses, and at which the young man was making furtive grasps with the thumb and forefinger of his right hand, evidently under the impression that he had a moustache and desired to pull it.

"I want to see an editor," said the young man in a voice that sounded like the best effort of a cricket, about a social topic—I want to see the social topics editor."

"What sort of a social topic is it that's worrying you?" inquired the biographer of St. Julien. "There are a good many social topics. Has somebody in your social circle been holding three aces with criminal frequency, or has the greeneyed monster invaded the once happy flat because your wife goes to the matinee?"

"Oh, it's nothing like that," said the young man. "I promised papa that I would never play poker, and I'm not married—that is, not yet."

"Well, the gentle sex is having one lucky winter anyhow," said the horse reporter, surveying the visitor carefully. "If you will quit grabbing for that suppositious moustache, and tell me what ails you, perhaps I can settle the point. What's that social topic you are distressed about?"

"Well, you see," said the young man, when I got into the laces—"

"Into the what?"

"Into the laces—the lace department in our store, you know—all the other fellows there were real jealous of me because I had been out more in society than they had. I belong to three clubs on the West Side, and we have hops, and assemblies, and things every week; so I'm really quite in the swim, you know. Well, they were awfully jealous, you know—just as I said—and they talked real mean. I told Cholly about it—Cholly's my chum, you know—and he said to never mind them, but keep going right into society; and he lent me his mauve pants for an awful swell reception one night last week. Cholly and I are awful chums, and I am going to give him a book mark on his birthday. That will be nice, won't it?"

"Yes," said the horse reporter, "a book mark is a valuable aid to any young man who is hustling around to get a living. With a strong arm, pure heart, and nice book mark, fortune is within the reach of all. But what's the question that is worrying you?"

"Oh, yes, the social topic. Well, the other day a lot of us were talking about young ladies, and I said that very few young men knew what real etiquette was, and I gave an awfully severe look at one fellow who had been terribly jealous of me ever since a young lady who came into the store the other day smiled right over in the direction of where I was standing and never even looked at him. And then some one said it was proper to call on a young lady and ask her to accompany you to the theatre that evening. I said that would be wrong—the correct way was to write the lady a note asking the pleasure of her company. We had a terrible discussion about it, and finally agreed to leave it to the social topic editor of the Tribune. Now, supposing you were a young lady, and I were to call at your papa's house and ask you to go to the theatre with me that evening, what would you do?"

"Suppose I were a young lady?" said the horse reporter.

"Yes."

"And you were to call and ask me to go to the theatre with you?"

"Yes."

"What would I do?"

"Yes."

"Well, if somebody had mislaid the gun I suppose I should have to content myself with a club."—[Chicago Tribune.

Don't love too many at once.

Don't do your sparking in public.

Travel on trains that go through the most tunnels.

Give your brother taffy and get him to [illegible] before the chap calls.

If you have any objection to tobacco say so in time, or hold your tongue forever after.

Try to find out by some means whether your intended can earn a decent living for two.

Don't fall in love with a man on account of a stunning ulster. Of what use will that be next July.

Be reasonable; don't expect a man working for eight dollars a week to furnish you with reserved seats at the opera every other night.

Deal carefully with bashful lovers; lead them gradually to the given point—(of proposal of course.)

If possible try to suit your sisters, cousins, aunts, grandfathers, neighbors, friends and acquaintances when you select your victim.

A Duel Between Two Brothers.

Two brothers, sons of a Russian family, were students at the best college in St. Petersburg, and on graduation became officers in the same crack regiment. The young men differed greatly in their mode of life, and seldom joined in the revelries of jeunesse doree. Three years after leaving the regiment the the eldest brother married a young and beautiful girl of excellent family. Gradually, however, the newly wedded pair became estranged in affection, so much so that after three years of married life they occupied separate rooms. At first, the young wife, surrounded by a host of admirers, was not aware of the passion she had kindled in her brother-in-law's heart, but soon she, in turn, experienced toward her adorer a love so passionate that she was unable to struggle against it. The young husband's jealousy was rightfully aroused. Terrible scenes ensued followed by mutual recrimination, a challenge and finally a duel between the brothers. The elder—the outraged husband—was wounded in the side; the younger, who had wronged his brother, remained untouched by the latter's bullet. The last act of this life's drama, began so tragically, was that of a farce. After the duel, the wounded man was brought into the city and then taken abroad, where the combined care of his wife and brother snatched him from the jaws of death. Out of gratitude for this he allowed his wife to secure a divorce from him taking all the blame on his shoulders. This she did and married her lover.—[London Echo.

She Made a Blunder.

"I declare!" exclaimed a young lady in great consternation, "I have made an awful blunder."

"What is it?" asked her companion.

"Why, you know I had a beautiful Christmas card to mail to Algernon and a volume of 'Mother Goosse' to send to Kate's little boy."

"Well, what of it?"

"What of it? I misdirected them, that's all."—[Philadelphia Call.

The Fox sisters are outdone by a Polk county, (Ga.) girl of fourteen. She can place her hand upon a chair and it will walk all about the room. She places her hand upon a table and it moves as she wishes. She places her hand upon a chair in which a man sat, and the chair—man and all—move at her touch. A man sat in the chair and another man lying under it tied to hold the chair to the floor, but under the mysterious touch the chair pulled to pieces. The Rome Bulletin vouches for these statements.

Nellie Lincoln Rossiter, of Philadelphia, athough only sixteen years of age, is at the head of the silk culturists of this country and is rapidly becoming wealthy. Her book on silk culture is standard authority for all who are ingaged in the new and profitable business of raising cocoons, and her products have taken the premiums at all the expositions. Nellie's husband will be a lucky man. He will not have to buy silk dresses for her, as she can raise them herself.

The wife of John Howie, of Somerville, York county, N. H, gave birth to four boys. One died in two hours. The others are doing nicely.

A Leap-Year Episode.

Can I forget the winter night
In eighteen eighty-four,
When Nellie, charming little sprightie,
Came tapping at the door?
"Good evening, Miss," I blushing said,
For in my heart I knew—
And, knowing, hung my pretty head—
That Nellie came to woo.

She clasped my big red hand, and fell
Adown upon her knees,
And cried "You know I love you well
So be my husband, please!"

Prince Bismarck no longer counts among the heavy weights. Dr. Schwenninger, but recently made a professor at the special request of the chancellor, has, by his regime, reduced the latter's weight from the average weight of 217 pounds, which he maintained for nearly twelve years, to 195 pounds. The prince's health, however, is said to be all the better for it, and his slender appearance rather becoming than otherwise.

The expense of the war on which France entered when she undertook in 1870, to march on Berlin, is now declared to be $1,727,000,000. As the war commenced in August and ended in January, the cost to France was nearly ten millions a day, besides the loss of Alsace and Lorraine.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. PENDLETON MUST GO.

The Democratic caucus of the Ohio Legislature last week nominated Henry B. Payne of Cleveland to succeed George H. Pendleton in the United States Senate. As the Democrats are in the majority in the Ohio Legislature, Mr. Payne's election is assured. It was to be hoped that Senator Pendleton would be his own successor as he was the most earnest, able, and consistent statesman in active public life who advocated civil service reform, being the author of the famous Civil Service Reform bill.

Democrats, however, have never evinced any great liking for civil service reform and the retirement, at their hands, of Senator Pendleton to private life is renewed evidence of their belief in the doctrine that "to the victors belong the spoils."

A car-load of sick prisoners have been transferred from Sing Sing to Dannemora prison.

The heavy losses of cotton and corn speculators have cast a gloom over the markets at Liverpool.

The one hundred and twenty-fifth call of two per cent. bonds has been issued by the government.

A London firm has brought suit against ex-Senator Dorsey for over $68,000 and interest for eleven years.

The annual message of the Mayor of New York city says the debt of the city is $92,546,000, a decrease of $3,595,000 during the year.

The Sun believes "all the probabilities in favor of a Democratic President in 1884 have been knocked in the head by our friends, the free traders."

The compositors of the Troy Times, who recently struck and found themselves out of a job, will establish a daily paper, pledged to the support of the workingmen.

There have been fifteen burglaries in the neighborhood of Chappaqua, Westchester county, within six months. The people threaten to organize a vigilance committee.

The damage by the storm at Coney Island one night last week is placed at $150,000. It is estimated that damage to an equal amount has been done at other places along the coast.

At a meeting of the Regents of the University in Albany it was decided to continue the teachers' classes from time to time in the high schools and academies of the State. The Legislature will be asked for the necessary appropriations.

In Boston, the central office of the New England Telephone company was damaged by fire Saturday morning. All the wires were burned off, destroying the connection with 3,000 offices. The city will be without telephone service for several days.

The salaries of employes in the New York postoffice, exclusive of letter carriers, is shown by the pay-roll to be $800,800 per annum, a sum greater by $100,000 than the aggregate annual salaries of employees in the postoffice department and in the Washington postoffice.

Five Syrians from Jerusalem arrived at Castle Garden the other day, and are waiting for a chance to go to work. They started from Jerusalem for Spain, but were carried to England, and from there they decided to come to America. They can only speak their native language, Arabic.

The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, has submitted to Secretary Folger the operation of the tariff act of March. It appears that the reduction in the average advalorem rate on dutiable goods for the quarter ending with September, compared with the corresponding quarter of 1882, was only 2 12 per cent.

The New York Truth sums it up in this way: "The election of Carlisle means free trade; the nomination of Payne, with his election assured, means that Civil Service Reform is repugnant to the Democratic party. Both of these [illegible] will be covered with velvet at the Convention, but that is what they are made of."

St. Louis is bidding high for the Democratic National Convention. Twenty-five thousand dollars will be pledged by the citizens for whiskey and other necessary expenses.

The Albany Times makes the following uncomplimentary allusion to a distinguished Bostonian: "Joseph Cook lectures on the question, 'Does Death End All.' If it ends Cook it will be enough."

The White Star steamer Celtic, which left New York for Liverpool, December 15, but which broke her shaft when 24 hours out, and was compelled to proceed under sail, arrived in Queenstown Monday in tow of her sister ship, the Brittanic. Subsequently the two left for Liverpool.

One thousand feet of land in Forest Lawn cemetery has been donated by Buffalo city cemetery company to the Historical society, and the bones of Red Jacket and other noted Indian chiefs who are buried near the city, will be interred there. The Historical society will now endeavor to secure a monument.

For several days a terrible contest has been waged between the Chippewas and a band of straggling Menominees near Hunt, Wis. Between thirty and forty have been killed. Many settlers have deserted their homes, fearing the Indians will attrack them. The Indians began stealing from each other, and this brought on the conflict.

The committee on forests of the New York chamber of commerce, has adopted a resolution requesting the associated press to notify all parties throughout the State, holding the memorial of the chamber, to return the same at the earliest moment to enable the committee to arrange for the presentation of the same to the Legislature.

The Patrons of the Hudson River Telephone company can talk with 68 cities and towns, including Honesdale, Pa., Newburg, Troy, Albany, Saratoga, Rutland, Vt., Gloversville, Canajoharie, Fort Plain, North Adams, Mass., Schenectady, Kingston, and many other important points. The line will be extended to New York in the spring.

Governor General Landsdowne has accepted the invitation of Montreal to be the guest of the city during the week of the winter carnival. There have 10,000 blocks of ice been laid in the construction of the ice palace. There have 75 horses been entered for the trotting races on the ice. The entries for the curling competition are very numerous. Fourteen gold medals are to be competed for.

Occasionally a sensible paragraph relating to the war may be gleaned from the Southern press. One of the latest of this kind is from a New Orleans paper and reads as follows: "To-day we stand ready to protect the United States flag against its enemies, and are proud to live under it. Born under the stars and stripes, the Southern men have never ceased to admire and love it, respect it, cherish it."

The Baltimore Manufacturers Record publishes the figures showing the rapid progress recently made by the South in its cotton manufacturing industry. When the census of 1880 was taken there was in the Southern States 180 mills, with 713,989 spindles and 15,222 looms. There are now in operation there 314 mills, with 1,276,422 spindles and 24,873 looms. In 1880 the value of the products was twenty-one million dollars; in 1883 it reached between thirty-five and forty millions. This is a good showing for the South.

On Saturday Chancellor Runyon, of New Jersey, appointed Ashbel Green receiver of the North River Construction Company. The application was made by Mr. Lary of the firm of Ward, Macklin & Co., of Newburgh, contractors and creditors of the company. The action is understood to be in no way hostile to the company, but it is to preserve and hold intact its assets, among which is a majority of the whole capital stock of the N. Y. W. S. & B. railroad. The cost of completing the road exceeded the estimates and left the construction company with a debt of $3,000,000, which is now due. The West Shore Co. is out of funds—that is generally conceded—and are casting about to get some. It is said that $2,000,000 have been advanced to it temporarily, and if it has, it is on the company's notes, making an unfunded debt. It is a peculiar feature of railroad law that courts have always held such floating debts to have priority over bonds. When the floating debt has been paid, the [illegible]

[illegible] He claims a great deal of credit for the successful introduction of wood pulp into this country. Lapham is an old fashioned lawyer, short and heavy, with a high, broad face and a very short neck. He has long white hair falling away from his bald forehead over his coat collar, and has white muttonchop whiskers. He used to be an excellent lawyer. He had a large practice in Western New York until he went to Congress some years ago."

C. D. Gilmore, a Washington lawyer, has commenced suit in the federal courts against Carl Schurz, for the recovery of $80,000 damages for disbarring him from practice wrongfully and maliciously. The offence which resulted in the disbarment was the alleged payment of money to a clerk in the general land office in a case in which the clerk had, in hand, in which Mr. Gilmore was interested. Secretary Schurz referred the matter to a board of commissioners, who took a great mass of testimony in the matter. In their report to the Secretary they found that while money was paid by Gilmore to F. A. Ball, the clerk, not only in 1878, but previously, it was under circumstances which forbade the committee to believe any loan was intended.

On Monday the body of Charles Delmonico, the popular New York restauranteur, was found in the Orange Mountain woods. It is supposed that deceased was frozen to death last Saturday night, there being no indications of violence to his person. He left his home on Saturday, the 5th of January. He had been ill for some months, and was in a feeble condition at the time of his disappearance. Rewards were offered for information of his whereabouts, detectives employed, and a most diligent search made, all without result till Monday. He was 44 years of age. In 1827 two brothers, John and Peter Delmonico, accompanied by their nephew Francois, left the hamlet of Faido, in the Canton du Tessin, Switzerland, and came to New York. They were skilled in the culinary art, which they turned to advantage by opening an unpretending restaurant. Nothing like a first class restaurant then existed in New York, and their venture was successful from the outset. In 1832 their nephew, Lorenzo Delmonico, who died recently, was admitted as a member of the firm. In 1842 Peter died, and six years later John retired from the business, leaving Lorenzo and Francois sole proprietors. They subsequently established their famous up-town restaurant, the finest establishment of the kind in America. Shortly after this restaurant was opened, Charles and Siro Delmonico were admitted as partners, Charles having full charge of the up-town business. The death of Siro in 1881 left Charles inheritor and sole proprietor of the business.

In closing his report on the canals Comptroller Davenport says that since the year 1866 the two trunk railways of this State have gradually reduced their freight charges seventy-five per cent., and the price per ton per mile sixty per cent. These results have been accomplished through constant improvement of track and motors, and the adoption of every appliance which would reduce operating expenses. The cost of transportation in 1883, as compared with 1872, notwithstanding the State has remitted the entire tolls, shows a reduction of only sixty-two per cent., while nothing has been done by way of improvements, to enable the boat owners to reduce the operating expenses, or to facilitate the passage of boats. Although they have been enlarged, in many respects the canals are practically the same as when DeWitt Clinton last beheld them. The same style of lock gates are employed but they are more unwieldly because more ponderous. The same system of towage prevails, but the boat moves much slower, because larger and more deeply submerged. If the prism of the canal should be reduced one foot wherever it can be done with safety; if the the berme bank should be levelled for towing purposes; and if an improved gate should be substituted in place of the old balance beams at the head of each lock, then the movement of boats would be much quickened under any system of towage. If one tier of locks should be lengthened so as to admit of the passage of two boats simultaneously, then boats could be run in couples at a large saving of expenses, and as speedily as a single boat. This improvement would be equivalent to an enlargement, and would insure the general adoption of steam power as a motor.

Washington Irving.

The writings of the most honored of American authors are at last made accessible to all readers, and in such varied and beautiful forms as to delight the most fastidious taste, and at prices so low as to be an astonishment to book-buyers, and a consternation to booksellers, of whom the literary revolution makes no account. As examples we have "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" for three cents, "Wolfert's Roost" ten cents, "The Sketch Book," 20 cents,—these in paper binding but large type; [illegible]

Col. Wm Stoddard was recently elected deacon of the Congregational church in Norwich. He must be a man of business, according to the Oxford Times, which says that the Colonel now holds so many offices in different societies that he has to sit up nights and study the titles, and if you should go into his store and inquire for the "Deacon" he would have to refer to his note book to see if he was in.

The Board of Supervisors of Wayne county have appointed a veteran soldier in each town of said county to see to the proper burial of indigent soldiers and marines, and to erect stones at a cost of not over $15, and the law provides a way by which they shall be allowed $32, for funeral expenses, making altogether $50, and this bill to be charged to the county.

FREE OF COST.

By calling at M. M. Williams' drug store you can get a sample bottle of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup free of cost, which will relieve the most obstinate cough or cold, and show you what the regular 50 cent size will do. When troubled with asthma, Bronchitis, Dry, Hacking Cough, Pains in the chest, and all diseases of the throat and lungs. Try a sample of this medicine. tf

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates in the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

[illegible] Martin, [illegible] in question, and secured the following interview:

"What about this rumor, Doctor, that you are going to make a public statement of some important matters?"

"Just about the same as you will find in all rumors—some truth; some fiction. I had contemplated making a publication of some remarkable episodes that have occurred in my life but have not completed it as yet."

"What is the nature of it may I enquire."

"Why, the fact that I am a human being instead of a spirit. I have passed through one of the most wonderful ordeals that perhaps ever occurred to any man. The first intimation I had of it was several years ago, when I began to feel giddy at night and restless after retiring. Occasionally this would be varied by a soreness of the muscles and cramps in arms my legs. I thought, as most people would think that it was only a cold and so paid as little atten tion to it as possible. Shortly after this I noticed a peculiar catarrhal trouble and my throat also became inflamed. As if this were not variety enough I felt sharp pains in my chest and a constant tendency to headache."

"Why didn't you take the matter in hand and check it right where it was?"

"Why doesn't everybody do so? Simply because they think it is only some trifling and passing disorder. These troubles did not come all at once and I thought it unmanly to heed them. I have found though that every physical neglect must be paid for and with large interest. Men cannot draw drafts on their constitution without honoring them sometime. These minor symptoms I have described, grew until they were giants of agony. I became more nervous; had a strange fluttering of the heart, an inability to draw a long breath and an occasional numbness that was terribly suggestive of paralysis. How I could have been so blind as not to understand what this meant I cannot imagine."

"And did you do nothing?"

"Yes, I traveled. In the spring of 1879 I went to Kansas and Colorado, and while in Denver, I was attacked with a mysterious hemorrhage of the utinary organs and lost twenty pounds of flesh in three weeks. One day after my return I was taken with a terrible chill and at once advanced to a very severe attack of pneumonia. My left lung soon entirely filled with water and my legs and body became twice their natural size. I was obliged to sit upright in bed for several weeks in the midst of the severest agony, with my arms over my head, and in constant fear of suffocation."

"And did you still make no attempt to save yourself?"

"Yes, I made more frantic efforts. I tried everything that seemed to offer to the least prospect of relief. I called a council of doctors and had them make an exhaustive chemical and microscopical examination of my condition. Five physicians of Syracuse and several from another city said I must die!

"It seemed as though their assertion was true for my feet became cold, my mouth parched, my eyes wore a fixed glassy stare, my body was covered with a cold, clammy death sweat, and and I read my fate in the anxious expression of my family and friends."

"But the finale?"

"Came at last. My wife, aroused to desperation, began to administer a remedy on her own responsibility and while I grew better very slowly, I gained ground surely until, in brief, I have no trace of the terrible Bright's disease from which I was dying, and am a perfectly well man. This may sound like a romance, but it is true, and my life, and health and what I am are due to Warner's Safe Cure, which I wish was known to and used by the thousands who, I believe, are suffering this minute as I was originally. Does not such an experience as this justify me in making a public statement?"

"It certainly does. But then Bright's disease is not a common complaint, doctor."

"Not common! On the contrary it is one of the most common. The trouble is, few people know they have it. It has so few marked symptoms until its final stages that a person may have it for years, each year getting more and more in its power and not suspect it. It is quite natural I should feel enthusiastic over this remedy while my wife is even more so than I am. She knows of its being used by many ladies for their own peculiar ailments over which it has singular power."

The statement drawn out by the above interview is amply confirmed by very many of our most prominent citizens, among them being Judge Reigel and Col. James S. Goodrich, of the Times, while Gen. Dwight H. bruce and Rev. Prof. W. P. Coddington, D. D., give the remedy their heartiest endorsement. In this age of wonders, surprising things are quite common but an experience so unusual as that of Dr. Martin's and occurring here in our midst, may well cause comment and teach a lesson. It shows the necessity of guarding the slightest approach of physical disorder and by the means which have been proven the most reliable and efficient. It shows the depth to which one can sink and yet be rescued and it proves that few people need suffer if these truths observed.

The commercial reporter of the Herald is a competent, good natured scotchman named Ferguson. The Standard of last Friday printed the following about him: "They had the laugh on Ferguson, the commercial reporter of the Herald yesterday," said a gentleman in the Arcade at midnight. "He was at work in the Board of Trade rooms. He was seated in a chair and was far busier than a bee ever thought of being. Some miscreant placed a tremendous fire-cracker beneath his chair. The fuse was lighted, and after the cracker had exploded and the smoke had cleared away, Ferguson looked sorry. He had jumped ten feet in the air and sat down. but not in the chair. He says that if he could jump like that at the Caledonian games next summer he'd capture all the prizes."

Most persons have an ambition to carry a gold watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a Solid Gold Watch Case, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The Rev. R. E. Dow has notified the deacons of the Baptist church of this village that he desires to sever his connection with this church to become pastor of the Baptist church of West Medway, Mass., Mr. Dow's pastoral relations with the Fulton church to cease April 1.

It is understood that while away recently Mr. Dow preached at West Medway and his sermon was so well liked that he was persuaded to accept a call from the West Medway church to become its pastor, with the stipulation that he need not deliver but one sermon each Sunday.

This Mr. Dow considered a decided inducement, as he desires to devote more time to study than his duties here will allow him to do; besides West Medway is near Boston where advantages can be enjoyed that cannot be had here.

Mr. Dow accepted a call to become pastor of the Fulton Baptist church in May last, having previously supplied the pulpit for some time while a student in Madison University.

He was ordained in Fulton on Wednesday, October 3, 1883. He has proved himself while here to be an earnest, pointed and powerful preacher, his sermons seeming to improve with each passing Sunday. He is quite popular with his church and congregation and his departure will be deeply regretted by them as well as by the general public, who have learned to highly esteem his Christian character.

OBITUARY NOTES.

William Barrott died Sunday at the home of his son-in-law Sylvester Dickey, who resides a short distance north of Fulton. Deceased was born in Saratoga County, this State, on the 16th of November, 1801. He came to the town of Volney in company with his parents when he was a boy 16 years of age and always resided in the vicinity of where he died. When he first came here he followed river boating as an avocation in company with Jacob, John and Volkert VanBuren, deceased, the canal not having been built at that time. He was a skilled violinist and has played for parties until within about six years in the country roundabout and was well and favorably known, his services at times being in great demand. He was a devout Christian, being a Methodist in belief.

Resolved, we, the members of the class, through this means, express to the public, and to her nearer friends and co-laborers in the Christian field, our just appreciation of her life and labor, and rejoice in the knowledge that she has passed, eminently fitted, from a work well done, to a higher life; and we gratefully acknowledge the fruit of her Christain labor with the church and class of which she was a member.

[illegible] in the [illegible] N. Y. [illegible] After a [illegible] of two and one-half miles we reached the elevation on the west side of the Chemung valley upon which the buildings are situated commanding a fine view of the city and its surrounding hills. There are about thirteen acres enclosed, the line of main buildings fronting the east forming the enclosure on that side, also part of that on the north and south, from which a high brick wall surmounted by guard posts completes the enclosure within which the workshops are situated.

It was nearly dinner time when we arrived and after being conducted through the building and entering three of the shops our party stepped upon an elevated platform, where we could survey the men as they marched to dinner. They were 510 in number and were divided into first, second and third grades. Those of the first grade were dressed in blue uniform with navy caps, the second in common citizen's dress, and the third in red clothing. The first grade men were drawn up in line through which the second and third grade men marched. The latter divided into squads and accompanied by a guard, marched into the prison in lock step. After all had passed in we followed and took a look into the dining room where the first grade men were seated at tables partaking of bread, potatoes and beef with tea or coffee, and they were allowed to enliven the meal with conversation. The other grades were served with the same in their cells. We went along the corriders glancing into many of the cells and entered some to have a clear view of the decorations, consisting of cards, mottoes, etc., almost covering the walls.

Everything we saw or could learn of the institution seemed to point toward the reformation of its inmates. They are sentenced indefinitely by the courts and none are admitted over thirty years old. Upon entering all are placed in the second grade and through good conduct rise to the first or, by bad conduct, fall to the third. Twelve months of sustained good conduct is one of the conditions of release.

Chapel services are held each Sabbath—a thoroughly organized school held during the evenings, with a teaching force composed of the best of educators, provides a practical course of mental training, supplemented by profitable lectures, and a large library embracing leading magazines and newspapers—all these tend toward turning into a new channel the thoughts and lives of many who have never known aught save of vice and ignorance. Add to this the fact that when released they are provided with honest labor and it seems that many who would otherwise have been a curse to humanity are thus saved to lives of usefulness and industry.

The earnings of the institution during the past year amounted to $68,195, an increase of $3,542; the expenditures $97,893, an increase of $2,793. The managers ask for an appropriation of $5,000 for the hospital, $12,000 for new floors, and the annual appropriation of $30,000.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882:
"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

AN EDITOR'S TRIBUTE.

Theron P. Keator, Editor of Ft. Wayne, Ind., "Gazette," werites: "For the past five years have always used Dr. Kings New Discovery for coughs of a most severe character, as well as for those of a milder type. It never fails to effect a speedy cure. My friends to whom I have recommended it speak of it in the same high terms. Having been cured by it of every cough I have had for five years, I consider it the only reliable and sure cure for coughs, colds, etc." Call at R. E. Phillips drug store get a sample bottle. A female miser, eighty-three years of age, was found dead in London a few days ago. She owned several houses, 100 acres of land, and $6,000 in cash. She had written the Lord's Prayer on both posts of the garden gate as a charm against thieves.

A MUCH MARRIED WOMAN.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smilingly saying that he guessed Mrs Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange. 35t2

THE WORLD CHALLENGED

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,
MANUFACTURED BY THE
AMERICAN WATCH CO.,
WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July 20, 1882.
"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 20, 1881.
"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. A. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water, it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding Watch Case, Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or some neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

In Bermuda strawberries ripen from November to July.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,
EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resource in art and letters commanded by St. Nicholas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trobridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurace Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Dudley Warner, Joaquin Miller,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,
Julian Hawthorne, Celia Thaxter,
Mary Mapes Dodge, Lieut. Frederick Schwatka,
Rose Hawthrone Lathrop, E. S. Brooks,
George W. Cable, Chas. G. Leland,
Susan Fenimore Cooper, John G. Whittier,
"H. H.," W. O. Stoddard, C. P. Cranch,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is for boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

"A LIBERAL EDUCATION"

The price is $3 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers, and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express order, bank check, draft, or in registered letter.

"Here is one," said the florist. "Take care, you are getting that bouquet too stiff."

"No, I am not. Look!"

She held up the rainbow tinted mosaic of flowers as she spoke.

Miss Ferningham gave a great sniff of contempt as she turned away.

"You'll be sure to remember?" said she to the proprietor.

"I shall not forget," Mr. Hardie answered, courteously. "Except the orange tree in fruit I am not certain that—"

"We must have it!" insisted Miss Ferningham. "I tell you again that your bill will be promptly settled, whatever the amount may be."

And then Miss Ferningham stepped into her silk cushioned landau, and bade her coachman "drive home at once."

She hurried up stairs to her aunt's boudoir, where that august lady sat, surrounded by crested envelopes, perfumed paper and fancy writing materials.

"You haven't sent off any of the invitations yet, have you, Aunt Penelope," panted the young lady.

"Not yet. Why?"

"Don't send Clara Anneslie's."

"Not send Clara Anneslie's invitation! Why not?" exclaimed Mrs. Ferningham with wide-open eyes, and mouth gradually elongating itself to correspond.

"It's all true about her money being lost in the San Antonio."

"How do you know? Have you seen her lawyer?"

"No, but I have seen her. She's selling flowers behind Hardie's counter. The next we know she'll be galloping up and down the aisle's of the opera house selling [illegible] bouquets on a board. Clara Anneslie never had any pride. Why couldn't she take in sewing, or teach music, or do something genteel, if she must earn her own living?"

"Did she see you?"

"Yes, of course, she did. We looked each other full in the face."

"Did she speak?"

"I didn't give her a chance. I turned away as cold as ice."

"That was right," said Mrs. Ferningham, approvingly, as she tore up the tinted note that was to have been to Clara Anneslie the "open sesame" of the soiree, where no expense was to be spared.

Miss Ferningham brightened up at once. It had been the darling ambition of her heart, before Clara Anneslie's beauty eclipsed her humble light, to become her cousin Herbert's bride. Perhaps it was yet upon the cards that she would reach the acme of her happiness.

She put on her turquoises, freshened her bows, and tied pale blue ribbon among her flaxen hair. And in the most childish way she affected [illegible] cousin Herbert, she told [illegible]

[illegible] said Mr. Herbert [illegible] with his sleeve [illegible] of a nuisance. And [illegible] the prettiest girl out, [illegible] that Shakespeare tells [illegible] I've got it somewhere [illegible] book, I believe. [illegible] a fellow [illegible] If I marry [illegible] money. [illegible]

[illegible] in the opposite [illegible]

"I thought so," said Mrs. Estcote with a curl of her lip.

"What does it mean?" asked Clara in surprise, not unmingled with mortification.

"To come back to our news," said Mrs. Estcote, whipping up her ponies by way of escape valve to her excited feelings. "You haven't heard then, that you have lost all your property—that the San Antonio was wrecked?"

"The San Antonio was wrecked," Clara innocently made answer, "but that made no difference to me. My guardian sold her a month ago to Messrs Easy and Golightly, and my property is all invested in good safe bond and mortgage."

"Neither, I suppose, have you heard that you had gone into a florist's store to attend his counter there for a living."

"I did go into a florist's store the day before yesterday," said Clara, after a moment or two of puzzled retrospection. "But it was only to John Hardie's. John used to be papa's gardner before he went into the florist's business, and I often run in and make up bouquets out of his flowers to suit myself. But I wasn't hired, neither did I sell the bouquets," she added, with a laugh at the comicality of the idea.

"Just about as much foundation to this as there is to most of Mrs. Grundy's reports," said Mrs. Estcote with a toss of her pretty, little plumed hat. "Now you know the reason why Mr. Herbert Ferningham didn't see you."

"Also, I suppose," said Miss Anneslie, "the reason that I have received no cards to Mrs. Ferningham's forthcoming soiree. Never mind, I can endure it. But who told you this?"

"By brother-in-law, Jack Escote."

"Did he believe it?"

"Of course he did. He had it direct from Celestia Ferningham."

Clara colored. Her little fingers tightened on the clasp of her gilded portmonnaie.

"And yet he called as usual last night. He—asked me to marry him!"

"What did you tell him?"

"I said I would consider."

"Well, then, consider," said Mrs. Estcote, quietly. "It is a matter not lightly to be decided. But remember this, Clara; Jack Estcote would have married you if you had been a beggar girl, holding out your hand for pence at the street corners!"

Clara Anneslie went home and thought the question over at her leisure, and the more she thought of it the more she became convinced in her inmost mind of two things. One was that she had had a lucky escape from the toils of Herbert Ferningham; the other that she was almost certain that she liked honest-hearted, frank-soulded Jack Estcote well enough to marry him; always provided, of course, that he should ask her again!

He did ask her again, and just as she had said "Yes," with the prettiest of pink blushes upon her cheek, there came a ring at the door-bell, and in stumbled Mr. Herbert Ferningham in a very great hurry.

"Oh! I beg your pardon, I'm sure," said that gentleman. "I hope I'm not intruding?"

"Not in the least," said Jack Estcote, complacently.

"But my mother has sent a card for her soiree to-night. It was accidentally omitted. Extremely awkward, I'm sure, but——"

So Clara Anneslie became aware that the curious rumor about her poverty was contradicted in society.

"Yes," said she, quietly, "it is rather awkward. But such misunderstandings will occur sometimes. I am sorry that I cannot accept."

"Can't accept?" frowned Mr. Ferningham.

"Why not!"

"Because," said Clara, with another blush and a smile, that made her face look like a rose in the sunshine. "I am engaged."

And that was all the satisfaction that Mr. Herbert Ferningham could get upon the subject.

Dyspepsia in its Worst Form Cured.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

WOLCOTT, N. Y., Sept. 25th, 1883.

GENTS:—I think it my duty to recommend your Syrup for Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache. I have been troubled with Dyspepsia for several years; have tried every remedy recommended, and physicians have failed to give me any relief. Had to be very careful what I ate, for I was almost crazed with pain after meals. And for ten years or more have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism. It finally settled all over me. The pain was so severe I could hardly endure it, and could get nothing to relieve me. My arms I could not move; confined to my bed, and was completely discouraged. Finally my husband thought I had better try Rheumatic Syrup. As a last resort, I told him to get a bottle. I had no faith in it, but was compelled to do something, for I could not endure the pain. I commenced taking it and in a short time it began to help me. Have been taking it six weeks and am doing my own housework, and can safely recommend it [illegible]

[illegible] —[Major-General James B. Steedman at Chickamauga.

Ah, God! how we were nigh undone
That Sunday in September,
When quenched in powder smoke the sun
Died like a hickory ember.

Pillar and cloud in broad daylight,
Like lofty ghosts came gliding past—
God's guides that led the Israelite
On Chickamauga met at last.

I see the gleam of yellow sands,
The dark green cedar's shining cones,
The oaks that spread their tattered hands
And stand like specters in their bones.

The long and crooked front of blue,
Like some grand coast-line stretched afar,
Heroic headlands valor true
All blossomed out with flag and star

And here and there the living line,
Bent inward like a dreadful bay,
Where dense as cane-brakes, muskets shine,
And death at anchor silent lay
And waited for the surges gray.

Then Longstreet's men came rolling in Hightides of battle, and the grum
And high black-mouthed batteries begin
To roar the welkin thunders dumb.

Then rose and fell as if they swung
Upon the sea, the rolling drums
And wailing fifes, and bullets sung
Like busy bees when summer comes.

The kenneled cannon roused from sleep,
Roared out until her heavy breath
Like fleeces of gigantic sheep
Lay all along the line of death.

The blue sea wall was battered down,
The gallant headlands washed away,
Except upon one sandy crown
Where Thomas held the day.

His stubborn flags had taken root
Within that fawney earth below,
And many a tongue grew gladly mute
To make these standards grow!

Day of interpid souls unsung,
That gleams across historic page
Red as a harvest moon, among
The dismal Sundays of the age!

The gray and swirling legions smote
The outlined continent of men—
It was as if the lightnings wrote
Red autographs. It was when

The shepherd grim, Euroclydon,
Times his wild hordes of shaggy waves
With minute guns, and thunders on
To herd them in the landward caves.

Knee-deep in death the boys in blue
Stood fast, Gibralter to the seas
And sleety fire and iron flew
And colors riddled in the breeze.

Time took that day two hours for noon,
Never so late was four o'clock,
Never so slow the western sun,
Never so fierce the battle shock.

Then Steedman with the hope forlorn
Came riding in as cavaliers
Old May-days came with bugle horn
To crown some village queen with cheers.

The flowers he wore were immortelles,
The songs were made of cannon breath,
Around him whirled with shrieking shells
In gusty swarms the bees of death.

Head of the column grand,
This continental general rode
His sword afire, a blazing brand,
The royal route of heroes showed,

The bayonets glitter in the light,
The belts grow white, the flags expand
Like flowers that blossom in the night,—
On comes the core of Cumberland!

So wild and high the fierce assault,
So red the blue, so rend the ranks,
The column made a breathless halt—
As if the world were at its flanks.

The general kept right on and when
He saw the dizzy columns lag,
He wheeled upon the wavering men,
Charged like a foe upon the flag

And grasped it—"Boys you may go back!"
His voice rang out, then right about
Faced the gray lions in the track,
"The flag will go my way without"

"You, boys!" The words electric flashed
Heroic deeds along the line,
And hearts were thick while on they dashed
As cones upon a Norway pine.

And double-quick in double rhymes
They plunged amid the billows gray,
They cleft them as in Red sea times,
And royal Thomas held the day.

And thro' and thro' shot Steedman's corps
As shuttles thro' the warp and weft,
And Steedman riding on before.

And now this grand militia-man,
By birth a regular and a chief,
Supine and pale has led the van
As silent as a fallen leaf.

Oh, flags that wilted as if frost
Had smote ye 'ere the winter came—
Oh, fifes that wailed a hero lost,
Oh, bugles warbling sweet his fame!
Oh, heart that led the hope forlorn,
Good-night, my general, and good morn!

We take it that Petroleum V. Nasby does not any longer drink whisky at Confederate X Roads, for his paper, The Toledo Blade, thus affirms: "It is worse than nonsense to say that the one trade which sets morals at defiance, which is allied to everything that is bad, and which has nothing whatever of good in it, shall not only be above the law but shall make the laws."

Even the New York Herald does not favor the Logan-Blaine plans for using the surplus revenue. With reference to Mr. Logan's it says: "Rum, once the destroyer of youth, is to be the hand maiden of education, and innocent little boys and girls are to be nurtured by money that the Government collects from drunkards. It is to be hoped that Mr. Logan has his scheme carefully protected by patent, for a more beautiful and high moral plan for whipping the devil around the stump without driving him out of the family has never been devised."

Neal Dow says the people of the United States spend $1,300,000,000 a year for drink. To prove this here are the facts: There are in the United States 250,000 saloon-keepers. Each on an average sells not less than $6,000 worth every year. The amount thus spent, $1,500,000,000, would pay for all the household furniture now in use in the United States and leave $300,000,000 over.

Canon Wilberforce says he has known terribly real instances in which men by partaking wine from the sacrimental cup started on the downward course to a dishonored grave. If it came to be a question whether the wine or the Christian should be banished from the table of the Lord, he could not hesitate a moment as to which should go. From the sacrimental table over which he had immediate control intoxicating wine had been long banished.

Prohibition means something in Pottawatomie County, Kansas. Saloon-keeper Hulen, having been convicted on twenty counts, was fined $100 on each count, and on the twenty-first count the Court committed him to jail, to stay until the money is paid. Saloon-keeper Shaw, also having been convicted on thirteen counts, was sentenced to pay $100 and costs on each count, and to spend 30 days in jail and to stay there until he pays up. Saloon-keeper Pittman got $1,100 fine and a month in jail. Upon twenty dealers the Court imposed fines aggregating $7,600 and $3,000 costs and ninety days in jail.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates in the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of all its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party [illegible]

THE FREE TRADE HERESY.

A Washington dispatch to the New York Sun states that Messrs. Carlisle and [illegible] have originated a scheme to [illegible] the Democratic party upon a free trade platform with the belief that they are certain to elect the next President. We sincerely hope that these audacious gentlemen will do this and bring the free trade heresy before the country so prominently in the next campaign that it cannot be dodged as an issue as it was by the Democrats in 1880.

Certainly we have heard enough of free trade for one decade and should it come up squarely before the American people next year they will bury it so deep that it will not be heard of for the next quarter of a century.

THE STYLE THAT WILL PAY.

It is a matter of considerable congratulation to every one who is in any way interested in the success of the New York, Ontario & Western railroad that President Winslow should defeat Secretary and Treasurer Jordan in their struggle for ascendancy in the Board of Directors at the annual meeting of stockholders last week. Mr. Jordan objected to Gen. Winslow on the ground that he was "influenced by Gen, Porter in 'the gaudy direction and that they wanted everything in palace car style."

Mr. Jordan may not like this "style," but it is the style the public wants and it is the style that will eventually place the road on a paying basis.

THE report of Postmaster McLeer of Brooklyn, for 1883, shows that the receipts were $1,104,841.55, and that there was a surplus of $154,826.40 over all expenses. The total number of pieces handled was 75,536,445. The money order business amounted to $1,504,090.02.

ERASTUS HALSEY, collector of taxes of Southampton, L. I., called upon Henry Jason Thursday to get his taxes. Jason attacked him with an ax and cut him several times upon the head. He then took the tax books, cut them up and burned them. Jason escaped. Halsey is dangerously hurt.

SEVERAL large volumes giving the private history of the liquor dealers of Buffalo are now being prepared by the Citizen's Reform Association of that city. The biographies of 500 men are already contained in these volumes, and it is said that the record is so bad that, on its publication, licenses should be revoked or renewal refused.

IT is stated that Representative Belford, of Colorado, had a long consultation with ex-Senator Roscoe Conkling a few days ago in the interest of harmony in the Republican party. Mr. Belford is acting the part of a peacemaker between the Blaine and Conkling factions, and it is understood that while no positive agreement was reached the interview brought about a better understanding between the two wings of the party, and all troubles may be expected to be settled. Mr. Belford did not go to Mr. Conkling at the solicitation of Mr. Blaines friends, but with their friendly consent.

IN the superior court at Chicago it has been decided that in order to secure a divorce under the Illinois statues, it is essential that a complainant should be a resident of the state one entire year previous to filing an application for divorce and that it must be proven that both parties to the suit were residents in the county where the application is made at the time the offences charged in the bill occurred. Suspicion has always been entertained that a large number of applications for divorces were made by eastern people, who took up a residence in Illinois to that end. It is predicted that the decision may go a long way toward breaking up the practice.

LORD EDMOND FITZMAURICE, the Liberal member of the English Parliment for Calne, in a speech at Bradford, England, Monday evening said that the whole world could not fail to approve the preparations now making for the opening up of Congo river region to civilization and the extirpation of slavery in the heart of Africa.

THE trial of E. Newton Rowell for manslaughter in killing John H. Lynch, of Utica, was called Monday before Judge Haight. The district attorney is assisted by Judge Bangs. The prisoner's lawyer is Judge Sutton. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rowell, Miss Julia Rowell and the two little daughters of the defendant occupied seats within the space reserved for witnesses. Rowell, the defendant, and his brother George, followed the rest of the family into the court room. Rowell looked pale, as usual, but exhibited few evidences of nervousness. He was neatly dressed in black.

LAST spring James Griffin, a young farmer residing near Bellaire, Ohio, tore down the old log cabin that had once been his home and piled the logs up for use. Last Saturday was bu chering day and after the neighbors had gathered the fire was started with the old logs in the barnyard. From one of them, a hollow log, something dropped into the fire that looked like gold. It was fished out and found to be a twenty dollar gold piece. The logs were at once pulled off the fire and an investigation was started. The result was that over $1,000 in gold is now in possession of the young farmer.

THE steamship City of Columbus left Boston at three p. m. on Thursday, carrying eighty passengers and a crew of forty-five. At a quarter to four a. m. on Friday at Gay Head Light bearing south half east, the vessel struck on the outside of Devil's Bridge Buoy. The wind was blowing a gale west by north The vessel immediately filled and heeled over, the water breaking in and flooding the port side of the saloon. All of the passengers except a few women and children, came on deck, nearly all wearing life preservers. The passengers took to life boats and rafts, but of the 125 persons on board only 29 are known to have been saved.

A MEETING of the Round Lake Camp Meeting association was held in Troy, last week for the purpose of having a report of the committee appointed three weeks ago to dispose of lots, and through other means to raise funds sufficient to liquidate the indebtedness of $100,000, and thereby rescue the association from the unfortunate position in which it has long been placed through improper management, and get it started on a new and firm basis. The report was not satisfactory, and after efforts had been made to secure sufficient subscriptions at the meeting a committee was appointed to see the representatives of the bondholders and inform them that all had been done that could be. The meeting adjourned to await the decision of the bondholders.

THE Governor of Utah, in his message to the legislature, says: "By the laws of congress, approved March 22, 1882, this session is made one of extraordinary interest to the people of Utah and the country at large. The manner of conducting elections in the future is made dependent on the action we may take. It is my earnest desire that the measures devised shall meet the reasonable expectations of congress, the country and the requirements of the people of Utah. We are expected to write a code of laws that shall, while conserving the admitted local necessities of the territory, be an assurance of our fidelity to the nation and satisfy the exactions of public opinion on the questions in which Utah is regarded as not in harmony with other portions of the country. The present condition of affairs cannot longer continue to satisfy the United States or the people of Utah. Constitutional morality must prevail or the nation must fall."

NEW YORK, Jan. [illegible] Court, on Monday [illegible] by the Bridge trustees, to force the Manhattan Elevated R. R. to remove the station which is directly in front of the New York terminus of the bridge. Although the Manhattan Company built the structure with the understanding that it was to be removed when the bridge was completed, they now think that "possession is nine points" and have concluded to hold the position and fight for it. The bridge people want to extend their station across Centre street and into City Hall Park, in order to have better shifting facilities, but the wrought iron structure of the great monopoly is in the way. Ten years hence I suppose that everything will stand just as it does now and the only benefit derived will be to enrich the coffers of the lawyers. The bridge is a great place for the development of amateur pedestrians and fresh air fiends. The latter, on some days get more than they bargain for. I have seen them start out from the Brooklyn side with their overcoats on their arm and their faces radiant with smiles, in expectation of the delightful walk and the "pure fresh air." Half way over, the coats are put on and they begin to upbraid themselves for ever attempting the thing. By the time they get to New York their faces look like raw beefsteak and the clatter of their teeth sounds like a young boiler factory in full blast. They unusually sneak into the ladies' waiting room and make love to a heater for a full half hour before starting out again to brave the chilly air of the streets.

In the theatrical line there has not been much excitement during the past week. The principal event was the benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House on Thursday. This was for the joint benefit of the wives and families of the men who were lost by the sinking of the Gloucester, pilotboat No. 8, and also of the French seamen, drowned in the collision of the Thomas Dana, an American boat. Harrigan & Hart presented one scene from "Cordelia's Aspirations" and the Casino Company one from the "Beggar Student." Gilmore's band furnished the music and some of Grau's French troupe warbled opera bouffe. Other noted artists appeared, and those who did not lend their presence sent substantial checks. The entertainment was a success and netted a goodly sum for this worthy cause. Booth closed his engagement at the Star theatre Saturday night with "Hamlet." Raymond presented his new play "For Congress" at Haverly's. Mrs. Langtry, in "A Wife's Peril," has made a great hit at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. She is not looked upon as a professional beauty, but as an artist. She was supported by Chas. Coghlan and a good company. "Storm Beaten" is still at the Union Square and the "Pavements of Paris" at Niblo's. Kate Claxton and the "Two Orphans" was at the Third Avenue this last week. The "Rajah" is now seven months old and is still at the Madison Square. The "Beggar Student" is getting rich at the Casino. Janaushek, Thatcher, Primrose & West, and Fanny Davenport are entertaining the people of Brooklyn.

Business is generally quite brisk in New York although some failures are reported. On wall street everything seems unsettled, but I suppose this is natural. Spring goods are now announced and the ladies who have recovered from the effects of the holidays' shopping are getting ready to start out again in search of more bargains. If some of these women who labor so hard to secure bargains had to work so hard at home, they would think that their hubbys were the worst men on the globe and immediately sue for a divorce on the grounds of inhuman treatment. Here is a sample of New York shoppers. During the holidays an A. D. Telegraph messenger was placed on Fourteenth street to distribute some plaques for a large importing house. The youth gave out the advertisements all right for a time and everything was lovely until a mob of lady shoppers surrounded him and by their eager demands and actions actually frightened the boy so badly that he dropped the bag of plaques and fled across the street, where he stood and watched the ladies take what they wished. That is the way they jump at a bargain counter and it is no wonder that the poor clerks sometimes jump off the dock or frost their scanty lunch with "rough on rats."

SENATOR LANSING has introduced a bill into the Senate providing for the erection of an Adirondack park within whose boundaries will eventfully be comprised of 1,700,000 acres of forest land. Its boundaries are defined by lines surveyed by Verplanck Colvin. Instead of appointing a commission, as the chamber of commerce and some others suggest, for the purpose of acquiring large tracts of territory, the bill provides for the appointment by the governor of a superintendent of the Adirondack park. He will be given an adequate salary and required to ascertain not only that the lands already belonging to the state are preserved from depredators, but also that other tracts which naturally will revert to the state annually for non-payment of taxes are properly included with the new park's borders. Altogether the state now owns about 750,000 acres in the heart of the Adirondacks. Of this amount about 150,000 acres have reverted to the state within the past year. Senator Lansing says that at this rate enough of land will have reverted to the state within the next ten years to make the park the size contemplated by this bill.

JAMES NUTT was yesterday acquitted at Pittsburgh, Pa., of the murder of N. L. Dukes. On June 13th, 1883, James Nutt shot and killed Nicholas L. Dukes in the main street of Uniontown, Pa. The cause of the tragedy was this: Captain A. C. Nutt, James' father, was instantly killed in Uniontown on December 24th, 1882, by Dukes, who was a leading lawyer and a member-elect of the Pennsylvania Legislature. The occasion of this was Duke's alleged improper intimacy with Captain Nutt's oldest daughter, Lizzie, and the fatal shot was fired in Dukes's room, in the Jennings House, where Nutt went by appointment. The two men were alone, when a scuffle was heard. Nutt's friend, Breckenridge, entered and endeavored to separate them. Another man came in. He found Breckenridge holding Nutt. He seized Dukes, when the latter raised his revolver and shot Nutt through the head. Dukes was tried for murder and held at [illegible]. During [illegible]

He was languid, and yet restless, while at times a dizziness would come over him which seemed almost blinding. His will power was strong, and he determined not to give way to the mysterious influence which seemed undermining his life. But the pain and annoying symptoms were stronger than his will, and he kept gradually growing worse. About that time he began to notice a difficulty in drawing on his boots, and it was by the greatest effort that he was able to force his feet into them. In this manner several weeks passed by, until finally one night, while in great agony, he discovered that his feet had, in a short while, swollen to enormous proportions. The balance of the narrative can best be described in his own words. He said:

"When my wife discovered the fact that I was so bloated, she sent for the doctor immediately. He made a most careful examination and pronounced me in a very serious condition. Notwithstanding his care, I grew worse, and the swelling of my feet gradually extending upward in my body. The top of my head pained me terribly; indeed, so badly at times that it seemed almost as if it would burst. My feet were painfully cold, and even when surrounded with hot flannels and irons felt as if a strong wind were blowing on them. Next my right leg became paralyized. This gave me no pain, but it was exceedingly annoying. About this time I began to spit blood most freely, although my lungs were in perfect condition, and I knew it did not come from them. My physicians were careful and untiring in their attentions, but unable to relieve my sufferings. My neighbors and friends thought I was dying and many called to see me, fully twenty-five on a single Sunday that I now recall. At last my agony seemed to culminate in the most intense, sharp pains I have ever known or heard of. If red hot knives sharpened to the highest degree and had been run through my body constantly they could not have hurt me worse. I would spring up in bed, somrtimes as much as three feet, cry out in my agony and long for death. One night the misery was so intense that I arose and attempted to go into the next room, but was unable to lift my swollen feet above the little threshold that obstucted them. I fell back upon the bed and gasped in my agony, but felt unable even to breathe. It seemed like death.

"Several years ago Rev. Dr. J. E. Rankin, now of Washington, was stationed here as pastor of the Congregational church. We all admired and respected him, and my wife remembered seeing somewhere that he had spoken in the highest terms of a preparation which had cured some of his intimate friends. We determined to try this remedy, accordingly sent for it, and, to make a long story short, it completely restored my health, brought me back from the grave, and I owe all I have in the way of health and strength to Warner's Safe Cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I am positive that if I had taken this medicine when I felt the first symptoms above described, I might have avoided all the agony I afterward endured, to say nothing of the narrow escape I had from death."

In order that all possible facts bearing upon the subject might be known, I called on Dr. Oscar F. Fassett, who was for nineteen years United States Examining Surgeon, and who attended Mr. Jaques during his sickness. He stated that Mr. Jaques had a pronounced case of Albuminuria or Bright's disease of the kidneys. That an analysis showed the presence of albumen and casts in great abundance and that he was in a condition where few if any ever recover. His recovery was due to Warner's Safe Cure.

Mr. John W. Hobart, General Manager of the Vermont Central railroad, stated that Mr. Jaques was one of the best and most faithful of his employes, that his sickness had been an exceedingly severe one and the company were not only glad to again have his services, but grateful to the remedy that had cured so valuable a man.

Mr. James M. Foss, assistant superintendent and master mechanic of the Vermont Central railroad, is also able to confirm this:

I do not claim to be a great discoverer, but I do think I have found in the above a most remarkable case and knowing the unusual increase of Bright's disease feel that the public should have the benefit of it. It seems to me a remedy that can accomplish so much in the last stages ought to do even more for the first approach of this deceptive yet terrible trouble.

ONTARIO AND WESTERN.

The Annual Election of Officers in New York Last Week.

The annual meeting of the New York Ontario & Western Railroad was held in New York last week and a misunderstanding arose between President Winslow and the secretary and treasurer of the road, Conrad N. Jordan. Previous to the meeting a notice of an application for a receiver was served upon President Winslow. This application was made by Mr. Jordan who believed that he was to be excluded from the directory of the company. At the election of the Directors President Winslow voted a block of 16,000 shares of preferred stock which was held in trust by trustees and which Mr. Jordan claimed he had no right to vote. The vote of these shares was challenged and the legality of the election which resulted in the defeat of Mr. Jordan, will be contested in the courts. The newly elected Board of Directors was oaganized by re-electing General Winslow as President and Mr. Theodore Houston as Vice-President and advancing Mr. J. L. Nesbit to the post of Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. C. N. Jordan, the former treasurer is thus excluded from office. His salary was $8,000 a year.

Mr. Jordan's suggestion that an expert examination should be made of the accounts of the West Shore and Buffalo Railway Company and of the North River Construction Company will be carried out.

The several actions in the United States Circuit Court brought by Conrad N. Jordan, Richard H. Chipman and the New York Stone Contracting Company against the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Company came up for a hearing in New York Saturday before Judge Wallace, on motion for the appointment of a receiver and for an injunction restraining the company from disposing of its property of franchise. After considerable discussion by counsel Judge Wallace consented to hear the case to-morrow at Syracuse.

The Oswego Palladium says: "The failure of the West Shore railroad and the subsequent embarrasment of the N. Y. O. & W. is already being severely felt in this city. Over thirty workmen have been discharged from the N. Y. O. & W. shops, and Saturday night between twenty-five and thirty moulders and mechanics received blue envelopes at Kingsford's foundry in consequence of the cancellation of a large order by the N. Y. O. & W."

The tax collector of Norwich has levied on two engines and other property belonging to the New York, Ontario & Western railway for taxes due that town, and at other stations legal proceedings have been taken to collect taxes. It is said that all trains are run through the town of Guilford without stopping, so as not to have an interview with the collector of that borough.—[Oswego Palladium.

Mr. Riggs at Ithaca.

The Rev. J. S. Riggs returned from Ithaca, yesterday afternoon, having preached at the Presbyterian church at that place Sunday. Last evening he expressed himself as highly pleased with Ithaca and the Ithaca church and people. "Never have I been more cordially received anywhere," said he, "than I was at Ithaca and I was pressed very hard to come there, but I have not as yet come to any decision in the matter. There are so many reasons that weigh on both sides of the question that I probably shall not come to any definite conclusion for several days."

Many uncharitable persons are unkind enough to believe that it is a mere question of dollars and cents with Mr. Riggs whether he goes to Ithaca or not, but it will be remembered that no longer ago than last summer Mr. Riggs refused a salary of $2,500—with $3,000 after six months—from the Orange Presbyterian church and within a few weeks past he has refused to entertain a call which another church which desired to extend a call to him, the proposed salary in this instance also being $3,000.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be produced for a second time this season at Stephens Opera House by Abbey's Double Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, who have played to large houses in cities like New York and Boston. Below we append notices from two of the leading journals of the former city, which indicate several novelties introduced into the version rendered by the Abbey Company:

"Will innovations never cease? The latest is Two Topsys and Two Lawyers, Marks, Sr. and Jr., in Uncle Tom's Cabin, as introduced by Abbey's Double Mammoth Uncle Tom's Cabin Company at Booth's Theatre during the past week. The introduction of this novelty is no doubt one of the principal causes for the enormous business to which this excellent company is continually playing."—[New York Herald, March 26th.

"Booth's Theatre has been crowded every night during the past week, Abbey's Double Uncle Tom's Company being the attraction. The performance given by this company is far superior to that of any similar organization which has ever visited this city, and has given universal satisfaction."—[New York Sun, March 26th.

He left sundry small debts." George has been sojourning in Fulton for the past few days.

MINOR NEWS MATTERS.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT.

A Horse Thief in Trouble—Henry Hovey Again Comes to Grief.

Last Friday a man named Henry Hovey hired a horse and cutter of Liveryman Frederick Roberts of this village, representing that he was the agent of a Phœnix marble firm and stating that he wanted to go to Jennings Corners and from thence to Mexico. Soon after his departure Roberts learned that Hovey had not gone in the direction in which he said he was going and fearing that all was not right swore out a warrant for his arrest. The warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Hulett, who scoured the town of Granby nearly all of Friday night, but did not find his man. On Saturday Mr. Hulett was informed that Hovey was in the hands of the Oswego police and neither the Deputy Sheriff went and brought his prisoner to Fulton.

Hovey was arrested in the streets of Oswego on Saturday afternoon by officer McCarthy for intoxication. "It was subsequently learned, "says the Palladium, "that the man with the rig arrived here Friday and put up at the Eagle hotel. After putting out his horse he went into the hotel and asked the proprietor if he could change a $50 bill. The proprietor said he could not, and then Hovey asked him to lend him $2 until morning. The unsuspecting hotel man handed over the money, and the next he heard of Hovey he turned up drunk."

Hovey, it seems, is a hard case. According to Deputy Sheriff Hulett he was only released from the Onondaga Penitentiary on Monday, January 14, for a similar offense committed at Phœnix.

On Monday Hovey was taken before Police Justice Piper and was committed to the Fulton lockup in default of $500 bail. Yesterday Deputy Sheriff Hulett appeared before the Grand Jury in Oswego to secure an indictment against Hovey for grand larceny.

A Row in a Saloon.

There was a row in the saloon of Charles Inch on First street last Wednesday night, which ended in the Police Court. A warrant was sworn out by John Kilfoyle of New York against Charles Inch for keeping a gambling house and John Farrell entered a complaint against Charles and Alfred Inch for assault and battery. The latter case was tried on Saturday and the defendants were discharged. It appears that Farrell was told to leave the saloon but refused to do so. Whereupon he was forcibly ejected by the two Inches. He entered the saloon again and declared he would not go out, except as a corpse, but he was again put out and Police Justice Piper decided that the two men had a right to put him out, even as a corpse. As Kilfoyle refused to appear against Charles Inch, when he came up on Monday charged with keeping a gambling house, the prisoner was discharged, promising to keep an orderly house in the future.

A Verdict Against a Railroad.

The jury in case of Thomas G. Poole against the D. L. & W. railroad company, which was on trial at the circuit Friday, brought in a verdict against the railroad company for $350. The plaintiff was injured by the capsizing of a bus while being transferred from the Oswego Falls depot to Fulton.—[Oswego Palladium.

The omnibus in question was not capsized, but ran against the iron arch of the upper canal bridge, bringing it to a sudden halt. Poole was pitched off by the shock. M. A. Hatch owned the omnibus at that time.

Clean Your Walks.

There are a large number of citizens who have thus far this season been quite dilatory about having their sidewalks properly cleared of snow. Numerous complaints have been made to President Herrick, those who are dilligent in the matter rightly thinking that the people who do not shovel their walks should be compelled to do so. President Herrick has made a move in the matter and has requested Street Commissioner Hyde to see that the ordinance relating to the shoveling of snow from sidewalks be enforced.

The Fulton correspondent of the Oswego Palladium sent the following to his paper last Thursday: "A battle with the "raw 'uns," a la Sullivan and strictly according to rule, took place not a hundred miles from Fulton recently. Pat, who is the tallest and longest, had a trifle the best of it at first, but Charley, who is a plucky, determined fellow, stuck to his man and finally weathered it in good style. There was a select company of friends of both combatants present and everything was conducted with the utmost fairness. At the end the men shook hands and Pat acknowledged himself fairly beaten."

There are now at Hendricks two paintings by Mr. D. Styles, of Fulton—a landscape and a head of a Skye terrier. The landscape, painted in oil upon paper, is a beautiful picture, full of dreamy, romantic poetry. Words can tell that it represents a shadowy castle upon a wooded slope and a wonderful stretch of country, but they cannot adequately convey its richness and peculiarity of coloring nor its fine, tender feeling. The picture should be called "Dreamland," for it impresses one that it is a delicious dream of a delicate imagination. The picture of the dog is a good thing. We believe the paintings are owned by Dr. Chas. R. Lee.—[Syracuse Sunday Times.

[illegible] Gross [illegible] in Fulton, having been educated at Falley Seminary.

The Rev. Dr. Ninde, alluded [illegible] was formerly pastor of the [illegible] church in this village and will be remembered by the older members of that church. While here he also took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Sophie Falley, whose mother, Mrs. Falley and afterwards Mrs. J. T. Hewitt contributed the land on which Falley Seminary was erected. The article above referred to will be read with interest. It is as follows:

"A very interesting occasion was that which took place in the parlors of the Presbyterian church at Evanston last evening, being a reception and farewell to Rev. George R. Pierce, late pastor of the Baptist church, who is about to take his departure from the village. There was a numerous attendance of ladies and gentlemen, all the several religious denominations being largely represented. After a very pleasant hour of sociability, Rev. Dr. Ninde, the President of the Garrett Biblical Institute, called the assembly to order and took the chair, the company being seated in a semi-circle around the platform. The ceremonies began with some excellent singing by the Shubert Quartette, who sang several times subsequently during the evening. The first speaker called upon was Rev. Dr. Geo. C. Noyes, the pastor of the Presbyterian Church; he was followed by brief addresses Rev. A. J. Scott, of the Congregational church; Rev. Dr. R. M. Hatfield, representing the Methodist church, and Rev. Dr. Jewell, the Rector of the Episcopal church. All of these speakers expressed warm esteem for Mr. Pierce and his good wife, and their regret that they were about to leave the village, among whose people they had endeared themselves by their talents, their goodness and their quiet and gentle ministrations. Finally Andrew Shuman was called upon to speak for the laity, and he responded by a few remarks, closing with the presentation to Mr. Pierce with a purse of $450, the friendship offerings of the good people of the community, without regard to sect or church distinctions. Mr. Pierce responded by a feeling and eloquent expression of acknowledgement in behalf of himself and his wife. The latter was unfortunately detained at her home by illness, but the ladies of the several churches on their own account, had made up a special testimonial of $120, which accompanied by a beautiful bouquet, was sent to her, without her husband's knowledge, during the evening. The ceremonies of the evening concluded with a prayer by Rev. Lewis Curts, pastor of the Methodist church.

The occasion was one of the pleasantest and most gratifying that has ever taken place in Evanston. The fact that all the members of the several religious denominations could thus numerously, cordially and generously unite in paying a warm tribute of respect to the departing pastor of another denomination, demonstrates a degree of Christian brotherhood in the community that is peculiar to Evanston and is very pleasing to contemplate.

It is not known as yet where Mr. Pierce's future field of labor will be. The health of his wife, which has been very infirm for some time, will probably in a great measure influence his future plans. He has been the pastor of the Evanston Baptist Church for some five years, and resigned his charge on the first of January. He is one of the most scholarly men and one of the ablest preachers who have ever occupied pulpits in Evanston, and the feeling of regret at his anticipated departure is very general in the community."

The Nashville Students.

To-morrow evening at the Stephens Opera House the well-known Nashville Students will give the fourth entertainment of the winter's lecture Course. This troupe of colored singers is so justly celeberated, not only from one end of the country to the other, but throughout Europe as well, that hardly a word need be said of them. It is not every troupe, however, that can play for a straight month in one town and draw big houses. It would appear from the following notice that the Nashville Students accomplished this feat in Chicago:

"The Original Nashville Students, who are just closing a season of one month in this city, have been remarkably successful, both in giving a pleasing entertainment and in drawing crowded houses; and in the first place they do give the most original and unique concert ever given by a jubilee party."—[Chicago Tribune.

After the report of the Secretary an exercise in pronunciation, with blackboard, was conducted by Miss Schenck, followed by an interesting account of the Parthenon at Athens, by Mrs. Mead. A class exercise in American literature, with discussion of authors was engaged in by all. Mrs. Hewitt discussed the Apollo Belvidere of the vatican. Miss Connor gave an interesting exercise in biology with use of the crayon and Miss Alice Schenck gave an essay on "Alexander the Great." The meeting adjourned to meet at the same place Monday evening.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again. [illegible] written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

The Sun is, and will continue to be, a newspaper [illegible]

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD."
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

How Watch Cases are Made.

This process of manufacture was invented by James Boss, who started in business in 1854, and the methods and tools used in making these watch cases are covered by patents. This is the only watch case made under this process. For many years the introduction of these goods was slow, owing to popular prejudice against "plated" goods, but gradually the public learned that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case was not a cheap gold-washed or electro-plated article, but was made of genuine gold plates of standard quality and thickness. Conscientious adherence to the determination to make the best watch case ever put on the market, and the adoption of every improvement suggested, has made the James Boss' Gold Watch Case the STANDARD. TRADE MARK In this watch case the parts most subject to wear—the bow, crown, hinges, thumb-catches, etc., are made of SOLID GOLD.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

THE WORLD CHALLENGED

For Man & Beast

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being composed of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain, in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 28, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would [illegible] twice a day, and give them no more than they can eat up clean before resting.

Over-feeding is bad economy, both in the stable and in the stye. Feed beyond what is digested and assimilated is voided unused, and might as well be put in the manure heap before it goes into the animal's mouth as after. It is what is digested benefits man or beast. Hence, the art of feeding animals is one to be learned.

There is this axiom for owners of horses: An animal in good condition is easily kept so; which may be interpreted to mean that an animal fed and cared for after it has acquired a proper degree of flesh, may be much more easily and cheaply kept in that condition for a given time, than he can be raised to the same condition at the end of the same time if allowed previously to fall away in flesh.

No farmer should be without a good supply of nails and bolts, as something may happen by which double the cost may be saved. One should keep on hand plenty of horse nails, and know how to nail on a shoe as well as a blacksmith. It is not only the money that is saved, but time that, at certain seasons of the year, is worth more than money to the farmer.

Farm stock should receive that care and attention which will enable them to gain rather than to loose flesh during the winter season. It is the worst policy in the world to let steers and heifers run down in the winter, thinking that the summer run the next season will make it all right in the end. Undoubtedly it will be right, but it might be a great deal more so if stock were kept always on the advance, instead of retrograding a part of the time.

It is difficult to say which branch of farming is most profitable. Intelligently conducted and under proper conditions every legitimate branch of farm economy carries the elements of success to a far greater degree than mercantile business, commercial ventures of manufacturing enterprises. The pursuit of agriculture as a business is more within the control of the individual than is the case with the merchant or the manufacturer.

Estimate the value of your farm and stock, then make out carefully a list of all your personal and family expenses during the year, including all your family has consumed—whether made on the farm or purchased with proceeds of the crop—charging yourself up with milk, butter, eggs, chickens, meal, meat, wood, syrup, house rent, etc., at current rates, and then tell us if you can how you could have invested the same amount of capital to better advantage, at the same time lived as well and as independently.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries." The reference to the wide resources in art and letters commanded by St. Nichlas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributions:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trowbridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurice Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Dudley Warner, Joaquin Miller,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,
Julian Hawthorne, Celia Thaxter,
Mary Mapes Dodge, Lieut. Frederick Schwatka,
Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, E. S. Brooks,
George W. Cable, Chas. G. Leland,
Susan Fenimore Cooper, John G. Whittier,
"H. H.," W. O. Stoddard, C. P. Cranch,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is for boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

"A LIBERAL EDUCATION"

The price is $3 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers, and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express order, bank check, draft, or in registered letter.

H. H. STODDARD,
Editor and Publisher,
HARTFORD, [illegible]

[illegible] 1868 four miners built [illegible] the brink of a howling [illegible] lips, leaped [illegible] of the grand mountain [illegible] the Golden State.

[illegible] constructed a solidly built [illegible] completely across the [illegible] they named Clear River, [illegible] off the water from its bed, [illegible] escaped by a long raceway [illegible].

In the dry bed of the river was located Clear River Mine, and the miners [illegible] all their labor well rewarded; for the sands of the mountains literally shone with gold, that had been torn from some crumbling quartz ledge that had bared its breast to the turbulent waters for centuries, or from many a tortured boulder whirled along in a crazy dance in the river's cold embrace.

The last ounce of shining dust had been taken from the delicate scales, and the four men grouped around the rude table, looked into each other's eyes that shone brighter, with the light of success, than the gold for which they had so patiently toiled.

"$10,000, boys—$2,500, a share!" laughed one of the brown-faced miners. "That's a pretty good showing for a month of rocking the cradle. A few more dividends like that and then I reckon that I'll go home. There's a little woman in a little brown house I know of that will be glad to see me—bless her brave little heart!"

Home! The four partners in the Clear River Mine were all from the far-away East, and at that word stern faces softened, and more than one hand involuntarily sought a ragged breast, where was concealed a precious packet of well-worn letters from loved ones over the mountains.

But one of them—a frank-faced young fellow—arose from the table, glanced half-anxiously, half-hesitatingly at his companions, then turned from them and went to the little cabin window and looked out into the night.

"What's the trouble with you, Upton?" was the general inquiry.

Upton strode uneasily toward his fellow miners.

"I cannot answer your question, boys; for, the truth of it is, I don't myself. I can only say that a feeling as if we are in mortal danger this very moment is upon me and I cannot shake it off."

A laugh went around the table—a hearty, ringing laugh—the laugh of men who scorn the thought of danger, and yet they could not but feel impressed with the young fellow's earnestness.

Upton joined in the laugh at his expense; but that strange, far-off look as of one whose spirit is not with the body, never left his face.

He went back to the window again, and then threw open the cabin door, turned his head and said pleasantly, "I'll be with you in a short time, boys!" and then the door closed behind him.

There was neither sparkle or star nor the faintest gleam of the moon to lighten the shadows into which he plunged. The air was soft and warm against his face as a woman's breath. No sound came to his ear save the roar of the [illegible] flume, which was the width of the river bed from the cabin.

Upton descended the steep bank and began to pick his way over the rough stones of the claim, with the great face of the dam rising up at his side like some huge prison wall.

He stopped and listened a moment. He heard queer little gurgles—faint, soft lapping sounds—a soft, subdued swish, as if of hurrying waters; and yet, after all, there was a certain, ruthless calm about those strong, unseen floods behind that cool, dark wall, that bore evidence of immense power.

Thud! It was as if some mighty, Titanic missiles had been hurled against the wall. It was only an uptorn tree, with terrific force against the dam [illegible] above his head.

"The river has crept up since [illegible]. I knew the rain of the last [illegible] would cause a rise; but this [illegible]. Luckily the dam will [illegible] pressure of a common flood!" [illegible] his ear close to one of the pro[illegible] of the dam.

"[illegible] weight of water does [illegible]," he muttered.

[illegible] over the rocky river[illegible] in that thick ob[illegible] familiarity with every [illegible] behind him, and in a [illegible] the flume. [illegible]

[illegible] Not of his own danger was he thinking, but rather of the peril of the [illegible] men in the little cabin yonder—his "pards," who had become endeared to him through the many months of weary privation and toil so cheerfully shared together; his comrades, unto whom his soul clove with love as strong as that of a brother.

Why did objects beside him, before him appear so distinct? He threw up his head as he ran.

The clouds were parting, and he perceived that in a few minutes their friendly aid would be withdrawn. The moon would burn like some great watch-fire in the heavens and his flight would be revealed to those merciless eyes not a pistol shot away.

The odds were all against him. Strain every energy, every nerve as he might, to-morrow's sun would look down on four victims to Lomax and his band, and the dear folks at home would look in vain for those whose bones were whitening by a rotting dam in those western wilds.

The dam! An inspiration born of dire necessity, leaped into his mind, and a light flamed forth in his eyes. The strength of hope sprang up in his heart and swung every nerve, and on he sped.

The dam loomed up before him. He sprang to a little locker, built for convenience sake, close by the end of the dam, threw up the cover, seized a keg of blasting powder, thurst it under one of the projecting supports of the dam, lighted a short fuse, thurst one end into the keg, and then turned and fled.

And the moon burst forth from behind the clouds, her calm, pale light falling softly over all the darkness had hid.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed the happy trio, still setting round the the cabin table, as one of their number finished relating some anecdote of his rollicking college days, and the laugh was still echoing, when the door was burst violently open, and Upton with face as white as a death mark, stood on the threshold. He made a bekconing motion and then disappeared.

The miners sprang to their feet, but even as they did so a loud explosion deafened their ears, and a terrible thrill rocked the little cabin like a cradle. With one impulse they leaped to the door.

They saw the whole front of the dam move out in one mass, one instant transfigured by the light of the moon into a stately wall of burnished silver, the next broken and sheathed in a glorious seething spray.

And then a torrent in foaming crest leaped down over its own highway, from which it had been shut off so long, stripping bare the foundation of the dam and driving the flume before it.

The miners on the bank stood dumb, but the men in the path of the open floodgates uttered one cry as the dark death touched them; and then all was silent, save for the mighty song of the waters which rang up to the mountain top.

The miners heard the last cry of despair, and their hearts seemed to stop in horror. They turned to Upton, who was standing near them, and saw that he was struggling like one beneath whose feet the solid earth was rocking.

Strong arms knit round him and he was supported into the cabin.

The door and windows of the cabin were barred, and then they crowded around Upton, who had sunk on his rude couch, and one question burst from every one:

"What was that cry, Upton?"

The story of Upton was briefly told.

When he had finished, three strong, right hands were stretched forth toward him.

He gave each a hearty grasp in turn, and that silent handshaking expressed more than could have been put into words.

After the dam and flume had been rebuilt, the mine no longer wore the name of Clear River. It had been changed to Upton in honor of the brave young "pard" who had saved the lives of his friends and himself on the night that he walked down by the flume.

A Japanese Funeral.

If it were evening you might see a Japanese funeral procession, says a letter from Japan. The funerals here are always conducted at sunset, in accordance with a superstition that is rather beautiful than otherwise. The procession is headed by priests and a company of musicians, who play upon samisens and beat tomtoms. The coffin is a wooden tub in which the deceased is squatting as he has lived, with his feet tucked under him. There is this difference, however: The face of the dead [illegible] looking toward the north, where[illegible] position is religiously avoided by the living Japanese. Indeed, the points of the compass are frequently marked on the ceilings of sleeping-rooms, that [illegible] arrange his body in an [illegible] unfavorable position. The [illegible]

The Mother-in-Law Speaks.

[illegible]
Alas! I've been the patient mark
For [illegible] and dart
From pen and tongue.
And since the paragrapher rose
I've been a [illegible] to expose—
My looks, complexion, gait and clothes
Have all been sung.

No word for all the good I've done—
Of patient toil from sun to sun,
To help two greenies just begun
A new career;
And what a husband! What a bride!
She boiled the fish that should be fried,
And looks so bad she runs to hide
When friends appear.

The drinking husband cannot bear
His "Wife's old mother sponging there;"
He quite forgets her tender care
When down with fever;
And while she meets his many needs,
His causes for late hours she reads
In the smell of cloves and cardamon seeds
That don't deceive her.

The paragraphers—heavy wits (?)
Have but two themes for all their hits,
The mule and mother-in-law; and it's
An easy matter
To see that as they are related
Unto the first, they've rather hated
To wound him and discriminated Against the latter.

Sunshiny Husbands.

We read so much about the obligation laid upon the wife to be a perpetual sun-beam in the house, that a word may not be amiss.

A cheerful atmosphere is important to a happy home life. It is very hard for children to be good when they are exposed to an incessant hail storm of fault-finding from their parents. It is very difficult for a wife to maintain a calm and charmingly sweet demeanor when her husband is critical, cynical or sullen, and takes all her tender efforts with indifferent appreciation.

I know full well the air of polite amazment, or amiable incredulity, with which men receive the statement of a woman's opinion that, in the home partnership, wife and not husband pulls the laboring oar. Still, it is true that, let a man's business be ever so ingrossing, ever so wearisome, ever so laborious, the mere fact that he goes to it in the morning and returns from it at night sets him above his wife in ease and comfort. For him the slavery of routine has its intervals and breaks. He gets a breath of the world outside; he has a change of scene daily; he sees people and hears them talk, and his home is distinctly his refuge and shelter.

Let a wife and mother love her home and her children with the absolute, unswerving devotion, and serve them with the most unselfish fidelity, there are, nevertheless, times when she is very weary.

She knows better than any one else, the steps and the stitches, the same things done over and over, and the pettiness of the trials that come to nursery and kitchen. They are so insignificant that she is ashamed to talk about them, and I fear that she sometimes forgets to tell her Savior how hard they press her, and so, bearing her cross all alone, its weight becomes crushing.

A sunshiny husband makes a merry, beautiful home, worth working in and for. If a man is breezy, cheery, considerate and sympathetic, his wife sings in her heart over her puddings and her mending basket and counts the hours till he returns at night, and renews her youth in the security she feels of his approbation and admiration.

You may think it weak or childish if you please, but it is the admired wife, the wife who hears the words of praise and receives the smiles of commendation, who is capable, discreet and executive. I have seen a timid, meek, self-distrusting little body fairly bloom into into a strong self-reliant womanhood, under the tonic and the cordial of companionship with a husband who really went out of his way to find occasions for showing her how fully he trusted her judgment and how tenderly he deferred to her opinion.

In home life there should be no jar, no striving for place, no insisting on prerogatives, or division of interests. The husband and the wife are each the complement of the other. And it is just as much his duty to be cheerful as it is hers to be patient; his right to bring joy into the door, as it is hers to sweep and garnish the pleasant interior. A family where the daily walk of the father makes life a festival is filled with something like heavenly benediction.—Congregationalist.

"The Cottage Hearth" is the name of a bright little magazine that comes to us from Boston.

Its contents are so interesting, so varied, that no one can fail to find entertainment between its covers. Aside from the literature, both prose and poetry, by popular authors, it contains also a ladies fashion and work department, valuable recipes, two pages of music, sketches and puzzles for the children.

WATCH HIM.

In the Assembly last Wednesday Assemblyman Hunt of Jefferson and Speaker Sheard got by the ears with those two resurrected legislative cranks, Littlejohn and Husted. Earlier in the term Mr. Hunt had introduced a bill for the promotion of instruction in public schools in hygiene and physiology, with special reference to the effect of narcotic and alcholic stimulents on the human system. It is a measure in which the Woman's Temperance Union is specially interested and may be considered as one of the means that the cause of temperance may be enchanced.

Mr. Hunt desired to get the bill before the Assembly on the day in question, because he must be absent on committee work when the bill was likely to come up in its regular order. The bill was reported with the signatures of a majority of the committee having it in charge, but Messrs. Littlejohn and Husted at once set up a fussy quibbling about the regularity of the bill in its turn, and although overruled by the Speaker they succeeded in getting the bill recommitted.

Temperance men who voted for Mr. Littlejohn last fall will do well to watch his course at Albany with a keen eye. There was no good reason why the merits of the bill should not have been passed upon by the Assembly and they would have been, but for the undue opposition of Messrs. Littlejohn and Husted.

DISPATCHES from southern Georgia and Florida report that oats and vegetables have been killed by frost. Oranges and fruit are not seriously damaged.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR was given a reception by the New York Union League Club. It proved to be a brilliant affair.

BURMESE advices admit that the white elephant purchased by Barnum "is white only in a technical sense, being of a light ashen color, with pink splashes."

THE failure of John G. Thompson's Columbus Times, which was an organ merely, is additional proof that party organs whether in tune or not are out of date.

A NUMBER of prominent sporting men have been arrested in Troy, for participating in recent cock fights in that vicinity, among them an ex-canal superintendent and well known hotel keeper.

SIX sites for parks for New York above Harlem river have been favorably reported by the park commission. They embrace 3,800 acres, now worth $2,000 an acre.

A NUMBER of Krupp guns have been landed in Madagascar and sent to Antananarvio, the capital. Arabs have recommenced the slave trade on the west coast of the island where 1,000 African slaves have been landed.

THE New York Times considers the opposition to Roosevelt's city bill, taking from the New York alderman the power of confirming nominations, within the committee, 'a pretty good recommendation for the bill."

THE Governor reports that 449 applications for pardons, &c., were presented during the year 1883. There were thirty-nine pardons, one reprieve and 17 commutations granted. There were 181 applicatons denied, and 211 are now pending.

THE insurance lobby at Albany will look closely after Mr. Haskill's bill which seeks to prohibit fire insurance companies from receiving premiums on risks in excess of the value of the property insured. It provides that in all [illegible] of the total destruction of property by fire, the amount of policy shall be conclusive evidence as to the loss.

THE Cayuga Chief remarks: "Mr. Littlejohn, of the Assembly comes up fresh and smiling from a long retirement from public life, and avows himself a free trader. We remember him as a violent protectionist a few years ago. But political parties must be aw- [illegible] to change oftener than the [illegible] political leader."

THE storehouses for ice along the Hudson are nearly filled with ice. A crop of 2,500,000 tons of superior quality and unusual thickness has been secured. This is half a million tons more than last year.

IT is alleged that D. C. Littlejohn averred on the floor of the Assembly Chamber a few days since that he was a free trader. Certainly, if he is, he is not a true representative of the Republicans of this district.

THE Albany Times in naming New-York's Democratic Presidential timber—among which it excludes Cleveland, Flower, Hewitt, Hoffman and Slocum—says: "And ex-Senator Francis Kernan of Utica would be a candidate full of dignity and popularity, against whom there could be no division."

POLITICAL circles in Pennsylvania are excited over the open stand in favor of Prohibitory legislation taken by ex-Attorney-General Putnam, one of the most able and popular Republican leaders in the center of the State. In a recent address at Wilkesbarre, he took for his subject a suggestive theme, "What it costs to drink whiskey," and announced that Prohibition was in politics and would certainly triumph.

BY an explosion of fire damp in the Crested Buttes coal mine in Gunnison county, Colorado, at 7 o'clock last Thursday morning eleven men who were just entering the mine were thrown back to the entrance by the force of the explosion, and were rescued. One of these was dead and all the others badly injured. Sixty men were in the mine at the time of the explosion and most of their dead bodies have been recovered.

IN 1883, 2,623 buildings were erected in New York, at an estimated cost of $44,304, 048, and 1,870 altered at a cost of $4,540,436. No very costly dwelling house was erected last year, the total estimated cost of the ten highest priced dwellings being $670,630. Of dwellings costing between $20,000 and $50,000, 104 were built, and 369 were built at a cost less than the first figure. Six hotels, 11 churches, 10 places of amusement, and five schools were built in 1883.

THE list of murders in the United States for the past year is given at 2,326. Ohio claims the largest number—169 of these; Illinois next, 157; Wyoming Territory none. Commenting on these figures a cotemporary says: "Is it not singular that one of the frontier territories should have the sole credit of not spilling human blood? Here, however, a woman has a voice in shaping its laws and policy. Is there any argument in this exhibit in favor of equal rights to all?"

ANTHONY COMSTOCK, who has come to be the terror of swindlers, sharpers and other criminals of that ilk in New York city and vicinity, says that in 1877, soon after he made a raid on the lottery dealers, J. M. Pattee, whose scheme of games he had broken up, offered him $20,000 if he would let up on him. He also says that three years ago a lottery man offered to send him on a trip around the world and pay the expenses of himself and family for five years, simply on the condition that he would consent to remain away for that length of time.

SINCE quail have become scarce in the vicinity of New York, many farmers in the adjoining country have become interested in raising them, and have erected large pens or coops on their premises, where the captured birds will be kept till spring and then liberated. A number of well known New York gentlemen, including Pierre Lorillard, Mr. Downing, and T. F. Havemeyer have large reserves on Staten and Long islands and in New Jersey and have bought up hundreds of dozens of quail. During the past week consignments of 10,000 brace of quail have been received by commission merchants in New York.

MEASLES is generally considered a trivial disease but statistics from New York City, for 1883, proves quite the contrary. In the mortality reports from zymotic diseases, measles stands at the head with 3,828 victims; scarlet fever follows with 2,620; then diptheria with 2,090 and typhoid fever with 1,875; then comes cerebro spinal meningitis, with 239 and small-pox, 96. Three thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight graves, most of them little graves, in one city and in a single year! What an array of coffins and shrouds and lifeless forms! Surely measles is not a trivial disease, and this should be realized by both the medical profession and the people.

THE Sun objects to Assemblyman Hunt's bill in reference to the introduction of the studies of hygiene and physiology into public schools on the ground that "Physicians differ so widely as to the effect of narcotics and stimulants taken in properly moderate quantities, that part of Mr. Hunt's bill would be found to be impracticable. The suit for damages which Thomas Delong has commenced against the Oswego County Agricultural Society, is now being tried in Oswego. It will be remembered that on the afternoon of the fair held by the Society in 1882, there was a tremendous storm, the wind blowing a perfect hurricane. During the storm the cupola on one of the buildings was blown down, striking Delong on the side of his head. He claims to have received permanent injuries, and lays his damages at the sum of $5,000. S. N. Dada appears for the plaintiff and M. L. Wright for defendant.—[Mexico Independent. On the trial of the case the plaintiff was non-suited.

In the case of Woods vs. Woods on trial at the Circuit court at Oswego last Judge Huntington and John J. Lamoree are again brought face to face as counsel for either side, and it is safe to say that the case will be sharply contested. That the apathy and distrust that each entertained for the other during the famous Greenfield case, has not in the least died away, says the Oswego Palladium, was made manifest this morning in the selection of the jurymen to try the above case. Almost the first question propounded by Judge Huntington was whether or not the juror is acquainted with Mr. Lamoree, or if the latter has ever done any business for him, and if the witness knows anything about the custom house. If the juror has ever been within gunshot of the collector he is challenged and an application made for his dismissal. On the other hand Mr. Lamoree is equally careful in his questioning of the jurymen.

The Cottage Hearth.

"The Cottage Hearth" is the name of a bright little magazine that comes to us from Boston.

Its contents are so interesting, so varied, that no one can fail to find entertainment between its covers. Aside from the literature, both prose and poetry, by popular authors, it contains also a [illegible] and work department, [illegible]

[illegible] not been seen since.

A family named Jones from Elmira, came recently to Jamestown and were unable to obtain work. They became so destitute that the neighbors gave them money to return. They were ready to go, but in the afternoon the son attempted to pass counterfeit money, was arrested, and false coin amounting to five dollars was found upon him. The family's baggage was searched and countorfeiting apparatus and metals were found. The prisoner says he is a jeweler. The rest of the family are held on suspicion.

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens [illegible], some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resource in art and letters commanded by St. Nicholas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trobridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurice Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Dudley Warner, Joaquin Miller,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is Durham is historic. It was neutral ground during the armistice between Sherman and Johnson. Soldiers of both armies filled their pouches with the tobacco stored there, and, after the surrender, marched homeward. Soon orders came from East, West, North and South, for "more of that elegant tobacco." Then, ten men ran an unknown factory. Now it employs 800 men, uses the pink and pick of the Golden Belt, and the Durham Bull is the trade-mark of this, the best tobacco in the world. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco has the largest sale of any smoking tobacco in the world. Why? Simply because it is the best. All dealers have it. Trade-mark of the Bull.

Rev. Father Wilds'
EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.
Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

AYER'S

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

A. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. [illegible]

[illegible] Water Works a Necessity.

But few persons realize the danger that is at present hovering over the village of Fulton, because it is but little if any greater than it has been under similar circumstances in years gone by.

We refer to the probably disastrous result should a fire break out on most any stormy, windy night in certain localities within the corporation.

Fulton is well equipped as far a fire department is concerned. We have two good steamers, four hose carts, and hook and ladder apparatus. Upon a moment's warning about one hundred skillfully officered and well trained volunteer fire men are ready to man this apparatus and rush to any fire that may be discovered within our corporate limits. With the exception of a need of some six hundred feet of new hose, the department may be said to be in an excellent condition.

But what would it all avail if on some windy night, when fires spread rapidly, an incipient blaze should be discovered in a part of the village distant from the business portion and yet where the houses were closely adjacent to each other. Three or four feet of snow is not the easiest thing in the world through which to drag heavy steamers and hose carts. Besides after they have once arrived at a fire another problem remains to be solved. From where is to come the water? Upon occasion the hose is placed in a large cistern where it can be done conveniently, but just now from one-third to one-half of the cisterns in town are dry.

True, there are three water tanks scattered in various quarters for the use of the fire department. At the corner of Third and Oneida streets there is one, while there is another in the Union Graded School yard and a third is on Sixth street between Oneida and Seneca streets.

With the present amount of snow in the streets a burning building five or six blocks from any of these points would be a smouldering ruin before an engine could be placed in position and hose laid to throw a stream upon it.

To be sure Fulton has not been afflicted with a fire since May last, but no man can foresee the evil hour when we shall receive another visitation and nobody knows how serious it may prove.

There is one safety valve to the danger of which we have spoken and that is a perfect system of water works. It is time we had them. Other towns, smaller in population, of less business enterprise, and possessing inferior natural advantages, have had waterworks long ago and it is time that the citizens of Fulton awoke to their necessity and the company that have taken the matter in hand and propose to inaugurate a system of water works in Fulton as a business venture should receive the hearty co-operation of every property owner. At the coming charter election the question will be placed before the tax payers of the corporation as to whether they will be willing to pay a tax for hydrants at proper intervals for fire purposes, and it does not seem possible that there should be anything but a unanimous vote in favor of a scheme which benefits not merely the community as a whole, but every individual property owner within our borders. An affirmative answer to this proposition on election day will insure the immediate signing of a contract for the construction of the water works and work upon them will be commenced at once. The company do not ask the corporation for a tax for any other purpose than for fire hydrants and if our taxpayers will appropriate one-half of the amount that has been voted in a number of other towns no larger than Fulton for the same purpose the water works will be an assured fact.

Officers Elected.

The Directors of the Water Works Company held a meeting at the office of H. E. Nichols yesterday morning and elected the following officers:

President.—H. E. Nichols,
Vice-President.—J. W. Pratt,
Secretary.—G. S. Piper,

This morning about four o'clock, a man drove up in front of Smith Woodruffe's liquor store and tied his horse and went away. The horse remained there until about nine o'clock when Officer Sweet took charge of him and placed him in Summerville's livery stable. Up till noon the animal had not been called for.

The Fulton Reading Circle grows more popular at every meeting. On Monday evening it convened at the house of Mrs. D. W. Gardner and the largest attendance of the season was present. Able and exhaustive papers on French history were prepared and read by Mrs. C. S. Eggleston and May Gardner. Miss Anna Gilmour contributed to the entertainment of the evening by the reading of a humorous article.

Numerous improvements have been made in the class rooms of the Methodist church during the past fortnight. Partitions have been removed and the four class rooms have been changed into two, and with the new carpets, paper and paint they are now very neat and attractive. The work has been done by the Ladies' Aid Society and the Rev. W. F. Markham has aided with timely suggestions.

One of the pleasantest events of the season occurred at Sons of Temperance hall last Friday evening, the occasion being a social and "surprise" for the benefit of A. L. Hatch and wife, and was greatly enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served, after which a large number of useful and valuable presents were presented to the newly wedded couple, much to their surprise and enjoyment, and after an hour of speeches, music, and congratulations they adjourned with many thanks and kind wishes for all concerned.

The Oswego Falls Reading Circle met at the home of Mrs. E. Waugh last evening. The meeting was opened with music by Mabel Waugh. The reading of the secretary's report followed; also selections by Mrs. Amos Langdon and Nellie Wheeler followed by Miss Gussie Wood. Then came the reading of Shakespeare followed by the queries which were quite interesting. Mr. F. Schenck gave a very interesting talk on the subject of pearls which was indeed quite interesting and instructive. Among the number was Mr. J. C. Wells who also gave an interesting and amusing talk upon different subjects connected with the circle.

HOME NEWS MATTERS.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT.

A Surprise in the Grocery Trade —D. C. Skaden Fails With Liabilities of $7,000.

Yesterday morning Dewitt C. Skaden, a grocery and crockery dealer of this place, made an assignment to Arvin Rice, who closed the store shortly before twelve o'clock. In the assignment Mr. Skaden has preferred the following: W. C. Skaden, Stockbridge, N. Y.; Burns Case and Ezra Hoagland, Oswego Falls, and W. G. Gage, Thomas D. Lewis, Gilbert Bros., E. Schenck & Co., A. E. Nettleton, Schenck & Foster, Pooler & Wilson, J. H. Woodin, of Fulton.

The amount due the preferred creditors is placed at $4,685.

The two first named parties are relatives of the assigner and their preferences are for borrowed money as is that of Mr. Hoagland. It is stated that D. C. Skaden was indebted to W. C. Skaden, his father, to the amount of $1,500.

Among the unpreferred creditors are Crouse & Walrath of Syracuse who have a claim of five hundred dollars; Ostrander, Loomis & Co., whose claim amounts to over $150 and S. R. Pierce, the amount of whose claim is $250.

It is understood that Crouse & Walrath are expected in town with a Supreme court attachment to recover their property.

A party was in town yesterday in the interest of Ostrander, Loomis & Co., and brought an attachment to recover goods to the amount of their bill. The attachment was placed in the hands of Officer Ney. Admission to the store was refused by Assignee Rice but while he was at supper last evening Officer Ney, with the Syracuse firm's Fulton legal advisers, forcibly entered the store and attached six chests of tea, a dozen pails of tobacco and twenty boxes of starch.

This morning S. R. Pierce of Syracuse recovered the amount of their claim with an action of replevin upon the goods.

Mr. Skaden's total liabilities are placed at $7,000.

A Dispute About a Ticket.

In the rush at the door at Stephens Opera House Saturday evening Paul Roderick purchased two twenty-five cent tickets at the box office and presented one to W. J. Abbey, manager of the troupe, who was taking tickets in the stairway leading to the gallery. The price of admission had been fixed at fifty cents for reserved seats, thirty-five for general admission for adults and twenty-five cents for children. The ticket which Roderick handed to Abbey was a child's ticket, but owing to the pressure of the crowd Abbey was unable to detain Roderick. A moment later, however, he rushed up two or three steps and caught hold of Roderick's coat and the latter was conducted down stairs where some complimentary language was exchanged between the two men, Abbey calling Roderick a dirty loafer and Roderick inviting Abbey down stairs to fight. Roderick was told to go to the box office and get the price of his ticket which he did and went out. On Monday morning Abbey was arrested at the instance of Roderick and tried before Police Justice Piper, who discharged him, taking the ground that both parties had acted in good faith and that under the circumstances Abbey's action could not be considered in the light of an assault.

Ontario & Western.

The New York, Ontario and Western Railroad Company is extricating itself from its embarrassment, growing out of the application for a receiver by Conrad N. Jordan. Argument was had in the matter before Judge Wallace in Syracuse yesterday and a further adjournment was taken. It is thought that the matter will be amicably adjusted without further legal proceedings. A gentleman connected with the courts said to a Syracuse Herald reporter yesterday that "It is understood that committees have been appointed from the New York Ontario & Western, the North River Construction and the New York, West Shore and Buffalo companies to arrange the whole matter in which the three companies are interested." The employees of the company in Oswego who were getting anxious for their money, were paid off last week.

County papers have been taking undue liberties with the name of P. F. Conger in connecting him with a suit against the Odd Fellows lodge at Phoenix. Mr. P. F. He never was an Odd Fellow and desires our esteemed contemporaries to desist from bandying his name about in connection with the above mentioned suit.

The Lyceum of last winter was reorganized at the office of G. V. Emens on Friday evening. The Lyceum will meet regularly on Monday evenings. Next Monday evening Fred Bennett will occupy the chair, the question for debate being: "Resolved, That the contract labor systems of our prisons should be abolished." Dr. W. L. Woodbury is the chief disputant for the affirmative, while E. R. Redhead will lead the debate in the negative.

Last week Mayor Boyle, principal keeper of Auburn prison, visited the Rome jail where Charles Loiselle, the burglar, is confined. Mayor Boyle recognized Loiselle as an old offender. He was sentenced from Erie county in 1878 on two charges of grand larceny, receiving five years for one and three years for the other. His term of imprisonment expired by commutation last June. Mayor Boyle will testify before the grand jury and will probably be instrumental in giving Loiselle the full extent of the law.

The C. L. S. C. of lower Oswego Falls met at the home of Miss Alice Schenck on Monday evening. After the report of the Secretary an exercise in pronunciation, with words defined, was given. An essay on Emerson, by Miss Stoughton, followed by selections from that author. An account of the life and work of Margaret Fuller was given by Mrs. Mead, followed by a selection, entitled "Father Taylor of Boston" by Mrs. Henry Schenck. Incidents with illustrations of some American authors were related by O. J. Jennings and Mrs. Hewitt. An interesting account of Oliver Cromwell from his birth until the close of his career was given by S. B. Mead, together with a selection from "Walter Scott" by Mr. Jennings, to which was added a choice bit of Scottish history.

Table, Bracket, and Hanging Lamps [illegible]

On Friday evening Rev. J. S. Riggs delivered a very entertaining and instructive address before the members of the [illegible] in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Riggs' subject was "A Glimpse at German Universities." He drew a comparison between the University's of Germany and those of America, explaining minutely the difficulties of obtaining admission to the German institutions. The lecture was attentively listened to throughout, not only by a large number of teachers but by many of Mr. Riggs' parishioners and others, the lecture room being completely filled and the church parlors partially so.

The Teacher's Association met on Saturday morning in the chapel of the Union Graded School and was well attended by both teachers and school patrons. Commissioner Parkhurst called the meeting to order at ten o'clock, after which "Drifting toward the Golden Shore," was sung by the choir under Mr. Cooper's direction; reading of Scripture lesson and prayer by Prof. Boothby, followed. Several selections were then sung by a large class of little ones from the Primary Department of the Union Graded School. This exercise received the warmest applause.

Mr. Parkhurst then extended an urgent invitation to the teachers to come to his home for a sociable on February 22d, promising them that an examination should not form a part of the entertainment.

A class exercise in reading was given by Miss Jessie Kimball. She commenced by drawing a picture on the board, asking the children what she was drawing. Some thought that a bear was being produced; others a fox; but as the picture enlarged the children saw a cat appear before them. They very enthusiastically displayed their knowledge of the actions of cats and as the sentence which they gave was placed upon the board they were requested to watch the chalk talk. Then they pointed out many of the words upon the board, spelling some of them, after which they wrote the sentence on their slates. Little slips containing new stories were distributed to the class and they were requested to study them. As they were able to read, the little hands went up and they soon mastered the new lesson and read very nicely. The lesson was well given and the audience was enthusiastic in its admiration of Miss Kimball's method.

A few moments were devoted to questions and a discussion of the methods now used in teaching reading was followed by music, "Far in the Beautiful Blue" being furnished by the choir.

Miss Sisson gave a class exercise in geography and questions upon the map of South America were given the class while a boy was drawing a map of the continent on the board before the pupils. They wrote on their slates lists of the mountains, rivers, capes, etc., thus making sure of the difficult names; they also pointed out places on the map giving some good descriptions. Another map had also been made, very nicely, by the children with colored crayon.

At 12:30 the Association adjourned. The afternoon session was called to order at two o'clock, and all were glad to listen to singing of several good selections by the children of the Intermediate Department.

Miss Doubleday read an essay,—"A visit to the House of Representatives," the description being clear and we were introduced to some of the leading men, Judge Hoar, Sherman and others, who were present at the time.

"Science in the Common Schools" was treated by Prof. Boothby. He said his desire was to throw out a few hints that the public school teachers might be enabled to introduce more experiments into their work. He then gave an experiment illustrating atmospheric pressure. He explained the origin of the man in the moon, illustrated the movements of the earth and moon and showed the true shape of the latter. Tornadoes and hailstones were next explained and sleet shown to be frozen rain, whereas hail was not. The exercise was closed with an experiment, the formation of ice, proving that evaporation is a cooling process.

A short intermission was then given. "The Present Crisis," by Lowell, was read by Miss Celia Shea; the selection was full of excellent thoughts and was well read. The last fifteen minutes were devoted to a query box.

Prof. Boothby moved that a vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Riggs for his very finished and able address of Friday evening, before the teachers. The motion was amended to include those who had entertained, Mr. Cooper for his kind services in supplying music, also the children who had taken part and all who had in any way rendered assistance to the Association. The motion was carried unanimously.

I have been using Allcock's Porous [illegible]

[illegible] the plea under the circumstances and the Court advised [illegible] North was then arraigned and pleaded guilty to petit larceny. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or be imprisoned 100 days.

This outcome of the case will cause some surprise in this vicinity, as a representative of the Oswego Falls Manufacturing Company has stated upon several occasions that North would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Of the other arraignments the following are of local interest:

Henry Hovey, a retired Baptist clergyman pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, and was held to bail in the sum of $600 for the sessions.

Dennis Carey, for rape on Hannah Agnes Kelly January 1, 1884, pleaded not guilty. Bail fixed at $1,000 for his appearance at the May sessions.

German Dingman, indicted for burglary in the third degree in the town of Granby, pleaded not guilty.

Experience of a Juryman.

C. R. Nichols, who was foreman of the late Grand Jury which sat in Oswego, avers that he is pleased with his experience and served not because he was obliged to as he is exempt from jury duty—being an active fireman, but from a sense of his duty as a citizen and from desire to gain knowledge of the ways of the jury room.

"It is not a very paying birth for the country jurymen, at least," said Mr. Nichols a day or two since, "but the Oswego city members apparently considered it a fat thing. As soon as we had organized they attempted to rush through a motion for two sessions per day of two hours each. This would have made an all-winter's job of it. We finally fixed upon a basis of six working hours per day. Last Friday, too, the city members tried to throw the session over into this week, after we had nearly completed our work, by moving an adjournment to Saturday, when they knew we could not report upon that day, as the judge would be absent from the city, but the country members again defeated them and the judge took our report on Friday evening." The remuneration of grand jurymen is two dollars per day, with an allowance of five cents per mile, for one trip to Oswego and return. Mr. Nichols states that the grand jury considered thirty-two cases and presented nineteen indictments.

BRANDETH'S PILLS

They are compounded of Roots, Herbs and Gums of the most healing and beneficial kind.

As a Family Medicine they are unrivalled, curing Head-ache, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia—clearing the blood of all impurities—acting on the Liver, Kidneys and other important organs, removing the waste tissue, and adding years to the lives of all who use them.

For fifty years they have been used by the American public, and their constantly increasing sales show how they are appreciated.

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three years of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weaknes I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhoea; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of The Sun have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Sun printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race [illegible] thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

Rev. Father Wilds'

EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

Messrs. J. C. Ayer & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the Sarsaparilla, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. Wilds."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

Durham is historic. It was neutral ground during the armistice between Sherman and Johnson. Soldiers of both armies filled their pouches with the tobacco stored there, and, after the surrender, marched homeward. Soon orders came from East, West, North and South, for "more of that elegant tobacco." Then, ten men ran an unknown factory. Now it employs 800 men, uses the pink and pick of the Golden Belt, and the Durham Bull is the trade-mark of this, the best tobacco in the world. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco has the largest sale of any smoking tobacco in the world. Why? Simply because it is the best. All dealers have it. Trade-mark of the Bull.

How Watch Cases are Made.

A plate of solid gold 14 2-10 karats fine is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this plate the various parts of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 14, 1880.

I have used one of your James Boss' Gold Watch Cases for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good for ten years longer. Did not suspect it was a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and more.

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. THE NEW PATENT

Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"Valdosta, Georgia, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"Clinton, Iowa, April 10, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

[illegible] severe winters.

Do not feed corn to the bucks, but give them plenty of oats and keep them out of storms. The best flock masters put the bucks by themselves at night. The lambs will be stronger.

To show how cold weather affects cows an intelligent dairy farmer mentions a case where a herd of cows, which had usually been supplied from troughs and pipes to the stalls, were, on account of an obstruction in the pipes, obliged to be turned out twice a day, while the weather was cold, to be watered in the yard. The quantity of milk instantly decreased, and in three days the falling off became very considerable. After the pipes were mended, and the cows again watered as before in their stalls the flow of milk returned. Cows when giving milk are more sensitive to the cold than when they are dry, and exposure to severe cold interferes with the secretion of milk.

There are 10,000 miles of railway in India.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

AYER'S

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. P. Bricher writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. Bowen, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

Mr. Angus Fairbairn, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

Mrs. O. A. Prescott, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using Ayer's Hair Vigor the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

The following will be some of the leading contributors:

[illegible] in the direction of [illegible] asked Mrs. Wilton [illegible] young lady appeared [illegible] for a walk.

"[illegible] lazy," Nellie answered in [illegible] tone; "the fields look so [illegible] the view of my window and [illegible] with a desire to wander at [illegible] among their beauties, and so have [illegible] my broad hat and heavy shoes [illegible] regard to appearances."

Mrs. Wilton glanced at the pure white dress set off with cardinal ribbons, the broad hat with its knot of wild flowers, shading a sweet, Hebe-like face, and lastly the small feet, whose shapely symmetry no shoes could disguise, and a thrill of admiration warmed her sisterly heart.

"She is very pretty and, what is much better, she has a true, noble nature," she thought as she gazed after her graceful form; and all unconscious of her sister's praise, Nellie ran down the garden walk, and once free of the grounds and observation, broke into the carol of a happy child as she wandered from hedge to hedge, seeking and finding new blossoms at every turn.

Occupied in this way, and taking little heed of the direction in which she went, Nellie was suddenly brought to a standstill by a sound that to her timid ear was blood curdling.

A great cow, which she had approached unobserved, had, when only a few paces from her, lifted its head and uttered a prolonged—and to poor Nellie a terrifying—bellow. A faint answer came back from the distant pasture fields; whereupon the bovine with a satisfied air began cropping industriously a few spears of grass growing in the neighborhood of a stone and lime wall in the vicinity.

Nellie Ashton's one weakness was a terror of cows. She looked on them as her natural enemies, and although heartily ashamed of the cowardice this aversion entailed, was quite unable to overcome it. The sight of one of these mild animals peacefully grazing at a safe distance inspired her with unreasonable fear, and their presence in the green clover fields interfered with her intense love of nature.

Never before had she encountered the objectionable animal in close quarters, and fright for a moment arrested her footsteps. She drew a long breath and tried to still the quick wild beating of her heart.

"If I run it will chase me," was her first thought, and then came the happy conclusion, "I will mount the wall: its top is broad enough to walk on, and, thank Heaven, cows cannot climb."

A moment more her resolution was in practice. She had gained the elevation and was in safety, but not content until distance stretched between herself and the obnoxious animal, she hurried along the precarious walk without noticing its gradual ascent, and only paused when she could look back securely on her past danger, and meditate at leisure on the perverse and evil nature of cows in general.

"It stands there pretending to crop the grass," she thought as she watched it moving about in the spare herbage; but I know it's planning how to attack me. O dear! I suppose they are necessary to people's comfort, for milk and all that, but for my part I think such dangerous creatures should be confined somewhere."

She had reached that part of her soliloquy when, chancing to glance down the road, her eye caught sight of her brother-in-law taking a short cut across the fields from the car station to his summer home. Under these circumstances the presence of this gentleman, who was much given to teasing would have been quite sufficient. The appearance of a stranger added to Nellie's embarrassment, and she immediately prepared to spring lightly to the ground before they could join her, when, to her alarm, she discovered that she was at least twelve feet above it.

The wall she had been following in her eagerness to escape from [illegible] formed the base of a sloping [illegible] and [illegible] gradually in its progress [illegible] until its height [illegible] formidable.

"What shall [illegible] Nellie, "If I jump down I [illegible] my neck. If I [illegible] there [illegible] malignant cow her horrid horns just set for me."

Harry was fast approaching. There was nothing left but resignation, and [illegible] how her heavy boots must [illegible] she dropped from sheer exhaustion.

[illegible] Wilton and his companion [illegible] talking gayly, he for the [illegible] became aware of the presence [illegible] above them.

[illegible] in gen- [illegible] up [illegible] a lad- [illegible] young [illegible]

[illegible] might have [illegible] but Harry's high spirit came to the rescue.

"Pray assist Miss Ashton to alight while I vanquish her enemy," he cried "and then we'll go home across the fields together to where my wife is anxiously awaiting my arrival."

Under pretence of protecting them from further danger he seized a broken branch fallen by the wayside, and went in advance flourishing it, and leaving the newly made acquaintances to follow. Never before had Nellie found conversation such a difficult art. She sought in vain for something appropriate to say, but the truth was, her sensitive mind shrank from recalling the absurd position she had occupied. She glances secretly at her handsome cavalier, whom Harry had always described as the embodiment of all that was noble, true and manly, and felt that he must regard with contempt a silly, nervous creature such as she, without courage or self command enough to conceal her idle fears.

Beyond monosylables she could not control her speech but he talked freely.

"Harry stole a march on me by getting married when I was in Europe," he said. "I went there with my little sister, as well as to perfect my own medical studies. She was a delicate child then, but is now a blooming young lady, and my journey east is to meet and take her to my western home, her education being completed at last."

Finding Nellie still silent beyond a murmuring assent, he went to say that he and his young sister Clara were orphans, and that her delicate childhood had been his tenderest care. "Indeed, I think I chose my profession of medicine to watch over her more ably; but now, thank Heaven, she is as robust as I could wish, and needs no doctor's skill."

As he said this, they reached the cottage door where Kate Wilton stood ready to meet and welcome them, having been apprised by telegram of her guest's arrival.

That evening would have been one of unalloyed delight to Nellie Ashton, but for a preconceived and eradicable idea. She was convinced that her first appearance in Dr. Raymond's eyes had stamped her a weak, contemptible character, and as every moment spent in his society increased her admiration and regard for him, this conviction grew into absolute pain.

Mr. Wilton truly valued his lovely young sister-in-law, and to see her united to the friend of his soul had long been the dominant wish of his heart.

This propitious meeting, for such it seemed to him, was the very thing to bring his darling project about, and while in his high good humor he continued to tease Nellie on her escape of the day before, he never dreamed of the exquisite pain he inflicted on the sensitive beauty.

His wife, with woman's tact, hurried the conversation on to Arthur's sister, and proposed that she and Nellie should accompany him on the next visit to the city and bring her out to Fernly, as their lovely country seat was called.

"Clara will be delighted, I can answer for that," Arthur responded gratefully. "I was going to beg Miss Ashton to take an interest in her, and your kindness meets my fondest hopes."

A lovely blush of pleasure suffused Nellie's cheeks at the thought of being a friend to Arthur's sister. Oh, could he think her worthy of the place; she had always—she felt convinced—appeared in her very worst light to him, and no matter how she tried, she could never in her own opinion, retrieve the silliness of their first meeting.

Clara Raymond was a warm hearted, impulsive creature, like her brother in many ways, and she and her new friend became attached from the first moment of their meeting. With all the enthusiastic ardor of such a nature she hailed her escape from control at school; and she spent her first day at Fernly in sporting among the flowers like a butterfly, challenging her grave, but happy brother to run races with her, and gamboling with Psyche, Mr. Wilton's favorite dog, until Nellie, who for once had thrown aside her reserve in Arthur's presence, and joined in her gaiety, begged her fond anxiety to rest awhile, lest she should exhaust herself.

Nellie's forethought was not unheeded; next day Clara did not arise from bed. She had a severe chill followed by a terrible headache, and pains so severe that she could not repress her moans.

Nellie had been with her from the first complaint and now never left her. The third day, after a careful examination of the case, Dr. Raymond dispatched a note to town for another physician and called Nellie Ashton from the room. As they stood together face to face he was far the paler and more perturbed of the two. It was true that Nellie's blooming beauty had undergone a chastening change in the past few days; a deep and earnest purpose marked the expression of her lovely face, and in her dark eyes shone a sweet and holy light that touched the young doctor as never beam from woman's eye had done before.

[illegible] tried to speak, but the words [illegible]

[illegible] ghost of a smile flitted across Nellie's pale face.

"My life is in God's hands, Dr. Raymond," she replied. "If it is lost to me in usefulness, I shall die well."

"No, no," said Dr. Raymond, rousing himself to duty, "it must not be, it shall not be. We have no right to demand such a sacrifice. I will see Mrs. Wilton and procure a hired nurse."

For an instant Nellie lost her timidity; she drew close to Arthur and laid her hand on his arm. "I have written to my sister; she knows all and consents to my course. Already all communication is cut off from the lower floor, and these two airy rooms are left to the patient and me. Do not talk of a stranger, a hireling, when you know your sister's sensitive life would sink beneath the consciousness of desertion by those she loves. No, no; you cannot move me. My place is here."

And there it was. The startled, easily frightened Nellie, at whom her her brother jested so constantly, was so suddenly transformed into a quiet heroine with a task before her from which many a stout heart would have shrunk and quailed, for Clara Raymond's disease was of the virulent type, and not only days but weeks passed while that slender life hung on a thread.

"I am ill," she confessed to Arthur, "but for Heaven's sake do not let Kate come near me. She cannot afford to risk her life; it would break Harry's heart to lose her."

And yet you risked yours," cried Arthur, completely broken down, while tears stood in his manly eyes.

"Yes, but I can be spared," she murmured softly.

"No, no!" he cried in uncontrollable emotion, you cannot, you shall not; you are all the world to me, you dear, noble, brave hearted girl, and please God, I will live or die with you."

In after years when Nellie Ashton was his happy, honored wife, Arthur Raymond could not recall, without intense emotion, the single-handed struggle he held with death for that fair prize.

Foreseeing her own illness and dreading that her sister would try and reach her. Nellie had written to and secured an excellent nurse for herself, and with the help of this good woman and her lover's skill the fell disease was conquered and the blooming Hebe rose from the infected couch, a pale, haggard woman, who was still to be an invalid, while Clara was fresh and buoyant, as if no scourge had ever laid her low.

But she regained all her lost beauty in time, at least in her lover's eyes, who declared that she was prettier than ever.

"Yes, prettier than the day when I first fell in love with you, perched on that high stone fence in a white dress and bright ribbons."

"Oh, that dreadful day," she cried laughing, "when I thought you despised me for being a coward."

The Editor's Wife.

[Read at the Annual Banquet of Chicago Press Club.]

No eloquent thought and no flowery word,
That the most of you, listening enraptured, have heard,
Could allure me from viands so temptingly spread
That I've missed the extempore speeches you've read.
But my heart beats responsive to one theme divine—
The woman we drink to in bumpers of wine;
So I throw down my napkin, my fork and my knife,
To speak to the toast of "The Editor's wife."

And of course you'll agree—since our wives are all here
To brighten the scene and partake of our cheer—
That the best of all angels kind heaven has sent
To bring a man sympathy, peace and content,
To aid in his joys and to lessen his woes,
To sew on his buttons and patch up his hose,
And to smooth out the kinks and the wrinkles of life.
Is the idol we worship—the editor's wife.

When the editor comes from his office at night
At a very late hour in a dubious plight,
The impression prevails and the story is told
That an editor's wife can be almost cajoled
With a fib about "bridges" and "broken-down press;"
But we who have been there are free to confess
That when husbands are late and suspicions are rife.
It is best to own up to the editor's wife.

All such fables are cruel and men are unkind
To libel a sex of such generous mind,
A sex who economizes all through the year
That we may afford to exhibit them here
The woman who [illegible] patiently wait
For the [illegible]
For all the wild joys [illegible] of life,
A banquet [illegible] the editor's wife.

FASHION NOTES.

Girls' sailor suits are made of dark blue serge and trimmed with ecru-colored woolen braids.

Among evening shades may be mentioned sea-green, corn-flower blue, and apple-blossom pink.

Colored plush mats and fancy picture frames may be popular, but are no longer fashionable.

Red Spanish lace is always fashionable, but the imitation is not worn so much this season as last.

There is a growing tendancy in fashionable circles to shorten the extravagant length of dress gloves.

The new and lovely little theatre bonnets of black velvet and white tulle, embroidered with pearls, are worn without strings.

Japanese scarfs, lately brought out, are rapidly gaining favor. The scarfs are a perfect reproduction of those worn by Japanese women to fasten their tunics.

Young ladies wear golden brown cashmere dresses, with a dull red cashmere vest fastened by a row of buttons on each side. The vest passes underneath the basque part.

A new and graceful wrap for little girls is a long pelisse gathered full in front and fastened with a sash which encircles the waist and ties in a bow in the back. A high-shouldered cape is generally worn with this pelisse, and both are bordered with fur or fur plush.

A costume of ivory white Lyons velvet is hand wrought with globular pearls in pansies as large as the palm of the hand, which form the border at the bottom of the tablier, the edges of the pansies being finished in relief and cut so as to form irregular scollops, beneath which peep a dozen rows of Brussels net, laid in box plaits two inches wide.

An Eye Single to Business.

When the defendant took the stand his Honor said:

"Prisoner, you are charged with having removed the goblet from the hand of the Cogswell statute, substituting a pair of two-bit suspenders, with a placard calling attention to your establishment across the way."

"Well, Shudge," replied the offender with an ingratiating smile, "of gorse I vants to get along in peesness."

"After which," continued the judge sternly, "you substituted a lot of neckties for the suspenders, and attached to the other hand a lot of bills referring to your new stock of gum shoes and hair oil."

"Dose hair oil is fust rate, your Honor," said the defendant, "I vould like to sell you a pottle."

"And yesterday, continued the Court, consulting the indictment, "you obstructed the thoroughfares and created a disturbance by placing a paper collar and a plug hat on the statue in question."

"Dose blug hats is cheap at $4, Shudge. Moses Levy sharges fife and a half vor dem same kind," returned the trader cheerfully; I beat dose fellers efery dimes."

"And at night," went on his Honor, "at night it appears you place in the figure's hand a transparency containing a further advertisement of your wares. Now, this is most improper and reprehensible."

"Dot's right, shudge," said Mr. Solomon's delightedly, "bitch into me, off you blease. "Shpeak loudt, so dose noosbaper vellers gan hear you," and he smiled benignantly upon the reporters.

"Great Heavens!" thundered the Court, as a frightful idea struck him. "Is it possible you have the audacity to use the machinery of this Court as an advertising dodge!"

"Dot's it, dot's it, Shudge," exclaimed the Cheap John, rubbing his hands exultantly. "I svore oud der gomplaint myself?"—[San Francisco Post.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Girard College will not hereafter lease any property to be used for bar-room purposes.

Maine, under her Prohibitory law, has one convict in its penitentiary to each 1,[illegible] of its population. California, under license, has one convict to every 600 of its population, and yet we are told prohibition is a failure.

The Temperance reform is making headway in Germany. It is enlisting the co-operation of many of the most influential men—physicians, ministers, lawyers, judges, state attorneys, and men from all stations in life. Gen. Von Moltke is at the head of the movement.

Cornell, a town in Livingston County, Ill., during a dram-shop rule of ten years paid a pauper bill of $1,100 a year. Then it changed to prohibition, and at the end of four years the pauper expense was reduced to $3.50, which was paid for medicine. Yet some people claim that prohibition don't pay.

Francis Murphy, the originator of the Blue Ribbon movement, has inaugurated a new pledge, the badge of which is a blue ribbon with a white line running up the centre, signifying in addition to the ordinary pledge, abstinance from, or, in case of females, opposition to the use of tobacco and all other narcotics.

How saloon and anti-temperanceites would howl if they were obliged to go to a church to cast their votes on election day. They would prate about their liberties being restricted, and yet Christain and Temperance men in many cities of this State were obliged to go to a brewery or saloon if they voted at all, and cast their votes last election day. This is a disgrace to civilization.

"Nasby" has recently been through Maine, and writes the Blade that he is entirely satisfied that "prohibition does prohibit." Of certain villagers he says: "They go to Portland, a distance of six miles, and buy a jugful of rum. They leave their wagon in the open country at the outskirts of the village, and wait till long after nightfall to make their way across lots to their homes with the contraband stuff. Their customers drop in one at a time, and take their drinks in the kitchen, where it is concealed. There are no crowds of men about a bar, one to invite the other. The men go for the drink alone, and their drinks they take by themselves. In the very nature of the case they dare not go in parties. Two dare not enter together. To separate, to isolate the drinkers, is to kill drinking for anybody except those in whom the appetite is too strong to be resisted."

HE NEEDS WATCHING.

Mr. Littlejohn made himself obnoxious to the laboring classes in the Legislature last week by opposing a bill regulating the hours of labor of the Street Car conductors and drivers of New York. The Sun says that he "took a sentimental tack and talked of the glorious liberty enjoyed by the American workingmen, and of the free opportunity a man had of going to the boundless prairies of the great West if he wasn't satisfied with his hours." This is precisely what might be expected of a free trader, for such Mr. Littlejohn has announced himself to be. This class of men hold to the obnoxious doctrine that the labor market should be governed by the law of supply and demand. We have a little curiosity to know, too, just how a man living in New York and working from fourteen to eighteen hours per day for from $1.50 to $2 is going to accumulate enough to land him upon the "boundless praires of the great West." He would die of starvation and exhaustion before he could migrate.

Corporations are creatures of the State and the legislature has a right to regulate their dealings with the public and their employes, even to the fixing of the hours of labor and the rate of wages.

The Knights of Labor, as well as the temperance organizations, will need to keep an eye on Mr. Littlejohn.

SIX persons were killed in a railroad accident near Indianapolis last Wednesday.

BY an explosion of gasolene eight persons came to their deaths at Alliance, Ohio, last Friday.

THE supreme court of Iowa decides that a wife deserted by her husband, without her fault, and left with no means of providing for her family of young children, has authority to sell the personal property of her husband to obtain money.

MR. ALEXANDER, the colored cadet at West Point, has made a creditable start in his career. On the January showing there are but eight men above him in his class, against ninety-one below. He is also really not only No. 9 out of 141, the latter being the number originally enrolled.

A YOUNG theological student in Washington applied for and received a place on the laborers' roll. He was ordered to do some scrubbing but refused, on the ground that he wanted some place where he would have nothing to do but "support the constitution" and draw his pay.

THE Utica Herald comments as follows: "The ladies of the government circle are in a belligerent state of mind, all because the President gave Mrs. Carlyle the place of first lady on New Year's day. Mrs. Justice Miller is as mad as a March hare—which is understood to be the maddest kind of a mad creature—because she was stationed below Mrs. Speaker at a recent reception. REPRESENTATIVE Morrison of Illinois introduced his tariff bill in the House Monday morning. A reduction of 20 per cent. is made in numerous articles, while in a few cases the reduction is greater or less than that rate. One provision prevents any reduction to a rate lower than in the Morrill act of 1861.

THIS is a phenomenally good winter for the lumberman in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and work is progressing with a rush and confidence unknown to recent seasons. There are neither bad roads or bare ground to hinder logging, and the men say it only needs continuous cold weather to see a larger output of logs than has been secured for many years. We are glad there are people who can appreciate this kind of weather.

THE annual report of Mr. Ruggles, superintendent of public instruction of this state, shows that there was an increase of only twenty-one in the attendance upon the public schools during the last year, although the number attending is over a million. There has been a decrease of 3,300 children attending public schools since 1874, and last year 644,011 of school age did not attend at all. What has become of our compulsory education law?

A DEPUTATION of Indians representing the various tribes of the Six Nations, have gone to Washington to press upon the consideration of congress, their claim against the government for $200,000 or $300,000 which they insist is due them out of the proceeds of the sale of certain Kansas lands, ceded to the New York Indians many years ago. The Indians propose, should their claim be recognized, to use the funds for the building and endowment of an industrial school, to be located at Salamanca.

INGERSOLL has hitherto passed for an honest man and a good citizen, even with those who most, deplored his religious ideas. A Disciple minister of New York, Rev. Clark Braden, has prepared a pamphlet in which he charges Ingersoll with being untruthful, a sharer of dishonest gains, a former pro-slavery Democrat who was converted to Republicanism and anti-slavery by patronage, a drunkard, a filthy talker, etc. Mr. Braden asserts that he can prove every charge by witnesses of undoubted standing, and that he has now in his possession documentary proof that they are true. We can only say that if they are not true, Ingersoll owes it to himself and the community to prosecute the author of the pamphlet for libel. Such charges should not be circulated with impunity if they are false.

THE uniform school book bill introduced in the Ohio legislature provides for a state school board composed of the govenor, secretary of state, auditor of state, attorney general and state school commissioner, whose duty it shall be to select from the school books coming before them under the provisions of the bill "those that shall be the cheaper and best adapted for use in the schools of Ohio." For the purpose of securing material from which the selections is to be made, advertisements are to be published inviting sealed proposals for furnishing a complete series of school books for use in the common schools of the state. The state board is to open the proposals and select "the books, offered at the lowest price." The books, when selected are to be exclusively in use for the ensuing five years. The state board is directed to fix the retail price for each book at not over 10 per cent. advance on the publishers' accepted offer. This retail price is to be printed on the cover of each book, and a penalty of from $5 to $30 for each offence is imposed on every person selling the book for more than the printed rate. Why would not this plan work admirably in the state of New York? Parents are often at considerable annoyance and expense by being compelled to buy entire sets of new school books in removing from one town to another and sometimes from one district to another.

WENDELL PHILLIPS, died Saturday evening at his home in Boston, after a painful illness of a week's duration. He was last seen upon the streets on January 25, when he spoke of his failing strength, but did not complain of illness. His address a month ago at the unveiling of the Harriet Martineau statue proved a severe strain on his mental and physical powers, and he told his friends his platform days were over. Wendell Phillips was born on November 29, 1811. His father was John Phillips, the first mayor of Boston. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1831 and admitted to the bar in 1834, but did not follow his profession long, he soon engaging in the discussion of the slavery question, which was then becoming uppermost in men's minds. He was from [illegible]

[illegible] So omitting general descriptions of scenery, we will write more particularly of our immediate locality; of a little town, high up among the mountains, nearly one hundred miles west of Denver. The altitude of Alma, 10,500 feet, is sufficient to distinguish it. One might well think we were near the top, did not Mount Bross and Mount Lincoln tower hundreds, yes, thousands of feet above us. Still Alma is one of the highest towns in the United States.

The ordinary "tender foot" finds difficulty in adjusting his breathing apparatus to the thin air. During the first few weeks of his sojourn, he finds that slight exertion causes palpitation of the heart, rush of blood to the head, dizziness, &c. Until the unpleasant sensations disappear he is apt to think Colorado a delusion and a snare.

The view here is limited, as we are fairly walled in by mountains and one of the foot hills of Silver-heels. The latter would be considered a mountain in the east. But covered as it is to the summit with timber, it is but a dwarf beside Bross; for Bross snow-capped and beautiful, extends three thousand feet above timber-line.

All the neighboring mountains contain mines of more or less value. Producing gold, silver, lead, copper, iron, &c. Just across the narrow stream of the Platte is a gold mine, known as the Alma Placer mine, the California method of washing the gold being in use.

There are many odd things here, from the college graduate in overalls and the banker in a blue flannel shirt, to a jack train. We frequently see them (the jacks, not the graduates) loaded with lumber on their way up the mountain. Sometimes as many as six boards are strapped to each side of the jack; one end projecting upward far beyond his ears, the other end grating along on the ground. So loaded they resemble great grasshoppers with wooden wings. They wear a docile, meditative air that enlists our sympathy, and we disbelieve the report of their obstinancy. We recall Mark Twain's experience in the Holy land and wish we might see it repeated.

We recently met a gentleman from Kansas who mentioned Dr. Shaw, a former Fulton druggist, and who also inquired about Ford Morris.

We hear Mr. Stone, a young minister from New York, frequently spoken of. He spent about eight months in Alma, and is believed to be now in the northern part of the State. An examination of his photograph proved him to be a friend of Rev. James Riggs, who occupied the Presbyterian pulpit several times last summer.

Very few people seem to regard Alma as a permanent home. The usual questions to a new comer are, "Where do you come from," "How long will you stay."

The Pacific coast is spoken of as familiarly as the Atlantic. New Orleans, Boston, New York, St. Louis and San Francisco are represented, as well as foreign lands. The Chinese have quarters in Fairplay, a neighboring town, but are not allowed to enter Alma. Last Sunday, the 27th, was the Chinese New Year.

The town here is very quiet. No lynching since 1880. Previous to that shooting affairs were common.

The intimation that we have no men in Oswego county big enough for congress will never be made again. There is Hon. Warner Miller, U. S. senator, born in this county. Hon. Newton Nutting was born at West Monroe, and Hon. Charles R. Skinner was born at Union Square, both members of Congress and born in Oswego county.—[Palladium.

ALLCOCK'S.

[illegible] that he had looked into the future world and yet returned to this. A representative from this paper has interviewed him on this important subject and his experiences are given to the public for the first time. He said:

"I had been having most peculiar sensations for a long while. My head felt dull and heavy; my eyesight did not seem so clear as formerly; my appetite was uncertain and I was unaccountably tired. It was an effort to rise in the morning and yet I could not sleep at night. My mouth tasted badly, I had a faint all-gone sensation in the pit of my stomach that food did not satisfy, while my hands and feet felt cold and clammy. I was nervous and irritable, and lost all enthusiasm. At times my head would seem to whirl and my heart palpitated terribly. I had no energy, no ambition, and I seemed indifferent of the present and thoughtless of the the future. I tried to shake the feeling off and persuade myself it was simply a cold or a little malaria. But it would not go. I was determined not to give up, and so time passed along and all the time I was getting worse. It was about this time that I noticed that I had began to bloat fearfully. My limbs were swollen so that by pressing my fingers upon them deep depressions could be made. My face also began to enlarge, and continued to until I could scarcely see out of my eyes. One of my friends described my appearance at that time, said: 'It is an animated something, but I should like to know what.' In this condition I passed several weeks of the greatest agony."

"Finally on Saturday night it culminated. Nature could endure no more. I became irrational and apparently insensible. Cold sweat gathered on my forehead; my eyes became glazed and my throat rattled. I seemed to be in another sphere with other surroundings. I knew nothing of what occurred around me, although I have since learned that it was considered as death by those who stood by. It was to me a quiet state, and yet one of great agony. I was helpless, hopeless and pain was my companion. I remember trying to see what was beyond me, but the mist before my eyes was too great. I tried to reason, but I had lost all power. I felt that it was death, and realized how terrible it was. At last the strain upon my mind gave away and all was a blank. How long this continued I do not know, but at last I realized the presence of friends and recognized my mother. I then thought it was earth, but was not certain. I gradually regained consciencenesss however, and the pain lessened. I found that my friends had during my unconsciousness, been giving me a preparation I had never taken before, and the next day, under the influence of this treatment, the bloating began to disappear and from that time on I steadily improved, until to-day I am as well as ever before in my life, have no trace of the terrible acute Bright's disease which so nearly killed me, and all through the wonderful instrumentality of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy that brought me to life after I was virtually in another world."

"You have had an unusual experience, Mr. Crombie," said the writer who had been breathlessly listening to the recital."

"Yes, I think I have" was the reply, "and it has been a valuable lesson to me. I am certain, though, there are thousands of men and women at this very moment who have the same ailment which came so near killing me and they don't know it. I believe kidney disease is the most deceptive trouble in the world. It comes like a thief in the night. It has no certain symptoms, but seems to attack each one differently. It is quiet, treacherous, and all the more dangerous. It is killing more people, today, than any one complaint. If I had the power I would warn the entire world against it and urge them to remove it from the system before it is too late."

One of the members of the firm of Whitehead & Mitchell, proprietors of the Birmingham Eccentric, paid a fraternal visit to this office yesterday, and in the course of conversation, Mr. Crombie's name was mentioned.

"I knew about his sickness," said the editor, "and his remarkable recovery. I had his obituary all in type and announced in the Eccentric that he could not live until it's next issue. It was certainly a most wonderful case.

Rev. A. R. Bartlett, formerly pastor of the M. E. church at Birmingham, and now of Schoolscraft, Michigan, in response to a telegram, replied:

"Mr. W. A. Crombie was a member of my congregation at the time of his sickness. The prayers of the church were requested for him on two occasions. I was with him the day he was reported by his physicians as dying, and consider his recovery almost a miracle."

Not one person in a million ever comes so near death as did Mr. Crombie and then recover, but the men and women who are drifting toward the same end, are legion. To note the slightest symptoms, to realize their significance and to meet them in time by the remedy which has been shown to be the most efficient, is a duty from which there can be no escape. They are fortunate who do this; they are on the sure road to death who neglect it.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Paul Roderick has gone to Norwood, N. Y., to attend the funeral of his brother, Anthony Roderick, who died suddenly at that place yesterday.

Father Moriarity of Syracuse has announced that hereafter he will deliver no eulogies at the funerals in his parish, and that no exception will be made to this rule in favor of rank or wealth. He says that if he makes any remarks on such occasions, they would be confined to death, hell, purgatory and the judgment, with no reference to the deceased.

Inveigled out to supper last Tuesday night, Mr. and Mrs. G. Mortimer Roe returned to their residence, No. 268 West Seventh street, and found it in complete possession of a score or more of friends. It was the tenth anniversary of this couple's marriage, and while, for the sake of maintaining the old custom, a few presents of tin were displayed, they were made painfully insignificant by a massive coffee service of solid silver, a joint gift from the visitors. Absent friends, residents of Lawrenceburg, sent a remembrance in the shape of a beautiful mahogany cabinet, together with a pitcher of antique design, cunningly worked in brass and oxydized silver. It is needless to say how well the evening was enjoyed.—[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

[illegible] Fred Ahlberg [illegible] was almost instantly killed. He was at work on a scaffolding with Joseph F. Kelly, the men being engaged in winding cloth around a steam pipe, which was three feet above and a trifle at one side of a shafting that was making 130 revolutions per minute. A piece of cloth which the two men were using was caught by the shafting. Kelly immediately left the scaffolding, warning Ahlberg that he had better get down too. But instead of doing so he attempted to fasten the cloth upon the shafting and while thus engaged some portion of his clothing was caught by the shafting and Ahlberg was whirled around by the shaft at a frightful velocity until the speed could be stopped, when he was taken down.

His left side was crushed in and his left arm was broken. His feet and portions of the limbs were torn from his body by striking against the steam pipe.

He cried "Hello" when he saw his danger and that was the last sound he ever made and the next moment the several persons who were in the room were horrified to see him revolving with the shafting at a fearful velocity. It is thought that Ahlberg did not live five seconds after he was caught.

Ahlberg wore a gingham "jumper" jacket, which was unbuttoned at the time of the accident and this is probably what was caught by the shafting.

He had a ball of twine in the pocket of his "jumper" and some of those in the room at the time of the accident believe that he attempted to fasten the cloth upon the shafting with the twine and that his "jumper" was thus drawn around the shaft.

His remains were a sickening sight, although there were no bruises on his face. Blood and fragments of flesh and bone were thrown in all parts of the room.

Ahlberg has been in the employ of the Oswego Falls Manufacturing Company since the 1st of January, coming here from Brooklyn. He was about forty years of age and had a wife and two children who are in England.

Coroner Marsh was summoned and he impanelled the following jury: D. H. Gilbert, foreman; Fred Roberts, Tilton E. Coe, G. W. [illegible], J. C. Mosher, F. M. Preston, A. B. Fletcher, C. H. Dexter, Andrew J. Murphy and the Rev. Charles Olmstead. After [illegible] testimony of a number of witnesses [illegible] came to the following conclusions: [illegible] that he [Fred Ahlberg] came to his death on the 5th day of February, 1884, in the press room of the Oswego Falls factories by being caught on a shaft, and we do further say that his death was purely accidental and that the Oswego Falls Manufacturing Company is not at all censured for the same."

Dr. Vincent Surely Coming.

We are able to announce to the public that Dr J. H. Vincent is positively engaged to lecture in Fulton and will close the season's course on Thursday evening, March 27. Some doubt has been expressed by a number of our citizens concerning Dr. Vincent's engagement to lecture here. Parties in Oswego who desired to hear Dr. Vincent wrote to him and asked for the date of his Fulton lecture. A reply was received stating that the doctor knew nothing of a Fulton engagement and further stating that he could not make no such engagement.

But it seems without Dr. Vincent's knowledge the Redpath Lyceum Bureau had made the engagement with Manager Stephens, who, a day or two ago, received the following letter from the doctor:

> ON THE WING, Jan. 31, 1884.
> DEAR SIR:—I can lecture for you Thursday evening, March 27. Will that suit? I can make no other engagements in the neighborhood.
> Yours Truly,
> J. H. VINCENT.

This settles the matter. Manager Stephens immediately replied accepting the date named and should any of our Oswego friends wish to hear Dr. Vincent we shall be happy to welcome them in Fulton on the date named. It is not probable that they will enjoy so rare a treat in their own city during the present season.

The case of Richard Miller against Jonathan H. Case was tried yesterday before Justice Parker and a jury. The action was brought to recover damages for work, labor and services and for goods taken by the defendent under a chattel mortgage, the plaintiff's claim being $100 damages. The Chautauqua circle of lower Oswego Falls met at the residence of Henry Schenck Monday evening. An increasing interest seemed manifest. Members are beginning to realize what Dr. Vincent is pleased to term the charm of the C. L. S. C. A union in intellectual and literary activity, a union in affection, and a union in practical aim and service. This circle he says, everywhere aims to do three things "To cultivate the intellect, to cultivate the heart, and to develop the executive forces of our nature. We had at this meeting a brief study of the work and doings of James Russell Lowell with selections from, and of, that author. An interesting account of Bayard Taylor by Mrs. Swan. An exercise in Biology, also a a chapter from Josephus by Mr. Jennings connected with the fall of Jerusalem, of which we expect more at our next meeting. WHAT PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT.

A House and Barn Burned—Two Fatted Cattle and Young Horse Consumed.

A house and barn on First street, Oswego Falls, near Wright's saw mill and belonging to the Schenck estate was burned at about 5 o'clock Monday morning. The fire originated in the barn and was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Norris Miller who occupied the house. In the barn were a pair of fatted cattle valued at $200, a two year old colt, three or four tons of hay, 500 pounds of feed and farming machinery, all of which was consumed. The contents of the barn was the property of Thomas R. Wright, whose loss amounts to more than $500. Mr. Miller succeeded in saving the most of his furniture. The fire is believed to be of incendiary origin, as Mr. Miller, who is employed by Mr. Wright, states that he has not had even a lantern in the barn this winter. The buildings were of little value. They were as dry as tinder and burned rapidly.

Mr. Riggs Surprised.

The Presbyterian church and society evinced their appreciation of the Rev. J. S. Riggs last evening by giving him a very pleasant surprise. It was the evening on which the young people's sociable was to be held and suspecting nothing of greater magnitude Mr. Riggs had sauntered down town to make some purchases. He was found by Mr. J. G. Benedict and informed that he and wife were wanted at the church, which Mr. Riggs found filled with friends, both old and young and middle aged. As he entered the church the choir sang, "Blest be the tie that binds." In behalf of the church and congregation Mr. Benedict presented him with an elegant cherry and mahogany parlor writing desk, which contained a ten dollar gold piece, with which to furnish the desk. Mr. Benedict said that the gift was presented in appreciation of Mr. Riggs' labors in the church and in honor of his decision to remain in Fulton. Mr. Riggs was completely surprised and said that words could not express his thanks. A pleasant evening was passed by every one present.

The Bell Ringers.

The Royal Hand Bell Ringers, who are to occupy the boards at Stephens Opera House next Monday evening are probably the finest performers in the world. The company is composed of five gentlemen whose carillon of one hundred and thirty-one sweet toned bells have on three occasions given forth delightful music in the presence of the Queen of England and the royal family. The admission price has been placed at the low figure of thirty-five cents for reserved seats and twenty-five cents for admission to the gallery. Persons connected with any of the schools of Fulton or Oswego Falls will be admitted to any part of the house for twenty-five cents.

A Fire This Morning.

About two o'clock this morining the residence of N. Gilbert on Emory street, was discovered to be on fire. The fire was first seen on the roof by a neighbor, who immedietely gave the alarm but before it could be reached the building was nearly consumed with about all of its contents. The loss is about $1,800 on which there is an insurance of about $900. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Gilbert and wife, who although poor are worthy, and are getting somewhat old, but we hope at no distant day to see a new house on the old site and their last days made comfortable by a well-furnished and beautiful home.

Fire at Druce's Corners.

At about dusk last Friday evening the building at Druce's Corners owned and occupied by Andrew Davis as a grocery and residence caught fire from the explosion of a kerosene lamp and burned rapidly, very little of the contents being saved. The loss is placed at $8,000; insurance $2,000.

Parker in the streets of Fulton last summer, was arraigned last Saturday in the court of oyer and terminer at Oswego on an indictment for assault with a deadly weapon. He gave bail in the sum of $8.00. Atwood has been under indictment since last fall, but not until recently has his whereabouts been known.

James Dwyer was indicted by the grand jury for being concerned in a drunken row at D. W. Gardner's Volney Center Hotel on Christmas night. On Monday he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hulett. He was taken before Special Surrogate Rice and gave bail in the sum of $1,000, his mother and A. W. Stoneberg being his sureties. Michael Murphy of Oswego Falls, who was also engaged in the same fracas, was apprehended last week and taken to Oswego where he gave bail.

Under Sheriff Lewis of Oswego came to Fulton last Friday armed with a Judge's order and arrested Dewitt C. Skaden on a charge of fraud in not making returns in his recent assignment for goods that James McCarthy of that city claims that Skaden was selling for him on commission. Mr. Skaden claims that he can prove that he had purchased the goods and that he was not selling them on commission. He gave bail in the sum of $500. Burns Case and Abram Emerick being his bondsmen. Mr. McCarthy's claim is between $100 and $200.

W. B. Howard will undoubtedly be renominated by the Democrats. They assert that he has made a good Supervisor and deserves re-election. They anticipate that he will draw as many Republican votes in the country as he did last year. The Republicans concede that he is a strong candidate, but they do not believe that the Democrats will realize their hopes in his drawing as heavily upon the country vote as he did last year. The Republicans, too, propose to put a good man in the field to oppose Mr. Howard and couple the name of Abram Emerick with the office.

For Town Clerk William J. Lovejoy will undoubtedly be nominated by the Democrats, while C. W. Streeter will be a candidate before the Republican nominating caucus. Mr. Streeter ran for the office on the Republican ticket years ago and was defeated. Certain of the Republicans now believe that he should be vindicated and propose to give him a boom. Either of the gentlemen named for the office would make an honorable and efficient town clerk, but the election of this office, as well as the others will depend much upon the success or defeat of the heads of the tickets.

For the office of Town Collector the candidates are numerous. In the Republican camp Volkert Vant, son of Fred Vant, wants it and so does E. A. Waugh, N. R. Cole and Elwin Hart, and it is hinted that Carl Fuller will be a candidate. Candidates for the offices on the town ticket have not yet voiced their desires.

At the corporation election a village President is to be chosen in place of James F. Herrick, two Trustees in place of Willard Johnson and Elwin Hart, a Police Justice in place of Giles S. Piper, an Assessor and a Treasurer. Of the retiring officials Mr. Johnson says that he is not a candidate for re-election, while it is believed that Mr. Hart again intends to enter the lists. Mr. Herrick is undecided whether he will be a candidate or not, but Mr. Piper states that he will not under any circumstances accept a re-nomination for Police Justice. Candidates for this office, however, are not scarce. Mr. Herman Hulett would like the berth and is said to be quietly pushing his claims for the Republican nomination, while F. D. VanWagenen has openly announced himself as a candidate. The names of H. B. Rorke, Andrew Hanna, Arvin Rice, William C. Stephens, Willis Ney and Frank Keenan have been linked with the office. The first named gentleman, however, states emphatically that he is not a candidate.

Of the Republicans it is believed that the nomination of Mr. VanWagenen is highly probable, although it is thought that Mr. Hulett will make a strong run. An influential Republican whose political prophecies can usually be set down as axioms, said on Monday that Mr. Van Wagenen would surely be nominated and elected.

The election of a third Trustee may become necessary, as Joseph Francis contemplates the removal of his family to New York, in which case he would cease to have a residence in Fulton, and this would disqualify him as a Trustee. We understand, however, that Mr. Francis has not yet decided whether he will remove from Fulton or not.

A Marriage Annulled.

At St. John's Catholic church in Lock street Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Father Moriarity, formally announced the decision of Bishop McNierny annulling the marriage of Elmer Rivest and Miss Anna Lafronier, which was performed on December 26 by Monseigneur Guay. Rivest is a barber and formerly resided in Fulton. He was familiarly known as "French Johnnie" having come from Canada when about 17 years of age. He lived here until about six years ago, when he went to Syracuse. In 1870 he was married to Miss Sarah Back by the Rev. Father Smith. On December 8, 1880, after his removal to Syracuse, he commenced a suit for divorce, accusing his wife of adultery with one Weaver, who was a boarder at his wife's boarding house on Montgomery street. The case was tried before Edward P. Glass, as referee, who on June 25, 1881, rendered a decision for the plaintiff. In July 1881 Judge Churchill confirmed the decision of the referee, and granted Mr. Rivest an absolute divorce. Mrs. Rivest denied the charges, and fought the case bitterly. She subsequently married Weaver and moved to Canada.

In conversation with a reporter Father Moriarity said: "This is an extremely sad case but the laws of the Church are rigid. Nothing is more strict than our laws regulating marriage, and the Church has never made an exception to them in favor of any person. After a person is once married, according to ecclesiastical law, such a person can never marry again so long as a partner is living. A subsequent marriage may be legal in civil law, but the contracting parties in the eyes of the Church are living in fornication."

Monseigneur Guay was aware that Rivest was a divorced man when he performed the ceremony in December, but says that Rivest's first marriage was null and void, because the latter claims to have been drugged when married by Father Smith. Rivest says that he shall continue to live with his present wife.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then, three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year had spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

The Sun is and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much [illegible] costs, which presents the news of all [illegible] without waste of words and in the most [illegible] shape, which is working with all its heart [illegible] government, and which [illegible] believe that the Republican party must [illegible] of our [illegible]

AYER'S [illegible]

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

The Emperor Louis Napoleon smoked only the finest cigars the world could produce. Prof. Horsford says the Emperor's cigars were made specially for him in Havana from leaf tobacco grown in the Golden Belt of North Carolina, this being the finest leaf grown. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is made from the same leaf used in the Emperor's cigars, is absolutely pure and is unquestionably the best tobacco ever offered.

Thackeray's gifted daughter, Anne, in her sketch of Alfred Tennyson, in Harper's Monthly, tells of her visit to the great poet. She found him smoking Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco, sent him by Hon. James Russell Lowell, American Minister to the Court of St. James.

In these days of adulteration, it is a comfort to smokers to know that the Bull Durham brand is absolutely pure, and made from the best tobacco the world produces.

Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best and purest made. All dealers have it. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull.

Dr. Lawrence's Cough Balsam

Is Warranted to Cure COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, SORE THROAT, and all Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

We do not claim to cure consumption when thoroughly seated, but we do claim that thousands of lives might be saved every year by the timely use of Dr. Lawrence's Cough Balsam.

Many people imagine they have consumption, when in reality they have only a bad cold, which can easily be cured by proper care and the right kind of medicine. We could fill columns with testimonials but we do not believe in that way of advertising, our idea is to let everybody that is afflicted with a cough try for themselves, and if not perfectly satisfied return the empty bottle to the dealer of whom it was bought and receive their money back.

How Watch Cases are Made.

It is a fact not generally known that the James Boss' Gold Watch Cases really contain more pure gold than many "solid" gold cases. The demand for these watch cases has led to the manufacture of a very poor grade of solid gold watch cases—low in quality, and deficient in quantity. These cases are made from 4½ to 10 karats, and a 5 or 6 karat case is often sold for 12 or 14 karats. It is NOT economy to buy a watch case so poor in quality that it will soon lose its color, or one so soft that it will lose its shape and fail to shut tight, thus letting in dust and damaging the works, or one so thin that a slight blow will break the crystal, and perhaps the movement. It IS economy to buy a James Boss' Gold Watch Case, in which NONE of these things ever occur. This watch case is not an experiment—it has been made nearly thirty years.

HAZLETON, PA., Oct. 24, 1882.

I sold two James Boss' Gold Watch Cases thirty years ago, when they first came out, and they are in good condition yet. One of them is carried by a carpenter, Mr. L. W. Drake, of Hazleton, and only shows the wear in one or two places; the other by Mr. Bowman, of Cunningham, Pa.; and I can produce one or both of these cases at any time.

TRADE MARK

For Man & Beast

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty-five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guaranteed relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 28, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

[illegible]

[illegible] cheaply. By utilizing [illegible] expense can be [illegible] which would occur in feeding grain.

Always feed animals in the barn at regular hours. Do not put too much food before them at once; never give them any thing between the regular feeding hours, or after they have laid down for the night.

The water which falls on a roof of a grain and stock barn, if properly kept, will supply the horses and cattle wintered in it. The cistern should be under the barn, protected from freezing, and and should not be too large.

Horses should be well shod. Many valuable animals have been strained and permanently injured by carelessness in this respect. A sudden icy spell soon makes the roads dangerous and almost impassible.

Every farmer should have an ice house of his own. It's value for constant use is great, and the cost very light. A building 12 feet square and 8 feet high in the posts will hold 20 tons. It can be made of rough boards, with the cracks battened and the roof shingled for a few dollars. Be sure and build it high enough to allow drainage under and around it.

Farmers should turn their attention more to butter and egg production in winter than they generally have done hitherto. Cows may be so fed as to make as good butter or nearly so during the winter six months as during the summer six months, thus dividing the year into two equal parts. Some are doing it; more would if they studied what is productive of profit in the dairy business. So in respect to eggs. Fowls may be so cared for as to lay all winter when eggs sell from 33 to 50 per cent. higher than in summer.

Hoes, shovels, plows and other implements not needed for use this winter should be cleaned by scouring, or, if rusty, by vigorous rubbing with Kerosene oil. Then oil both wood and iron and put away where they will be safe and not in the way. The oil toughtens the wood and keeps the iron from rusting. Even better would it be to paint the wood on machines that have been once painted and from which the paint has worn off, but the oil will answer good purpose without the paint.

PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or some neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

Mrs. Villard is said to have only $500-000 in her own name.

On Thirty Days' Trial.

Address as above—N. B.—No risk is incurred, as thirty days' trial is allowed. 35y1

Marie Vanoni once walked the slack rope.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50.000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation. and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

My blood is pure, kidneys are all right, and I am as active as any man of 30, although I am 72.—FATHER."

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more, and I tried; but my folly proved to be wisdom, and two bottles cured her, she is now as well and strong as any man's wife, and it cost me only two dollars. SCROFULA

[illegible] scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."

148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

[illegible] returning home on their wedding trip. They had gone up on the St. Lawrence river, had visited Niagara Falls and Saratoga, where they had spent a large part of their honeymoon, and were on an east bound train [illegible] through the Hoosac tunnel. I had joined the train at North Adams, and taken a seat just behind them without the least suspicion of who they were except that they were a newly married pair well bound up in each other.

As we entered the tunnel I could not help overhearing a part of their conversation. Bending his head toward the lady he said:

"Are you afraid, my birdie?"

"Not a bit; how could I be with you? Are you anxious for me or for yourself?"

"Not anxious at all, now that I have you in possession, I'm content."

"Were you ever afraid of losing me?"

"How could I be otherwise until you made me happy with your 'perhaps so?'"

"That made you happy?"

"Very happy and proud and rich."

He had turned his head a little, and I could not but observe the expression of joy that lighted up his handsome face. It was more than handsome. It gave clear indications of intelligent purpose, decision and confidence. And, to my surprise, there was something familiar in the expression. Then turning a little further round he gave me a look which proved to be one of recognition. With delight I exclaimed:

"Charlie Morong?"

"Old boy, where do you hail from? I'm mighty glad to see you," and he grasped me warmly by the hand.

"Well I'm delighted to see you, and see you looking so contented and happy," I replied, glancing at the lady by his side.

"I have reason to be. This is my wife, Mrs. Morong, let me introduce to you my old friend and classmate of whom you have spoken so often."

The lady turned and said very graciously, "It is an unexpected pleasure to see one of whom I have heard so often."

Her manner was cordial and winning, and her face beautiful, though it would be difficult to say whether it was the happiness, the intelligence or wisdom which shone in her face that gave it its chief element of beauty. After a few words of explanation it was arranged that we should stop in Greenfield, get dinner and have a drive where we could obtain the best views of the charming scenery of that region. We were then in the very midst of some of the finest mountain scenery in western Massachusetts. The lady busied her mind with that as the train wound along the bank of the Deerfield. Mr. Morong took the seat beside me for a renewal of old acquaintance. It was nearly ten years since I had met him in a preparatory school, and eight since we had graduated and entered different colleges, he going to Williams. He had entered upon his course under very discouraging circumstances, and I was eager to know how it had fared with him.

"Where is that queer old uncle of yours?" I asked, just to get him started.

"Uncle Toby? Oh yes. Wasn't he a case? I believe he took more pleasure in being odd than in being rich. I must tell you a story. I don't know as I can answer your question as to where he is, but as he died last year, I suspect he is in that part of Heaven where the odd and whimsical most do congregate. You remember he used to say and do all he could to discourage us boys from going to college. He seemed to hate the very word college. So if there is a college in Heaven where they educate odd sticks out of their whimsical notions, he must be in the Freshman class. One day when he was visiting at our house and I was along in my teens he called me up to him and said, 'Charlie, my boy, they tell me you want to go to college. Is that so?'

"Yes, sir." I replied.

"Don't you do it. If you ever want to amount to a row of pins stick to work and be a man. I've seen boys too lazy to earn their own salt that would get their fathers to send them to college, and then hang like mill stones around their necks, depending on them for support, too proud to work and too feeble minded to make a genteel living. What is the use? Such boys ain't good for anything but to stock an idiot asylum. Don't you get your head stuffed with any such nonsense. Go to work and show yourself a man!"

In the same way he talked to Bill and Thomas and all of his nephews. And he would bring his fist down upon his knee and chuckle, and then repeat his exhortation: 'I tell you to go to work and be a man.' The others thought he was wiser than Solomon. But, more [illegible] they thought he was very [illegible] would favor them if they took his advice. So they never went to college. [illegible] nephews and nieces, and the remainder, perhaps a hundred thousand, to the nephew who first made ten thousand dollars by his own exertions and savings. 'To him that hath shall be given; to him that hath shall be given.' he would quote and repeat. 'Now, Charlie,' he would say to me, 'you will stand as good a chance as any of them. You are only a leetle younger than Bill and your cousin Jamie; you can make it as soon as they can. To him that hath shall be given.' I told him I thought an education was worth as much as all his money, and asked him if he didn't think a college diploma was worth something.

"About ten cents, he thought, if the young man's father footed the bills. 'And what,' I asked, "if he pays his own way?' and he gave in that it would be worth more. 'How much?' said I. "Well, $10,000, perhaps,' was his admission. But he said he thought only great geniuses should go to college. They wouldn't be good for anything to work, and if educated they might be able to pick up a living. I told him I thought the great geniuses could get along better than I could without an education. So we differed. He scolded and I laughed. He threatened and I persisted in my purpose."

"Well, how did it come out?" I asked, as Mr. Morong paused a moment.

"I was just going to tell you. But before that I must say there was one thing he didn't think of. His adopted daughter Clara Belle took a notion she wanted to go to college. He was astounded said 'twas all consummate nonsense. He had given her good musical advantages and she ought to be content. But she was not content; she studied Latin and Greek by herself, with a little help from the minister, and when she was twenty-one she entered college. She paid her way through by giving music lessons and singing. She did so well that Uncle Toby was mightily pleased, and instead of disinheriting her, as he had threatened to do, he revised his will a little before he died and just after Aunt Toby's death, and put her down for fifty thousand, adding to her portion what he had intended for his wife."

"Well, which of the nephews made his ten thousand first?" I asked.

"That's the nub of the story. Neither of them had more than half that when I graduated from college. And mother took interest enough in me to remind Uncle Toby of what he had said about the value of a college diploma. He laughed and responded: 'I see! I see! Charlie's ahead. Well, he shall have it. But I swann! I didn't think he would amount to a row of pins with his book larnin.' And you say he's an honor man! way up in his class, and earned every cent himself? Yes, he shall have it.

"So when he revised his will he put in Clara Belle for fifty thousand for some charitable objects, and his nephews, six of them, for five thousand apiece, the three nieces for eight thousand apiece, and me for the remainder, after the legacies were paid."

"And you realized—?"

"I realized a hundred and forty thousand for my part of the estate,"

"Then your diploma was worth a hundred and fifty thousand?"

"Two hundred thousand, if you please."

"How so?" I asked, in amazement.

"If I had not taken my college course, or gained the education which it represents, I fear that I should never have won Clara Belle," he said, pointing to his wife; "and she's a fortune in herself, to say nothing of the fifty thousand she inherited. With her rare beauty, fine education and bright prospects for fortune, she would have been such a prize that I would have stood but a poor chance to win her had I never gone to college."

"I suppose you wooed her in Greek?"

"O, yes, and Latin too. I wooed her in German and French; and better yet, I won her in English."

"You must have had a remarkable course of study. I almost wish I had gone to your college. It isn't everywhere that you can learn how to woo a beautiful heiress in four languages, and win her in your mother tongue. I congratulate you both. Your Uncle Toby's whim did not work so very badly for either of you. I congratulate you both, for the habits of self-reliance gained by you both are a fortune alone. To say nothing of the fortune, you are rich in each other. I congratulate you both."

As I said it the train began to slow up for Greenfield, a beautiful town in one of the most beautiful valleys in New England.

POETRY WORTH READING.

God Knows the Best.

Some time, when all life's lessons have been learned
And sun and stars forever more have set,
The things which our weak judgment here has spurned;
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deepest tints of blue;
And we shall see how all God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

And we shall see that while we frown and sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How when we called He heeded not our cry,
Because his wisdom to the end could see;
And e'en as prudent parents disallow
To much sweet to craving babyhood.
To God, perhaps is keeping from us now
Life's sweetest things because it seemeth good.

And if some time, commingled with life's wine,
We find the wormwood and rebel and shrink
Be sure a wiser hand than yours or mine,
Pours out this portion for our lips to drink;
And if some friend we love is lying low,
Where human kisses cannot reach his face,
Oh, do not blame the loving father so,
But bear your sorrow with obedient grace.

And you shortly know that lengthened breath,
Is not the sweetest gift God sends His friends,
And that, sometimes the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon His love can send,
If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery could find a key.

But not to-day. Then be content, poor heart!
God's plans like lillies pure and white unfold.
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold,
If through patient toil we reach the land
Where we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we shall say that 'God knew best,"

She got mad,

Other tactics
Thought she'd try.

Years you've called
Every night,

Did you propose.

Now 'tis Leap Year

The Old Elm Tree.

As I sat beneath an old elm tree, the wind went whistling by.
It bent its boughs and softly breathed the following with a sigh; "I have lived here for many a year and seen the summer come and go; the springtime with its flowers and rain, the autumn with its fruit and grain, the winter with its chilling blast, when with snow and ice the skies are o'ercast. In summertime beneath my shade have children often played; and oh, how oft beneath my boughs have lovers renewed their plighted vows, and many a time the old and feeble have sought my shade to smoke their pipes or ply the needle, and thus it's been with smiles and tears I have watched them come and go for threescore years, and many a tale I could tell of what in that time befell.
But age is creeping o'er my roots are getting

What His Papa Said.

"Mamma, what is meant by 'little pitchers have ears'?" asked a little boy.

"Where did you hear that expression?" demanded his mother, with a considerable show of interest.

A Dude at the Oar.

Last Tuesday, while five of the Pioneer club [illegible] were [illegible] in their shell and swearing vigorously at the non-appearance of the sixth man, who was half an hour late, a well-dressed and modest young stranger strolled into the boat-house and began inspecting the equipments with great interest.

"I'll tell you what we'll do, fellows," said the stroke. "As No. 4 isn't coming, suppose we coax that dude to take a row and bust him all up?"

The perpetration of this time-honored joke upon a "softy" was received with approbation, and the new comer was with a grand show of hospitality, invited to take the vacant oar.

"Well, I don't know, gentlemen," said the young man, looking at his watch doubtfully, "I'm a stranger here. I do need a little exercise, though."

"Oh, get in," said No. 3, winking at his companions: "a little spin will do you good," and they finally persuaded the victim of their kindly scheme to take off his coat and assume a club cap.

"Now, keep your eye on me and try to keep time," remarked the captain. "You'll never, never make an oarsman unless you watch the stroke."

"I'll do the best I can, gentlemen," said the guest, meekly. "I'm always willing to improve."

The boat went down toward Hunter's Point, a couple of miles, at an easy three-quarter stroke, the new-comer pulling manfully with the rest, and when they eased off to turn back they were surprised to observe that the stranger did not appear to be quite so much blown as they expected.

"Now, then, young feller," said the stroke, with a grin, "try and keep up with the procession. Hit her up boys. Hard all!"

But somehow the stranger scratched along with the rest, and although the pace was something like forty-six as they passed Butchertown, the victim serenely sawed away, and the bowsman even imagined that he splashed less than any oar in the boat, when they finally drew up to the float, and while the crew were panting for wind, spitting cotton and wiping their dripping faces, the "passenger" looked around with a childlike smile upon his unflushed face, and softly remarked:

"Why didn't you spurt her?"

"Spurt hell," panted the stroke. "Why—er—what the—er—I say, young feller, where did you come from?"

"From New York, gentlemen," replied the stranger, modestly, as he slipped on his coat and started up the wharf. "My name is Hanlan—Edward Hanlan."—San Francisco Post.

NEW YORK TIMES
FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.
CHEAPEST AND BEST
NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly give its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcement of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reforming movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the follies of mankind.

OUR NEED.

We print in another column specific plans for the proposed water works of the village. At the coming charter election on the 25th of March our citizens will be asked for an appropriation for water for fire purposes. If there is one thing above another of which the village of Fulton stands sorely in need it is an adequate supply of water for fire purposes that can be called into requisition the year round. The company asks no other renumeration from the corporation. They will sell their water to any one who desires to use it at a reasonable price, but its use for private purposes is at the option of every individual householder. For the next few months, too, a large number of laborers must be employed in the work of construction and a deal of money will be put into circulation that would otherwise lie idle in the coffers of some bank.

Let no fair-minded citizen vote against the water works. They must come.

Gen. Logan is Grant's candidate for President.

The Texas legislature has made fence cutting a felony.

Thomas Kinsella, Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, is dead.

Roscoe Conkling says that the Republican party has no leader at present.

J. C. S. Blackburn has been elected United States Senator from Kentucky.

The Turkish army was defeated by the rebels last week, the Turks losing about 2,000 men.

Last week the New Jersey Legislature voted by a large majority to abolish contract labor in State prisons.

A bill before the United States Senate provides that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for government laborers.

Bradlaugh's appeal against the sergeant-at-arms for not permitting him to enter the British house of commons, has been disallowed by the court of the queen's bench.

Speaker Carlisle won no credit in the Kentucky senatorial contest. It is openly alleged that he wanted the place, and wanted it badly, but feared to openly announce himself in the race. Williams, who was defeated, owes Mr. Carlisle nothing, nor is Mr. Blackburn under the slightest obligation to him.

Premier Gladstone was recently presented with an ax by a worker in one of the Birmingham steel factories. The man made it himself. The blade is of steel, and is fitted with an old English oak handle. On one side of the blade is Mr. Gladstone's armorial bearings, and on the other the Staffordshire "knot" with a poetical couplet.

Lord Lansdowne is fast overcoming the prejudice which the Canadians entertained against him when he was appointed governor general. Speaking of his departure from Montreal after the festival Saturday, a correspondent in that city writes: "The band of the fusileers struck up "Auld Lang Syne," and the train moved from the depot, carrying away a governor who ranks in popularity next to Lord Dufferin and a titled lady who is already idolized by the loyal Canadians even more than the only royal ruler they ever had, Louise of Lorne."

Among the impending evils in our national life, according to Parson John P. Newman's sermon New York Sunday evening at the Madison Avenue Congregational Church, are Mormonism, Catholicism, the ambition of capital, the greed of poverty, illiteracy, intemperance, and sectionalism. "The sectional strife that blazed out once," said the minister, "will burst forth again. Sooner or later that time will come, and our greatest and best men, who are now living in the quietude and sanctity of private life, will be there."

The Secretary of War has transmitted to the senate the report of the adjutant general, giving the military strength of the states, together with the number of men available for military duty. The report shows the number of general officers in all the states to be 86; the general staff officers 767; regimental, file and staff, 1,499; company officers, 4,590; total commissioned, 6,869; total non-commissioned, musicians and privates, [illegible]; aggregate, 53,070; number of men available for military duty 6,897,[illegible]. The State law now directs that the voters of any town may at their annual town meeting change the system of working the roads, and the commissioner of highways may be ordered to hire the work done in a manner which they shall choose, and the expenses of the work to be paid by a tax raised as other taxes are raised.

Minister Foster and the Spanish Minister of foreign Affairs have signed the protocol maintaining the commercial treaty concluded with the preceding Cabinet, with the exception of the consular dues, which are reserved for ratification by the Cortes. The treaty with England has been accepted provisionally, subject to ratification.

The Presidential nominations begin at last to be discussed at Washington, especially on the Republican side. The Democrats are somewhat at sea, and will remain so until the fate of tariff legislation is declared. The time and place of the Democratic Convention will not be decided on until the 22d of this month, when the national committee meets here. St. Louis will probably be the place. The date is very uncertain, and one consideration suggested to your correspondent by a leading democrat may have weight in fixing it.

A bronze statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, 16 feet high, has just been cast. He is represented as standing with his arms folded and one foot advanced. He is in uniform with sword and sash. The dress was copied by the sculptor, Alexander Doyle, from the clothes actually worn by General Lee. The statue will be sent to New Orleans, where it will be set up in Tivoli Square. The pedestal will be ninety-six feet high, which will make the statue look about life size from the ground. The money for the statue was raised by subscription in New Orleans.

Some figures just publised flatly contradict the charge hitherto made that the law for the gradual manumission of slaves in Cuba is practically inoperative. When the law was passed several years ago the slave population of Cuba was estimated at 385,355. The claim is now made that 285,000 of these have been already set free, and the planters are represented as in many cases anxious to anticipate the provisions of the law. Some over-sanguine people are even expressing the hope that slavery will be entirely removed from the island before the year is over.

The report of the librarian of Congress shows the number of volumes to be 513,000; pamphlets, 170,000; increase in volumes during the year 33,000; number copyrighted entries for year 25,000. The report contains references to about 3,000 volumes of bound newspapers, American and foreign, the largest collection of the country and there are but six larger in the world. The library is receiving additions at a more rapid rate than any other library except the British musuem. The works of graphic art number more than 150,000, but there is no place for their exhibition and they are inaccessible to the public.

High water in the Ohio River is again causing great disaster, and as yet there is no hope of an abatement of the flood. Last week damage was also done at Pittsburgh. An associated press dispatch from Cincinnati dated February 11 says: "The day has been one of the greatest excitement since the flood began. The stage of the high water of last year was passed at 1 o'clock to-day. A steady and hard rain during the greater part of the day, together with the reports of general rains at every place where it would run into the Ohio, make it certain that a still more dangerous flood will be upon the already unfortunate people of the Ohio Valley. The rate of rise increased this afternoon to an inch an hour, and during the hours from four to six, three-fourths of an inch. It is hardly possible to give an idea of the situation. The water is but little more than 600 feet from the Bennett house. From there to the river bank the the proper distance is between three and four squares. All that can be seen is a street inundated and boats gliding in all directions. Manufactories are stopping and men are thrown out of employment. In Newport it is estimated from five to six thousand people are homeless and their supplies were exhausted at noon. Many will go without supper to-night because the supplies of the relief committee are exhausted. At 7 o'clock to-night the water stands sixty-six feet eleven inches high." Similar stories come from other points on the Ohio.

Rosa Darling.

We have just received from the publisher "Rosa Darling" the latest and most beautiful of John P. Dougarty's compositions. The melody is a particularly sweet and attractive one, and in point of merit is one of the best compositions yet given to the public by this popular composer. It was written by the author of Will H. [illegible] the writer to enter into conversation with the man, with the following result:

"You've had fine success, where did you get all that game?"

"Right here, in the swamp."

"It's pretty rough hunting in these parts, especially when a man goes up to his waist every other step."

"Yes, it's not very pleasant, but I'm used to it and don't mind it."

"How long have you hunted hereabouts."

"Why, bless you, I've lived here most of my life and hunted up to ten years ago every year."

"How does it happen you omitted the last ten years?"

"Because I was scarcely able to move much less hunt."

"I don't understand you?"

"Well, you see, about ten years ago, after I had been tramping around all day in this same swamp, I felt a pain in my ankle. I didn't mind it very much, but it kept troubling me for a day or two, and I could see that it kept increasing. The next thing I knew, I felt the same kind of a pain in my shoulder and I found it pained me to move my arm. This thing kept going on and increasing, and though I tried to shake off the feeling and make myself think it was only a little temporary trouble, I found that it did not go. Shortly after this my joints began to ache at the knees and I finally became so bad that I had to remain in the house most of the time."

"And did you trace all this to the fact that you had hunted so much in this swamp?"

"No, I didn't know what to lay it to, but I knew that I was in misery. My joints swelled until it seemed as though all the flesh I had left was bunched at the joints; my fingers crooked in every way and some of them became double jointed. In fact, every joint in my bodo seemed to vie with the others to see which could become the largest and cause me the greatest suffering. In this way several years passed on, during which time I was pretty nearly helpless. I became so nervous and sensitive that I would sit bolstered up in the chair and call to people that entered the room not to come near me or even touch my chair. While all this was going on, I felt an awful burning heat and fever, with occasional chills running all over my body, but especially along my back and through my shoulders. Then again my blood seemed to beboiling and my brain to be on fire."

"Didn't you try to prevent all this agony?"

"Try. I should think I did try. I tried every doctor that came within my reach and all the propriety medicines I could hear of. I used washes and liniments enough to last me for all time, but the only relief I received was by injections of morphine."

"Well, you talk in a very strange manner for a man, who has tramped around on a day like this and in a swamp like this. How in the world do you dare to do it?"

"Because I am completely well and as sound as a dollar. It may seem strange, but it is true that I was entirely cured; the rheumatism all driven out of my blood; my joints reduced to their natural size and my strength made as great as ever before, by means of the great and simple remedy Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure, which I believe saved my life."

"And so you now have no fear of rheumatism?"

"Why, no. Even if it should come on, I can easily get rid of it by using the same remedy."

The writer turned to leave as it was growing dark, but before I had reached the city precisely the same symptoms I had just heard described came upon me with great violence. Impressed with the hunter's story, I tried the same remedy, and within twenty-four hours all pain and inflamation han disappeared. If any reader is suffering from any manner of rheumatic or neuralgic troubles and desires relief let him by all means try this same great remedy. And if any readers doubt the truth of the above incident or its statements let them write to A. A. Coates, Brookmere, N. Y., who was the man with whom the writer conversed and convince themselves of its truth or falsity.

Miss Van Alstine, an Oswego maiden lady of 50 years, died Monday. Some time before she told her friends she should lie in a trance for a time, and not to bury her alive. Philander Cunningham, of Rochester, who has been trackmaster for the Central road thirty years, died at his home last week from the effects of an accident received on the road in 1879. He was a native of Sandy Creek, Oswego county, and 64 years of age. Every week day in his official career as roadmaster for many years, he rode every mile of his division from Rochester to Clyde on a handcar. He was a popular and efficient employe of the road, an alderman of the council and a prominent Mason.

The Central Square correspondent of the Oswego Palladium writes: "Dr. Drake, of this town has in his possession a singular little reptile, which he obtained in a peculiar manner. Some time during the last of January the doctor was called to attend a man in Union Settlement who, according to report, was dying. He found the patient very much emaciated and suffering the most intense agony. Upon inquiry, the doctor learned that the man had been treated for a variety of diseases by some of the best physicians, but none had succeeded in helping him, and he had come home to die. Dr. Drake administered a powerful anodyne with a view of relieving the sufferer, but which had the effect of nauseating the man to such an extent that he vomited the medicine and at the same time a small, lively snake, which ran about the basin making frantic efforts to escape its boundaries. It was captured, placed in a bottle of clear water and found to be a genuine little water snake about fourteen inches long, with a head the size of an ordinary pin's head, and the body tapering from that down to the size of a fine hair. The head is black, the body light brown, and a black stripe can be distinctly traced on the back near the head. Viewed under a microscope it has the head of a bull-dog, with horny protuberances over the eyes. Taken altogether it is as hideous a looking reptile as can be imagined, but bids fair to become quite a pet, as it seems contented in its new quarters, eats well and is very frisky and playful. The man has entirely recovered his health, and is rapidly gaining in flesh, but does not care to see the snake."

F. A. Hinds and J. F. Moffatt of Watertown have been in town for the past few days, taking measurements and discussing plans for the proposed system of waterworks which a company has been organized to inaugurate in our village. The water to supply the pipes will be drawn from the eastern end of the lower dam, adjacent to Herrick & Emerick's mill. The motor will consist of two turbine water wheels, which will drive a duplex double acting pump, and a rotary fire pump that can be set in motion much quicker than the larger ones. A diagram has been drawn, showing the streets through which the water pipes will pass, but this plan is liable to enlargement or change. On First street from Hubbard to Pratt street, starting from quite a little north of the business portion of the inhabited village. On Oneida street the pipe will run from First to Seventh and on Third street it will run from Seneca to Academy, while on Fourth street the pipes will extend through from Oneida street to Broadway. The pipe extends from First street on Broadway to the cemetery and there will also be connection through Cayuga and Rochester streets from First street to Fourth. Calculations on this diagram have been made for twenty-eight fire hydrants, which will be placed at or near street corners. The hydrants to be placed in the business portions of the village, where large fires are most frequent, will be arranged so that three pieces of hose may be attached and three streams of water thrown from a single hydrant, while further out the hydrant will be arranged for the attachment of two hose and in the suburbs they will be arranged for one.

It is proposed to erect an ornamental water tower in the vicinity of the Seminary which will act as a safety valve for the entire system of pipes. It will be forty feet high and fifty feet in diameter. Water will rise and fall in this tower in accordance with the amount and pressure upon the water in the pipes.

Objection has been made to the water works because of the alleged filth of the water between the two dams—the waste pipes from the Oswego Falls factory dye houses emptying their poisonous contents into the water—and a desire has been expressed by some of our citizens that the water works company secure the water from above the upper dam. This, however, would cost them $35,000 more than it will to get water according to the present plan. A representative of THE TIMES informed Mr. Hinds of the objection that was being made and he said that the company was putting its money into these water works with the hope of realizing a profit and any filth passing into the river would be abated as a nuisance, because it was for their interest to give the public wholesome water. "When I first came here," he continued, "a glass of water from one of the 'crack' wells (for purity) of the village was given me. Taking a glass of water from the river at the point where we intend to get our supply and putting the water from both sources to the test of a chemical analysis I found the river water contained less impurities of the two!' The river water, Mr. Hinds asserts, is not as soft as rain water, but is moderately soft.

It is proposed to convey the waste of the factories through a sewer that will empty its contents below the lower dam. This sewer can be put through for about $1,000.

But it is not proposed to ask for a tax to be levied upon the corporation for anything except fire purposes and river water of any degree of purity would answer these requirements. According to the present plan of laying the pipes the entire village will be covered for fire purposes. By a continuation of hose from the nearest hydrant a stream could be carried, with the aid of the two steamers, to nearly every building on the outskirts of the corporation.

Still Another Failure.

Charles D. Hubbard, proprietor of the variety store, known as the "Boston Bazaar" made an assignment to Dr. W. A. Hall last thursday. The following is a list of the preferred creditors:—Mrs. S. C. Bottume, Lyons, $500; Sperry, Neal & Hyde, Syracuse, $700; A. W. Hubbard, Oneida, $900; Jennie A. Hubbard, Fulton, N. Y., $100; Walrath & Girvin, Syracuse, $35. Mr. Hubbard has been doing business in Fulton for about two years, and during his stay here he has exhibited energy and business tact that did not betoken so disastrous a result and the failure proved to be a complete surprise even in business circles. Mr. Hubbard's liabilities are as yet unknown, but it is thought they will aggregate at nearly $5,000. The assets will amount to from $3,000 to $3,500. This is the third failure since Jan. 1. It is to be hoped that this may be the last.

AN INSANE MAN HANGS HIMSELF IN GRANBY.

With the Nerve of a Maniac He Adjusts the Rope and Lifts His Feet from the Floor to Produce Strangulation.

Asher D. French, a man weighing about 225 pounds, hanged himself with a small rope shortly after 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning in the horse barn of his brother, Calvin W. French of Granby, with whom he lived.

Asher French has been considered of unsound mind for years and for the past few months has been failing rapidly in mind and body and has threatened upon a number of occasions to commit suicide. He is fifty-seven years of age and about twenty-five years ago attempted to end his life.

He was last seen alive by Fred B. Smith, a member of the French family who saw him go in a wagon house where he procured the rope by which Smith found him hanging in the horse barn a half hour later. French had apparently stood upon the floor and adjusted the rope, the upper end of which could be easily reached by a man of ordinary height and had with the nerve of a maniac drawn his legs up until strangulation was produced. In this position he was found while his body was yet warm. Calvin W. French and L. P. Colwell, a neighbor, cut his body down.

A few years ago the two brothers inherited considerable property by the death of their father. As Asher was not of sound mind he was taken care of by his brother who held his property in trust.

Coroner Marsh and the following jury held an inquest Sunday afternoon: D. H. Gilbert, foreman; A. W. Cheney David Hovey, I. T. Pierce, P. E. Durham, G. R. Baldwin, Henry King, C. S. Wells and Jackson Fitch. The following verdict was rendered: "That he [Asher D. French] came to his death at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of February 10, 1884, in the following manner: by his own hands by hanging in the barn and that deceased was insane at the time."

Suicide at Central Square.

A dispatch from Central Square to the Syracuse Standard, dated February 11, says: This quiet community was horrified last evening by the sad intelligence of the suicide of John Shephard, a man about thirty years of age. Young Shephard has been living alone since the death of his mother a few months ago. Yesterday afternoon his brother-in-law, John Bell, upon calling at his residence, found Shephard lying upon a bed, unconscious, with a revolver tightly clasped in his right hand, and a bullet in his brain. Mr. Bell called the neighbors, and Dr. Drake was summoned. The unfortunate young man was found in a comatose condition, and beyond human aid. He only lived a few moments. Coroner Caldwell, of Pulaski, held an inquest this afternoon. The jury found that Shepherd committed suicide while temporarily insane.

The Fireman's Ball.

Certain members of the Fulton Fire Department have issued cards for a promenade and dancing party at the Opera House ball room on Monday evening, February 25. The managers are M. E. Crahan, George Jones, and Freeman Craver. A pleasant time is anticipated.

To the Editor of THE FULTON TIMES:

Our attention has been called to the fact that there has been issued cards of invitation to a dancing party on the 25th inst., under the name of the Fulton Fire Department.

I wish to say such invitation has not the sanction of the department nor will they be in any way responsible for such party.

Last Thursday Eugene Powell was driving S. E. Lincoln's horse home from the race course on the canal. In passing another vehicle the two collided and Lincoln's animal jumping from fright, overturned the cutter and dragged Powell some distance in the snow, when he was obliged to let go of the reins. The horse crossed the canal bridge and dashed up First street, through numerous vehicles and opposite first James Morrow's grocery ran into a cutter in which sat Mrs. James Morrow and her mother, who had just driven up to the store. Mrs. Morrow saw the runaway coming and dodged just in time to prevent a thrill from penetrating her shoulder. The dash board and rail of their cutter were broken and the horse was knocked down. Lincoln's horse was captured near the stone house on First street. He received only a few slight scratches and the cutter was not much damaged.

"We shall have to make a very judicious nomination for Supervisor," said a prominent Republican the other day, "if we wish a Republican success in the town of Volney this spring. Unless Volkert Vant is nominated for collector the country vote will be largely given to W. B. Howard, if the Democrats nominate him. A defection of this kind would prove disastrous unless the Republicans had a strong man in the field."

But that is where the shoe pinches. The Republicans of Volney seem to be just out of good, available Supervisor timber.

Counselor George Dada is working vigorously for the Republican nomination of Town Clerk and is button-holing every one with the energy of an old political war-horse to induce them to pledge themselves to his support. Mr. C. W. Streeter needs to keep his eyes open or he will be defeated in caucus. Ed. Cole is spoken of as a candidate for Town Clerk.

It is believed that Charles David is a candidate for Police Justice, although it is stated that he will not lift a finger to secure the nomination, but would accept it if it were tendered to him. It would seem that with two active candidates in the field a third candidate who takes such a position will have but little chance.

In Granby the present Republican Supervisor, Thomas R. Wright, will probably be renominated. Mr. Wright does not want the office and at one time declared that he would not take it, but certain Republicans it is understood have labored with him and he has agreed to accept a nomination in case it is tendered. John C. Wells would like to be elected Supervisor of the Town of Granby. He was a candidate last year, but was not nominated. Mr. Wells and Mr. Wright met a few days ago, when the former asked the latter if he was a candidate for the Supervisorship again, Mr. Wright told Mr. Wells that he was not a candidate, and would not accept nomination if Mr. Wells would agree to be a candidate for the Republican nomination, but Mr. Wells declared that he was not a candidate. It is believed, however, that Mr. Wells would be highly elated if the Republicans of Granby were to compliment him with a nomination.

Charles Dexter is the the present Town Clerk of Granby, and is one of the few Republican officials of the Town. Like Mr. Wright, Mr. Dexter is personally popular and to this fact his success was due.

Charles Carpenter is Collector of the Town of Granby and James Gilhooley is Commissioner of Highways. They are both Democrats. The term of John E. Parker as Civil Justice expires this year. It is believed he will be a candidate for Police Justice at the charter election of Oswego Falls.

WHAT ARE LEGGETS OAT FLAKES.

They are made from the Best White Oats carefully cleaned, steamed and hulled; then put through heavy rollers, which converts them into flat flakes, after which they are kiln-dried by being passed through hot air shafts, producing a finer article for the breakfast table than ever before made from Oats. In point of flavor and convenience in cooking (the time required being but fifteen minutes) puts them beyond competition with any other article of oatmeal ever offered to the public, and it can be truly said they are Delicious, Nutritious and Economical.

BRANDETH'S PILLS

They are compounded of Roots, Herbs and Gums of the most healing and beneficial kind.

As a Family Medicine they are unrivalled, curing Head-ache, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia—clearing the blood of all impurities—acting on the Liver, Kidneys and other important organs, removing the waste tissue, and adding years to the lives of all who use them.

For fifty years they have been used by the American public, and their constantly increasing sales show how they are appreciated.

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three pears of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

JOHN H. MANN.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

THE SUN.
NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then, three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, ro of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

The Sun is and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go in the coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know The Sun, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know The Sun it is high time to get into the sunshine.

HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In 1875, thirteen men comprised the entire working force used in the manufacture of the James Boss' Gold Watch Case. Now over five hundred are employed, and the number is constantly increasing. The reason of this increase is this: In the James Boss' Gold Watch Case all the metal in sight and subject to wear is solid gold, while the remainder, which only lends strength to the case, is of stronger metal than gold, giving gold where gold is needed, and strong, elastic metal where strength and elasticity are needed, a combination producing a watch case better than solid gold and at ONE-HALF the cost.

Over 200,000 of these cases have been sold, and every jeweler in the country can testify to their quality and merit.

LUDINGTON, MICH., Dec. 5, 1882.

E. W. March, of the Democrat, bought a Jas. Boss' Gold Watch case 18 years ago, and carried it until a short time ago, when I purchased it, and sold it to a customer. The case showed no signs of wear, except that natural to any case, and I am satisfied can be safely guaranteed for at least ten years more. I have sold the James Boss' Gold Watch Case for many years, and the parties who bought the first ones are carrying them to-day, as well satisfied as though they had bought a solid gold case costing twice the money. I regard them as the only cases of this kind a jeweler should sell who desires to give his customers the worth of their money or values his reputation.

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment

DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,
WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 20, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. B. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

In making or locating a hen's nest always have an eye to the hen's preferences for partial secrecy. She's modest and wants to be a little out of sight when engaged in maternal duties.

It is said that if common salt be added to poultry droppings it will prevent its burning up plants when applied to them; the theory being that the great affinity of salt for moisture prevents the rapid drying of the droppings.

Ohio farmers employ sleds with runners six or eight inches wide for drawing all sorts of loads over bare and muddy ground. They are extensively used for drawing out manure in the spring. They injure grass sod less than the wheels of wagons or carts do.

It is now claimed by scientists that a dead branch exhausts the vitality of a vine or tree to a limited extent, and should be removed. Dead canes on blackberries, raspberries and the useless vines of grapes should therefore be removed at the earliest opportunity.

If you are going to set a new orchard this spring remember that it is an excellent thing to prepare a plan of the orchard, showing the position of each tree, its variety, etc. If a tree dies it can be replaced by one of the same sort. Some fruit raisers keep a book in which they register the age and variety of every tree in the orchard, together with any items in regard to their grafting, productiveness, treatment, etc., which are thought to be desirable.

NEVER GIVE UP.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, great debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means secure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and thenceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates in the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf [illegible] young sister [illegible] chamber, the window [illegible] opened upon a balcony [illegible] with the bloom of jessamine [illegible] roses. Leonore was [illegible] a fantastic piece of embroidery, while Sara was rocking herself [illegible] in a luxurious arm-chair, [illegible] with a delicate ivory fan that lay on her lap.

"Yes," said Sara in continuation of [illegible] conversation, "men are never so [illegible] as when making love. A male friend, is a luxury; a husband also is, I suppose, if he happens to be a kind one, but that intermediate class, called lovers, are regular bores."

"Yet you encourage many of them and seem to enjoy their attentions?"

"Oh, yes! What else can a young girl do? Still, it is very tiresome," Sara continued, with a musical laugh, "after one has waltzed and sung, quoted poetry and talked all kinds of nonsense with a young man until it is a puzzle to know which of you is the most heartless, to have him come plump down on the subject of matrimony, as though that was the legitimate result of every such insipid acquaintanceship. For my part I never had a beau (and here she fluttered her fan) whom I was not heartily tired of after he had proposed. There was Tom Jennings, for instance. I thought him exceedingly handsome and particularly agreeable, but when he went on his knees to me and swore he should die if I did not take pity on him, he looked so idiotic that I have detested him ever since. Then there was——"

"Oh, my dear child," interrupted Leonore, "spare me the list of your rejected suitors. Your destined husband has not yet made his appearance. Wait until——"

Here a loud ringing of the door bell was heard and Sara gave a nervous spring towards the mirror, smoothing her rumpled curls with a haste that brought a smile to Leonore's face.

"Whom are you expecting now?" she asked.

"No one in particular," Sara replied, as she took a final survey of her pretty self in the glass, and shook out, with her dainty jeweled fingers, the folds of her airy muslin dress. A moment afterward, when a servant came into the room to announce Mr. Andrew Sinclair, she was back in her seat by the window, rocking and toying with her fan, apparently as unconcerned and listless as though that name had not sent a quick thrill to her heart and the betraying crimson to her face. "Tell him I will be down presently," she said.

The servant disappeared. Sara went again to the mirror, and, after composing her bright, happy visage into an expression of demureness, descended to the drawing-room.

Leonore, bending over her embroidery, was not unconscious of Sara's confusion, and murmured mentally: "Ah! little sister."

When Sara came into the presence of Mr. Sinclair, she extended both hands to him with a happy smile upon her countenance, then, as if suddenly recollecting herself, drew them back again and with a formal bow of recognition passed him and took a seat at the further end of the apartment. It was evident that the willful girl was playing a part. Could it be that she foresaw what was coming—that a presentiment of that visit and its result had dictated her merry speeches in the chamber? Be that as it may, half an hour had not elapsed before she knew that Andrew Sinclair's heart, hand and fortune (the latter not remarkably large, by the way) were at her disposal.

Without deigning to reply to her lover's gallant, straightforward speech, in which he offered for her acceptance all an honorable man can give to a woman, she sat with a blushing face, evidently pleased with what Mr. Sinclair had said, yet at the same time thinking: "Well, he is the first man I ever heard say such silly things without making a fool of himself! He surely ought to do penance for the pretty way in which he manages his tongue. Besides, he is altogether too calm to suit me." Sara [illegible] her head meaningly behind the fan she was holding up for a screen, adding internally: "I wonder if I could snore like Uncle Saul does in meeting? Wouldn't it plague Andrew if he thought I had been asleep all the while he was talking so prettily!"

Sara's eyes danced with merriment as she gave two or three heavy breathings and followed them up with a nasal ex[illegible]. It was theatrically done, and [illegible] sprang up surprised, mortified [illegible]. Human nature could [illegible] longer, and Sara vented her [illegible] of triumphant laughter. [illegible] good thing for your [illegible]

[illegible] stood staring at her and choking back the indignant words that came crowding to his lips.

"Sara, listen to me!" he said, at length, as she paused from sheer exhaustion. "Is it generous or just to trifle with me thus—to turn into ridicule the emotions of a heart that offers you its truest affection? I have loved you because beneath your volatile surface character I thought I saw truthfulness and simplicity, purity of soul, a warm current of tender womanly feeling that would bring great happiness to the man fortunate enough to win your love. You are an heiress and I only a poor scholar, but if that is the reason of your scornful treatment of me, you do not possess the noble nature I have counted on."

Sara turned away her head and a suspicious moisture glistened in her eyes as her lover ceased to speak, but when she again looked toward him the old sarcastic expression was on her face, the old coquettish smile curled her scarlet lips.

"Speaking of heiresses," she said mischievously, "there is Therese Lamotte, who has wealth now at her command very much greater than mine; perhaps you had better transfer your affection to her, Mr. Sinclair! The difference in our fortunes would, I suppose, be a great consideration; besides, she might possibly think your declarations of love of much more importance than I do!"

Sara had indulged in her little caprice, but she had not counted on her lover's proud, sensitive nature when she gave to his lips her overflowing cup of sarcasm. Like an insulted prince he stood before her, the hot, fiery, indignant blood rushing in a fierce torrent over his face. With compressed lips and flashing eyes he took up his hat and, with a cold, formal bow, left her presence.

Not until he was gone, gone without a word of expostulation, leaving only the remembrance of his pale face to plead for him, did the thoughtless girl awaken to a realization of the mischief she had wrought. Then a terrible fear took possession of her, and she would have thought no sacrifice too great to bring him back to her side if only for one short moment.

"Oh, what a silly girl I am! Why need I trouble myself about Andrew? He will surely return before the day is over!" she thought, and she heard the front door close. Yet a sigh that was half a sob followed her words, and could he have seen the eager pair of eyes that peered so longingly after him as he walked away down the street, or the bright face that looked out through the parted curtains with such a wistful expression when he had disappeared, it would have been his turn to triumph.

In spite of Sara's prophecy, her lover did not return. Days lengthened into weeks, and still he came not. In all that time she did not once see him: he had passed entirely out of her life. The daily walks and rides became distasteful to her; she gave up society, grew pale and languid, and finally could not be persuaded to leave the house. If Leonore suggested that Andrew's absence was in any way connected with her sister's altered demeanor, Sara would toss her head with an air of supreme indifference and steal away to her chamber to cry over her lover's cruelty for hours at a time.

Sara's suspense and penitence becoming insupportable at last, she determined, as long as Leonore had come so near the solution of the mystery, to make a clean breast of her trouble to her. Perhaps then she could advise her what course to pursue; for to give up Andrew forever seemed every day a greater impossibility to her.

"Will you come to the garden, Leonore?" she asked of her sister, one day. "I have something of importance to say to you."

"Yes, dear: go, and I will come to you directly, replied Leonore, casting a searching glance at Sara's flushed cheeks and swollen eyes.

Hastening along the garden path as if afraid of pursuit, Sara sought her favorite arbor. Throwing herself down on the low seat, she buried her head among the cool, green vines and gave herself up to a paroxysm of passionate grief. Soon she heard steps approaching; then a pair of arms were twined tenderly about her waist and a warm hand was placed caressingly upon her head.

"Oh, Leonore," she cried in her distress, "I am perfectly wretched! Andrew and I"—here a convulsive sob interrupted her and the hand upon her head moved over her disordered curls with a gentle, soothing motion—"Andrew and I (another sob) quarreled two or three weeks ago. I was willful and rude, and said many cruel things. He grew angry and left me—and oh, dear sister, I fear he will never forgive me!"

Sara realized the soothing influence of her sister's sympathy as she felt herself drawn into a closer embrace. She continued:

"He asked me to be his wife. Ah! Leonore, then I felt how dear he was to me and what a [illegible] my life would be [illegible]

[illegible] When I heard from her that you really regretted my absence, I could scarcely keep away from you, although she counseled me to do so for our own welfare. She saw me passing the door a few moments ago and sent me to you. Need I tell you that you have made me very happy?"

Sara declares she has never forgiven Leonore and her fellow-conspirator for the deception they practiced upon her, although she has been Mrs. Sinclair for nearly two years.—[Philadelphia Call.

Scientific Prizes.

It is a gratifying fact that more astronomical discoveries, and those of more importance, have been made by Americans during the past few years, than by all the rest of the world combined. That this has been due, largely, to the impetus given by competition for the honors and prizes awarded to discoverers cannot be denied, and in order that this interest may be continued and sustained, I offer the following:

PRIZES FOR 1884.

Two hundred dollars for each and every discovery of a new comet made during the year, subject to the following conditions:

1. It must be discovered in the United States or Canada, either by the naked eye or telescope, and it must be unexpected.

2. The discoverer must telegraph immediately to Dr. Lewis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., giving the exact time of discovery, the position and direction of motion, with sufficient exactness, if possible, to enable at least one other observer to find it.

3. This intelligence must not be communicated to any other party or parties, either by letter, telegraph, or otherwise, until such time as a telegraphic acknowledgment has been received by the discoverer from Dr. Swift. Great care should be observed regarding this condition, as it is essential to the proper transmission of the discovery, together with the name of the discoverer, to the various parts of the world, which will be immediately done by Dr. Swift.

Three disinterested astronomers will be selected to decide all disputed questions. Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 8th, 1884.

No Partnership.

A bull who had been roaming around the country for several years, tossing up every object he could get his horns under, one day met a bear and said:

"See here, stranger; why can't you and I live on better terms?"

"How?"

"Why, let us travel together and whack up the profits. You don't seem to be such a bad fellow, and I know there's nothing mean about me."

"My dear sir," softly replied the bear, as he brushed a fly off his nose, "did we enter into a partnership there would be no profits. As it is, a toss is followed by a squeeze, and vice versa. Did we both attack the same victim at once we should certainly quarrel and give him a chance to escape."

"That's so—that's so," mused the bull and he lifted Wabash a point and bellowed to the bear to look out for a tumble.—[Wall Street News.

"Go and Try It."

"It will do you more good than anything I can prescribe," is what a prominent physician said of Rheumatic Syrup to a lady who was suffering from Rheumatism and neuralgia. She did so and was cured, and to-day is entirely free from pain and cannot say enough in praise of it.

Thousands of children all through the land are to-day suffering from salt rheum or scrofula, and the thousands of mothers are using liniments and salves with the hope of curing the dear little ones, but how many, but how many are disappointed and discouraged when, after trying these various applications, they find the child worse than when they commenced their use.

Mothers do you know that salt rheum, scrofula and fever sores are all the result of impure and poisonous blood, and that to effect a cure you must first cleanse the blood of its impurities?

The safest and most effective remedy to regulate the liver and kidneys and rid the system of these loathesome diseases is Rheumatic Syrup. Being a compound of roots and herbs, makes it a safe, harmless and effective remedy for young and old, feeble or strong.

Try it, and before three bottles have been used your child's skin will be as smooth and its cheeks as rosy as that of your neighbor.

An Arabic manuscript dating from the latter half of the 14th century conveys the curious information that the merchant vessels trading at that time in the Indian Ocean carried four divers, whose duties were wholly to discover and stop leaks in the hull of the craft below the waterline.

A Lady's Perfect Companion.

There have [illegible] female suffrage [illegible] but I desire to say in the full light of ripe experience, that some of these are fallacious. I refer more particularly to the argument that it will degrade women to go to the polls and vote like a little man. While I am not, and have not been a howler for female suffrage, I must admit that it has been much more of a success than prohibition and speculative science.

My wife voted eight years with my full knowledge and consent, and to-day I cannot see but that she is docile and tractable as when she won my trusting heart. Now those who know me best will admit that I am not a ladies' man, and therefore what I may say here is not said to secure favor and grateful smiles. I am not attractive and am not in politics. I believe I am homelier this winter than usual. There are reasons why I believe that what I may say on this subject will be sincere and not sensational or selfish.

It has been urged that good women do not generally exercise the right of suffrage, when they have the opportunity, and that only those whose character has been tarnished a good deal go to the polls. This is not true.

It is the truth that a good full vote always shows a list of the best women and the wives of the best men. A bright day makes a better showing of lady voters than a bad one, and the weather makes a more perceptible difference in the female vote than in the male, but when things are exciting and the battle is red hot, and the tocsin of war sounds anon, the wife and mother puts on her armor and her sealskin sack and knocks things cross-eyed.

It is generally supposed that the female voter is a pantaloonatic, a half horse, half alligator kind of a woman, who looks like Dr. Mary Walker and has the appearance of one who has risen hastily in the night at the alarm of fire and dressed herself partially in her own garments and partially in her husband's. This is a popular error. In Wyoming, where female suffrage has raged for years, you meet quiet, courteous and gallant gentlemen, and fair, quiet, sensible women at the polls, where there isn't a loud or profane word, and where it it is infinitely more proper place to send a young lady unescorted than to the post office of any city in the Union. You can readily see why this is so. The men about the polls are always candidates and their friends. That is the reason that neither party can afford to show the slightest rudeness toward a voter. The man who on Wednesday would tell her to go and soak her head perhaps, would stand bareheaded to let her pass on Tuesday. While she held a smashed ballot shoved under the palm of her gray kid glove she may walk over the candidate's prostrate form with impunity and her overshoes if she chooses to.

Weeks and months before election in Wyoming the party with the longest purse subsidizes the most livery stables and carriages. Then on the eventful day every conveyance available is decorated with a political placard and driven by a polite young man who is instructed to improve the time. Thus every woman in Wyoming has a chance to ride once a year at least. Lately, however, many prefer to walk to the polls and go in pairs, trios and quartettes, voting their little sentiments and calmly returning to their cookies and crazy quilts as though politics didn't jar the mental poise a minute.

It is possible, and even probable, that a man and his wife may disagree on politics as they might on religion. The husband may believe in Andrew Jackson and a relentless hell, while his wife may be a stalwart and rather liberal on the question of eternal punishment. If the husband manages his wife as he would a clothes wringer, and turns her through life by a crank, he will no doubt work her politically, but if she has her own ideas about things she will naturally act on them, while a man who is henpecked in other matters till he can't see out of his eyes, will be henpecked, no doubt, in the matter of national and local politics.

These are a few facts about the actual workings of female suffrage, and I do not tackle the great question of the ultimate results upon the political machinery if women suffrage were to become general. I do not pretend to say as to that. I know a great deal, but I do not know that. There are millions of women, no doubt, who are better qualified to vote [illegible] than millions of alleged men who do vote, but no one can tell [illegible]

[illegible]

SAL.

Oh, [illegible] dear John, it's early yet; I'm sure I [illegible] hurry;
It's scarcely half-past ten o'clock; your mother need not worry;
But if you want to go to bed, then I'll no longer stay,
So, love give me another kiss, and I will go away.

JOHN.

Oh, Sal, please don't! Well, take it then, now go, oh, please make haste;
If mother should come down and see your arm around my waist—
I think I'd faint; come, dearest, don't delay a moment more,
Put on your hat and shawl and I will see you to the door.

SAL.

I think it just too bad that I have got to go so soon;
Well, never mind; I'll see you, love, to-morrow afternoon;
I'll—hush! I hear your mother coming down with footsteps light;
I'm off—just one; oh, my how sweet! Well, Johnny, dear, good night.

The Married Man.

Adown the street the married man
Starts off with hurried tread,
But from the door a wifely voice
Calls "Don't forget the bread."

He smiles and nods and turns to go,
The careless married man,
When loud the servant calls to him—"O,
You haven't got the can!

He nods again in fretful style,
But pulleth down his hat,
And, lo, his sister with a smile,
Cries, "Won't you bring my hat?"

"Oh, yes," he shouts; and, truth to tell,
He need not shout so loud;
But shrieks his son, with stunning yell,
"Theatre tickets for the crowd."

His daughter from the window high,
Estops him with a call;
She wants a fan, a pair of gloves,
A new pink parasol.

He hears no more; far down the street
His echoing footsteps fly;
And all day long, in measure fleet,
He hums, "Sweet bye-and-bye."

But when the evening respite brings,
And his day's toil is done,
Though told to get a hundred things,
He hasn't brought home one.

Put Her Foot in It.

He put his hat upon the step,
Beside him in the aisle,
The gallery was filling up
With people all the while.
A stately lady came along,
Who further downward sat,
And heeding only sacred song,
Stepped straight into the hat!
The hat was just a fit and held
Her foot with sullen grip
Until he pulled the beaver off
With many a crack and rip,
He took the sorry looking hat
And homeward sped his way,
And he will wear a bran new hat
To church next Sabbath day.

Little Tricks of Trade.

Little drops of water
Added to the milk
Make the milkman's daughter
Clothe herself in silk.

Little grains of sand
In the sugar mixed,
Make the groceryman
Soon become well fixed.

Little acts of meanness,
Little tricks of trade,
All these pass for keenness,
Fortunes thus are made.

Of the 70,000 Jews in New York city fully one half are orthodox—that is, they are firm adherents of Judaism. The others are liberals, nothingarians and infidels.

Bishop Doane, of Albany, N. Y., in an article lately published, advocates prayers for the dead, but only for the faithful dead. He bases his belief in the efficacy of such prayers on the belief that these faithful departed are "not yet made perfect."

A petition is being circulated at Orange, Mass., under the auspices of the Congregational church, praying that all Sunday trains be discontinued except in cases of absolute necessity. The petition will be presented to the railroad Commissioners of the State.

The American Bible Society distributed during the month of January 6,206 Bibles and Testaments, valued at $459.25. One thousand eight hundred were given away to immigrants at Castle Garden, 2,465 to vessels and seamen's churches, and the rest among Sunday schools, Chinese and other missions and public institutions, prisons and temperance societies in New York city.

From the figures which follow it appears that the Christian churches of the country are not altogether forgetful of the spiritual needs of Utah; and the results specified are all the more cheering when we remember that, until within five years, scarcely any work was attempted. Certainly here is a most potent auxilliary to any wise legislation which Congress may set on foot. Churches to the number of thirty-four have been planted on Mormon soil, with 42 ministers and 1,297 members. In Salt Lake the Congregationalists have a self-supporting church of 150 members, and the Presbyterians and Methodists each one nearly as large. There are also 80 Sunday schools, 4,150 scholars, as well as 85 Christain day schools, with 170 teachers and nearly 6,000 pupils. Salt Lake has 8 churches Ogden 5.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. [illegible]

GIVING THE DEVIL HIS DUE.

As we have remarked before our Member of Assembly, D. C. Littlejohn, will bear watching. Last week his record in the Legislature was partially good, but mostly bad. A debate arose over the canals and as they are among Mr. Littlejohn's pet hobbies he leaped into the vortex of the debate with all of his old-time energy. From the New York Herald we re-print the account of one of his "greatest efforts:"

"Mr. Littlejohn's speech was a masterly and eloquent defence of the canal system. He spoke several times on the subject. In his first speech he handled Mr. Vanderbilt and the Central Railroad without gloves. He argued that the pre-eminence of the Empire State was due more than anything else to the great gateways projected by De Witt Clinton. No great increase had taken place in tonnage under the free canal system, but it was a matter of great congratulation that the tonnage had not largely decreased. The canals were the sole regulators of the grasping railroad corporations. Mr. Littlejohn next paid his respects to Mr. Vanderbilt and the railroad interests of that gentleman. Reference had been made to Mr. Vanderbilt as the great money king. He (Mr. Littlejohn did not stand up to claim that canal transportation was superior to that of railroads. He repeated, it would be a sad day for the State when the canal should cease to be a competitor of the railroads. Mr. Vanderbilt had made an inventory of the property of the State—property wrested from the farmers of the State—but placed a value upon it, called it his own, and sought to use it so as to give him eight per cent. upon $40,000,000 of property that never cost him a dollar. If the speaker had it in his power he would place that property back again in the hands of the people, where it belonged. He would, if he could, put the rate of fare at one instead of two cents per mile, so that fair dividends would be paid upon the lowest cost of the road. The time would come when the farmers of the State would demand the restoration of the property stolen from them by the New York Central Railroad."

We bow deferentially to Mr. Littlejohn for his "masterly and eloquent defence of the canal system," but does it not sound very much like the pot calling the kettle black for Mr. Littlejohn to castigate Mr. Vanderbilt when his own career in connection with the New York and Oswego Midland Railroad is taken into consideration.

On Thursday, however, Mr. Littlejohn made a record for himself on the prohibition question which had not a redeeming quality.

Last fall the Rev. Dr. Olin was elected to the Assembly from Binghamton as a Prohibitionist. This gentleman proposes to make the Republican party give up to the plank of their Richfield Springs platform which declares in favor of submitting a prohibitory amendment to the people. He had introduced a Prohibition amendment resolution which came up for debate in the Committee of the Whole on Thursday. After several had spoken Mr. Olin took the floor and warmly advocated his resolution and closed by saying: "I am not a fanatic, but a Republican prohibitionist, and I tell you the woods are full of that kind."

Speaker Sheard followed Mr. Olin and favored the resolution. Then came Mr. Littlejohn. We can only do him justice by giving the Syracuse Standard's telegraphic report of his views on the question:

"Mr. Littlejohn said that if he had a thousand votes, everyone of them would be given for prohibition if it would do any good. But prohibition would not prohibit. He was opposed to the idea as unwise, and he protested against the party lash being used to whip him into its support. The men who commited the party to the resolution at Richfield Springs were not sent there for that purpose. He (Mr. Littlejohn) objected to having his conscience and vote bound by others when such a question as this was involved."

This, then, is Mr. Littlejohn's position on prohibition. He is not willing to allow the people of the State of New York to say through the ballot box whether they will have prohibition. This undue opposition to temperance legislation by Mr. Littlejohn is uncalled for [illegible]

Mrs. M. Kelsey is the possessor of a rare specimen. It is of wood nicely molded, oblong in shape and about one and one-half inches long. AMALGAMATION OF RACES.

A Reminiscence of Thirty Years Ago.

[From the Sandy Creek News.]

Evidently the world moves. Some thirty years ago, an affair occurred near Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., which caused a good deal of excitement at the time. It was this: About that time there was a school situated at McGrawville, Cortland county, N. Y., known as the "New York Central college" open to all without distinction of color or sex. This perhaps was the boast of its friends. One of the Professors W. G. Allen was a colored gentleman. Among the students was a Miss Mary King, daughter of Rev. Lindon King, then a resident of Fulton, and known as a warm advocate of the colored race. In due time a mutual attachment grew up between Prof. Allen and Miss King. And when Miss King returned to her father's home, the Professor was attracted there. Then after a little it leaked out, on a certain evening that Prof. Allen and Mary King had met in the house of a friend in Phillipsville, a hamlet on the opposite side of the river from Fulton, and were to be married. The mob gathered. The Professor fled, if not for his life, from a coat of tar and feathers, doubtless. A great commotion in the community followed and many loud opinions were expressed by the newspapers throughout the country. Miss King's father published an open letter thanking the mob for rescuing his daughter and dissenting from the doctrine of amalgamation. Of course the excitement subsided in time. The friends thought the marriage idea abandoned by the young lady and after awhile she left home and went south to teach—but not long afterward her friends received the announcement that she had married the Professor and that they were on shipboard about to sail for a land where mobs should not dictate marriages.

The following was among the telegraphic news recently.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Frederic Douglass, the colored leader, was married in this city this evening to Miss Helen M. Pitts, a white woman, formerly of Avon, N. Y. The wedding, which took place at the house of Dr. Grimke, of the Presbyterian church, was private only two witnesses being present. The first wife of Mr. Douglass, who was a colored woman, died about a year ago. The woman he married to-day is about 46 years of age, and was employed as a copyist in his office. Mr. Douglass, himself is about 67 years of age.

The announcement, a few comments by the press of the country, a slight ripple in society, no mob. All seem satisfied if the parties are and why not? Truly the world moves. Who can tell what changes will take place before another generation shall pass away. C.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

D. T. Whitney, Anne Whitney, and Frances E. Willard.

It is almost wholly a record of self-made women. How did they make them? What is the secret of their success? What of their early struggles, their dark days of toil and privation, their heroism, patriotism, self-sacrifice, and devotion?—what of the years of waiting before the goal was reached?—what are the the lights and shadows of their lives?—what is the story beneath the glory? These questions are all fully answered in this new book. No no one can fail to be thoroughly entertained, elevated, and ennobled by these inspiring narratives of women who have become great in their respective spheres, many of whom began life in obscurity and poverty, earned their own living, faced opposition and persecution, braved dangers and risked their lives for duty and humanity, suffered loss of friends, standing, and money,—yet steadily rose to high position and world-wide glory by perseverence, hard work, and unfailing courage. The whole volume is full of Romantic Story, Lively Humor, Tender Pathos, Brilliant Wit, Anecdotes, Incidents, etc., and is replete with personal Reminiscences and Experiences,— no part of which has ever before been given to the public.

"From grave to gay, from lively to severe."—

As already stated, this great work is the joint production of twenty of the most distinguished of our day. Their names are: Harriet Beecher Stowe, Rose Terry Cooke, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Elizabeth Staurt Phelps, Mary Clemmer, Marion Harland, Kate Sanborn, Lovise Chandler Moulton, Mary A. Livermore, Lucy Larcom, Lucia Gilbert Runkle, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan Coolidge, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Julia Ward Howe, Laura Curtis Bullard, Lillian Whiting, Elizabeth Bryant Johnson, Elizabeth T. Spring, and Maud Howe. The combination of the talent and labors of twenty such women—queens of living American writers—for the production of a single volume, is a remarkable enterprise and one deserving the heartiest support of the public.

As might be expected this magnificent volume is meeting with an enormous sale, and agents are reaping a harvest. We do not begruge success to book agents who introduce a work of such sterling merit as this. We believe that the best way to keep out poor books is to introduce good ones, and we know not when seven hundred pages of reading have given us more real profit than has the perusal of "Our Famous Women."

Of the many splendid portraits which adorn the book too much cannot be said in praise. Although the name of these famous women are known the world over, most of their faces are now for the first time presented to the public. No better evidence of the high character of the volume need be given than the fact that these distinguished women sat for special photographs to be used in this work alone.

We advise our readers to buy "Our Famous Women" at the first opportunity. It is not a book merely for a day, or for any one class of people; it is a thoroughly standard work for all. Let every father, every mother, in fact let everybody buy and read it. Put it into your homes. Let your children have it. It will be read over and over again. You can, in our opinion, much better afford to dispense with a dozen other books than not to possess this. Once begun it will not willingly be laid aside till the last page is finished. It is sold only by subscripton through canvassing agents, and we are glad to know that an agent will soon canvass this neighborhood for it. Give the book a hearty welcome.

SUPREME COURT—Oswego County. [illegible]

[illegible] for all this and for the physical superiority of that age over the present.

It is well known to every one conversant with the history of that time that certain home compounds of strengthening qualities were almost used universally by those pioneers. The malarial evils and exposures to which they were subjected necessitated this. When their bodies become chilled or cold or debilitated by the damp mists of a new country they were forced to counteract it by the use of antidotes. Medicines were few in those days, and doctors almost unknown. Hence the preparations above referred to. From among the number, all of which were compounded upon the same general principle, one was found to be more efficient and hence far more popular than all the rest. It was well known through the middle and western states and was acknowledged as the best preparation for malarial disorders and general debility then known. The recipe for compounding this valuable article was handed down from one family, and generation to another, was known to the Harrison family and is used as the basis and general formula for the present "Tippecanoe," the name being suggested by the battle in which General Harrison was engaged. The manufacturers have thoroughly investigated this subject in its minutest details, and are certain that for malassimilation of food, dyspepsia tired feelings, general debility, prostrations, malarial disorders and humors in the blood, nothing can exceed in value "Tippecanoe," which was the medicine of our forefathers and seems destined to be the most popular preparation of the day.

"Tippecanoe" is prepared and given to the public by Messrs H. H. Warner & Co., of Rochester N. Y., proprietors of the Warner's Safe Cure, which is now the most extensively used of any American medicine. The well known standing of this house is sufficient guarantee of the power of this preparation which seeks to banish one of the greatest banes of the nineteenth century, mal-assimilation of food. Any one who experiences trouble of digestion; who feels less vigor than formerly; whose system has unquestionably "run down" and who realizes the necessity of some strengthening tonic cannot afford such symptoms to continue. If the farmer finds that his threshing machine does not separate the grain from the straw he realizes that something is wrong and he tries to repair the machine. When the food does not sustain the life; when it fails to make blood; when it causes the energy to depart and the ambition to die it is a certain sign that something is wrong and that the human machine needs repairing. It is not a question of choice; it is a matter of duty. You must attend to your health or your sickness and nothing will sooner overcome these evils than "Tippecanoe," the medicine of the past a safe guard for the present and a guarantee of health for the future.

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three years of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

The Goose Hangs High.

In Hungary this wretch was hung, and Objections which It is Said are Being Freely Made.

FULTON, Feb. 18, 1884.

To the Editor of the FULTON TIMES:

I have read with much interest the articles published in each of the village papers and I must confess that they would add to the general comfort, health and convenience of the people.

But Mr. Editor there are several things that I hear talked about and some objections and if you have space I would be glad to ask several questions in regard to the matter to which I know many persons beside myself will be glad to have answered in your paper. And to commence at the beginning, as this matter is to be voted on at charter election by the people, who are to vote—all voters or only tax payers? Are women tax payers also voters? How is the vote to be taken, viva voce or by ballot? If we vote for or against water works, and if for, do we also vote how much shall be paid? How are the details to be arranged? If the voters ballot and decide to have water works is the amount of money to be paid, the number hydrants, their location, how far the mains are to be extend, to be left to the company or to the village trustees or are the people to vote upon all those questions?

There is a feeling that the people ought to know what the expense is to be and unless it is known I fear there will be opposition because of the uncertainty of the expense. There is also another question that is much talked about: where is the water to be taken from? There seems to be an impression that the water is to be taken from the river just above the lower dam; are the people who vote upon the question to decide this? They certainly ought to have something to say about it and I find that many in favor of water works are opposed to taking the water from the locality of the lower dam. One reason is the factory frequently discharges the poisonous matter into the river. This pollutes the entire river at times and sometimes great streaks of color strike across to this side and it is possible that persons or animals might be poisoned by drinking at moments when a part of such a streak of poisonous colored water comes across. Admit that this is seldom and yet there is a liability of such a misfortune.

The water should be pure, absolutely pure if possible. Again we are told there is also a question of right to take the water from the river at this point. Sometimes it happens in the dryest part of a dry season that the flour mills, paper mills and machine shops have hardly enough water and that sometimes the dam has been bracketed to raise the water in the race. At such a dry time much more water would be used for gardens, lawns, washing and other purposes and this would take away from the mill a considerable portion of their supply. Would the taking away of the water by the water works be an invasion of their rights; would the millers permit such a prejudicial taking of water from them, would they not enjoin them from taking it and would not the money and labor put into the enterprise be wasted and a much larger additional sum have to be paid before the village got the water?

Not only are these objections made but it is also said that the water can be taken at less expense from the upper dam; that there is a fall of 22 feet from the upper to the lower dam so that the water will run of itself to any point on a level with the upper dam and nearly one half the power needed to carry the water will be saved as well as the expense of such power by taking it from the upper instead of the lower dam. This seems reasonable. It would not require a pound of power to carry the water from the upper dam to any point on First or Second street as well as most of the village north of Oneida street, and it would run to any point twenty-two feet above or higher than the lower dam which would be nearly or quite as high as the lot of the M. E. church. This would be a large saving in machinery, pumps and power. The people favor water works but they want pure water at the least expense and from the best place. And what I have written is what they are talking. By giving answer to these questions and a full explanation of what is intended to be done and how, you will oblige many who are interested in the water works and facilitate the undertaking.

We get nudged by sharpest elbows and patted on our backs,
We're told just how to lighten, the burden of our tax;
And it's often hinted careless like, as though they didn't care,
That the last who held the office, wasn't exactly on the square,
But the applicant for office is just the man we need.

In Prof. A. S. Roe, formerly of Fulton, temperance has a staunch friend. From report of a meeting of the Temperance Club of Worcester, we take the following from the Spy of that city:

"He was followed by Principal A. S. Roe of the High School, who expressed the exceeding pleasure it gave him to congratulate the members of the club on the good work they had been engaged in, and his hearty and cordial sympathy therewith. He specially endorsed their emphatic position in opposition to the iniquitous license system; temperance with him meant total abstinence from all intoxicants and the denial of governmental or legal sanction to the traffic."

The Chandler Family.

Geneology to most people is always exceedingly interesting, but little, however, is known in this country relating to the subject. Occasionally somebody becomes sufficiently interested in the matter to make a collection of family statistics which are valuable not only to themselves, but to all of their various and distant relatives, dating back for hundreds of years. In 1883 Dr. George Chandler of Worcester, Mass., compiled a book concerning the Chandler family in the United States. In 1637, according to this authority, William and Annis Chandler settled at Roxbury, Mass., coming from England, and this worthy couple have been the ancestors of 6,000 Chandlers scattered throughout the various parts of the country. In the vicinity of Fulton reside persons who are members of the family. The venerable Clark Chandler of Granby Centre is among the number, as of course are his children, Coroden S., Stephen E., and Miss Harriet A. Chandler. The main facts in the lives of these persons are recorded in this book, and the army career of Stephen Chandler forms quite a lengthy chapter. Clark Chandler is the sixth generation from William Chandler, the pioneer. Among the descendents of William Chandler, who landed at Roxbury, Mass., are Zach Chandler, the eminent Michigan statesman who died a few years since, and Ex-President R. B. Hayes.

Callenders' Minstrel Festival.

This famous company of colored artists are to appear at the Opera House next Wednesday evening. Among their number is the inimitable commedian "Billy Kersands," the great mimic Tom McIntosh, Wm. Armstrong, Pete Devoneau and all the old original favorites. The program will be an entirely new and novel one, containing all the principal features that were recently presented at the great "Music Hall" festival in Cincinnati. There will be a street parade during the afternoon, headed by their own band under the leadership of T. C. Brown. The prize banner won at Cincinnati by the band will be on exhibition during the day at the Lewis House.

"Summer Homes."

Persons living along the line of the Ontario & Western and Walkill Valley Railroads who desire to take summer boarders this season should at once communicate the fact to J. C. Anderson, 24 State street, New York for insertion in the "Summer Home" book which will shortly be published. Last season the demand was so great for this book that an extra edition had to be issued, over 30,000 copies in all; this season probably a larger number will be issued. The Company spare no pains to place this book in the hands of such people as are likely to spend the summer along the line of the road.

GORDON'S BANKRUPT SALE.

The Great Sale of the Goods Purchased by Burke, Fitz Simmons, Hone & Co.—A Rare Chance for Bargains—Crowds Turned Away.

When it was announced that Burke, Fitz Simmons, Hone & Co., of Rochester, the famous dry goods men, had purchased the stock in the four great stores of Donald Gordon, amounting to over $250,000, it was understood at once that it meant business but it was not fully understood what the word business meant with this firm until their opening on Saturday last. The announcement having been made in the Times and Express of Friday the firm had only to await the result and it has more than realized their expectations. The store has literally been besieged. We have often seen efforts made to draw custom but when the effort succeeds so far that it becomes necessary to close the doors in the face of an eager multitude of buyers it would seem to be something more than success. This can be accounted for by the fact that Burke, Fitz Simmons Hone & Co., have exceeded their promises as made in their advertisement and have given buyers even better bargains than they had a right to expect and those who had such good fortune told their neighbors and the result was such a crowd in and around the big store in the Jefferson block that it was out of the question to provide for them all although every one did his best. This grand result is also due in a large degree to the obliging manner in which customers are treated, not only by Mr. Daniel B. Murphy, who has taken charge of the store, but each and every person employed under him. Courteous treatment always has its effect upon ladies especially and they are not apt to forget it soon. A special drive made on cloaks, millinery goods, ladies' underwear and hosiery, as, having the stock of four great stores it will be seen that the stock must be sold and it is going at less than 50 per cent. The ladies of Oswego already appreciate the fact. Such an opportunity will not soon be given and the only way is for every one to take the opportunity to attend the great sale when they will be sure to find some special bargain.

Remember that all goods are marked in plain figures and that the motto "strictly one price" is adhered to, but this price is so low that there can be no quarrel in regard to it. Whether you buy or not, every one in the store will do his or her best to make your visit pleasant and will be delighted to show goods. Remember the place. No family should be without ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS; their healing powers are wonderful and their efficacy far reaching and lasting. In my own case they have afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. HALL'S was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

When you come to think of it, it is not odd that literary people prefer a pipe to a cigar. It is handier to smoke when they are writing, and ever so much cleaner. And then it gives them the true essence and flavor of the tobacco.

The most fastidious smokers among all nations and all classes of men agree that the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco Belt of North Carolina is the most delicious and refined in the world. Lighter than Turkish, more fragrant than Havana, freer from nitrates and nicotine than any other, it is just what the connoisseur praises and the habitual smoker demands. The very choicest tobacco grown on this Belt is bought by Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., and appears in their celebrated Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco. It is known the world over. Get the genuine, with Bull trade-mark, then you will be sure of having absolutely pure tobacco.

THE SUN.
NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

PILES,

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or some neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. How Watch Cases are Made.

Imitation always follows a successful article, and imitation is one of the best proofs of real honest merit; and thus it is that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case has its imitators. Buyers can always tell the genuine by the trade-mark of a crown, from which is suspended a pair of scales. Be sure BOTH crown and scales are stamped in the cap of the watch case. Jewelers are very cautious about endorsing an article unless they not only know that it is good, but that the character of the manufacturers is such that the quality of the goods will be kept fully up to standard.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., Feb. 13, 1883.

The James Boss' Gold Watch Cases go like hot cakes. Each one I sell sells another. Don't need to recommend them; they sell themselves. One of my customers has had a James Boss' Gold Watch Case in use for 20 years, and it is as good as new. With this case I do not hesitate to give my own guarantee, especially with the new and improved cases, which seem to be everlasting. JESSE T. LITTLE, Jeweler.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Jan. 3, 1883.

This gold case, No. [illegible], known as the James Boss' Gold Watch Case, came into my possession about 1858, has been in use since that time, and is still in good condition. The movement is the one which was in the case when I bought it, and its condition shows that the case has really out-worn the movement, which is played out. MARTIN A. HOWELL,

Of Board of Directors N. J. R. R. & Trans. Co.

THE WORLD CHALLENGED

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unrivalled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,
WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1883.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 25, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. A. RAYMOND."

The above may seem severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these cases in both gold and silver [illegible]

[illegible] For three or four weeks prior to slaughtering is as good a regimen as can be given; and this is quite as economical a standard food as they can have.

A gentleman seeing many of his squash plants wilt and die last season, mixed two teaspoonfuls of kerosene in a pail of water, throwing enough on every hill to wet the soil and stems. Every plant so treated lived and prospered.

The claim that stumps may be extracted by boring holes into them and filling the holes with saltpetre has not been borne out by facts. It does well in dry season, but the stumps burn easily without the aid of saltpetre during such periods.

The following is said to be a means of detecting the glanders: "A bucket half full of water should be held under the animal's nostrils and the mucus allowed to drop into the water. If the substance remains on top or spreads or dissolves in the water the disease is not glanders, but if the drop remains undissolved and sinks to the bottom the horse should be killed."

A good mode of killing poultry as it causes instant death without pain or disfigurement is to suspend the birds by tying their legs firmly to a pole or heavy wire across the killing room, a convenient distance from the floor, and opening the fowl's beak, and with a sharp pointed and narrow bladed knife make an incision at the back of the roof which will divide the vertebra and cause immediate death.

THESE ARE SOLID FACTS.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidney, or any disease of the urinary organs or who ever requires and an appetizer, tonic, or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only sure cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle. For sale by R. E. Phillips.

When you have indigestion never attribute it to your appetite. Blame the cook.

CONSUMPTION.

It is said that 50,000 people die annually in the United States alone from this disease. In some sections of the country one death in every three is from consumption. This can be and should be avoided; our people are too careless about an ordinary cough of cold and other symptoms of throat and lung affections that lead to this disease. You should arrest it while it is in the germ. Two or three doses of Dr. Bosanko's Cough and Lung Syrup will relieve an ordinary cough or cold. It does not dry up a cough like many preparations, and leave the disease behind it, but acts directly upon the throat and bronchial tubes, removing all the phlegm and morbid matter that accumulates ni the throat and lungs. It allays all irritation, and renders the voice clear and distinct. Trial size free. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

THE LEADING MAGAZINE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

ST. NICHOLAS,

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resource in art and letters commanded by St. Nicholas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. The following will be some of the leading contributors:

Louisa M. Alcott, J. T. Trowbridge,
Captain Mayne Reid, Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen,
Maurace Thompson, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Dudley Warner. Joaquin Miller,
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney,
Julian Hawthorne, Celia Thaxter,
Mary Mapes Dodge, Lieut. Frederick Schwatka,
Rose Hawthrone Lathrop, E. S. Brooks,
George W. Cable, Chas. G. Leland,
Susan Fenimore Cooper, John G. Whittier,
"H. H.," W. O. Stoddard, C. P. Cranch,

and scores of other distinguished writers. The best artists and engravers illustrate the magazine. It has been truly said that the reading of St. Nicholas is for boys and girls who are fortunate enough to have it. In no other book or periodical is instruction so happily blended with recreation and amusement.

"A LIBERAL EDUCATION"

The price is $3 a year, or 25 cents a number. Book-sellers, news-dealers, and postmasters receive subscriptions, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers, by money or express order, bank check, draft, or in registered letter.

THE ELOPEMENT.

"I won't stay in this house a day longer than I can help," said Aunt Keturah Green, jerking her knitting needles emphatically into their sheath; "no, I won't!"

"What's the matter, Aunt Keturah?" questioned Laura Green, a little absently, as her work dropped down on her lap and her blue misty eyes went wandering out among the clustering shrubbery on the lawn.

"Matter? Well, it's all matter. I don't care if he is your father, Laura, and my own brother to boot, he's a penurious old sarpint, and the way he treats Mike Reilly's enough to make one's blood boil. Just because he owes him a little money, too! Not but what I like you well enough, Laura," added Aunt Keturah.

"Then, Aunt Keturah," interposed Laura, with an increasing glow of crimson on her cheek, "why did you use your influence with papa about—about Maurice Denvers?"

"Why did I? Because I thought I was doin' my duty by you, child. Maurice Denvers is an empty-headed, conceited young jackenapes, no way good enough for you, Laura Green, and it's your father's money he's arter, and just nothing else under the sun."

"How dare you speak so, Aunt Keturah!" exclaimed Laura, suddenly rising to her feet, with rosy lips half apart and cheeks deepening with every breath [illegible]. "When——"

She stopped abruptly. The next moment Aunt Keturah was alone.

"There—she's gone," soliloquised Miss Green, stretching her neck to watch the [illegible] of Laura's blue muslin dress through the hedges of lilac and syringa; "gone, and I s'pose Maurice Denvers is there to meet her. 'Love laughs at locksmiths,' the old proverb says, and I am [illegible] it does at old maids and cross-grained fathers. I'm glad I warned Jotham, though; I hain't no faith in that airy chap, with his big seal rings and his perfumed handkercher, and his [illegible] curls. That piece o' good advice [illegible] balances that are business about [illegible] Reilly. It's all fair and square, and I'm quits with Jotham Green for [illegible] in my life!"

So soliloquising, the old maid went [illegible] to pack her travelling accessories and brush up the snuff-colored bombazine which was to be her robe du [illegible].

Meanwhile the stray sunbeams, perking their gold-capped heads down through the dense trails of the wild honeysuckles that grew by the river side, [illegible] mute witnesses to the stolen interview between Maurice Denvers and pretty Laura Green.

"You don't love me half as dearly as I do you, Laura," he said reproachfully, "or you would consent."

"Maurice!" She looked up into his [illegible] with eyes full of tender remonstrance. "You know that I love you, Maurice."

"Then, dearest, why will you not [illegible] to be mine now?"

"Oh, Maurice! ought we not to wait [illegible]? Papa may relent toward you [illegible]"

[illegible] he interrupted impatiently, [illegible] may fall. One supposition is [illegible] as the other. I tell [illegible] suspense is killing me."

[illegible]

[illegible] before [illegible] Laura."

And Laura, blushing and crying, did not withdraw the hand that lay in his, and whispered, almost inaudibly: "Yes."

"Well," said Aunt Keturah, solemnly, "your gal has acted like she was bewitched to-day, Jotham. Here she's put rock salt in the tea and set the carving-knife alongside the butter dish, and poured water into the pudding, and done everything exactly knockerside foremost. It's my belief she's going to have a spell o' fever or suthin', Jotham Green."

"I guess not," said 'Squire Green, puffing away at his pipe, and pausing in his mental calculation of how much the wheat fields on the upland were likely to yield him this year. He was a hard man, Jotham Green, and a worldly man, but the one soft spot in his flinty old heart was for Laura, his only child—the blue-eyed, light-hearted little creature, who brightened up his home with her girlish presence.

"Where is she? Where's my little gal?" he demanded, turning suddenly around in his chair.

But Laura had disappeared.

"Gone up to bed, I s'pose," said Aunt Keturah, shortly; "and I'm goin' too. I've got my things to finish packing yet to-night."

The door had scarcely closed upon the lank figure of the retiring spinster when Mike Reilly came into the room.

"A note, sir—from the bank."

'Squire Green opened it and glanced over the contents.

"Good Jericho!" he ejaculated, setting his teeth close together and contracting his brows into a dark frown. "I know he was a villain, but I didn't think he was as bad as that!"

Following the first impulse of his heart, he went up to Laura's room, but paused silently by the bedside when he saw, in the moonlight, the fair cheek outlined against the snowy pillow, and the long lashes of the closed eyelids shadowing the waxen skin.

"She's asleep," he murmured under his breath; "my little one's asleep. Time enough to-morrow morning."

And he crept out of the room on tiptoe. But Laura was not asleep. The lip quivers, the eyelashes hang heavy with tears, as she lies there softly sobbing to herself:

"Oh, papa! papa! I wouldn't mind it so much if it were not that I was deceiving papa."

The faint moonlight had long ago been extinguished in racks of driving clouds, the rain was beginning to play its soft tune on the leaves, and the old clock in the hall had just chimed 3, as Maurice Denvers, waiting impatiently by the clustered laburnums, heard the great door creak softly on its hinges, and then a whispered voice asked:

"Are you there?"

"Yes."

But instead of the lily hand of pretty Laura, a bandbox was extended through the darkness.

"Confound it!" muttered Denvers, under his breath. "I never thought of the baggage; but I must contrive to stow it away somewhere."

A square box followed; then two paper parcels; then a valise.

"Oh, botheration! one would think we were going to the East Indies for a wedding tour!" grumbled Maurice. That's a woman's calculation all over!"

And then came a soft rustle through the leafy path, a smothered "Hush-sh!" and in half a minute they were driving down the lane speedily and noiselessly.

About a mile had been traversed in this way when Maurice leaned tenderly towards his companion.

"Cheer up, dearest; we shall soon be there."

There was no answer, save an unmistakable nasal sound.

"She's asleep and, what's more, she's snoring!" ejaculated Mr. Denvers. "Well perhaps she's tired, poor thing! It's just as well, however; I wanted time to arrange all my plans and to think over what the next step is to be."

The faint crimson of dawn was beginning to glow in the east when the waterproof cloak and green veil at Mr. Denver's side began to stir a little.

"Dearest," he murmured softly, bending down towards the drooping head.

"Hain't we got to the depot yet?" demanded a sleepy voice, interrupted by a prodigious yawn. "I declare, Mike you drive slower'n a snail, and I've got the cramp in my legs and toothache besides. Deuce take the rain, say I."

Mr. Denvers drew up his horse with a sudden jerk.

"Who are you?" he demanded hoarsely.

"Who be I? Why, who should I be but Keturah Ann Green? Mercy upon us! 'Taint Mike, arter all! Hem—turn around—take me home again! There's some hitch here that I can't get the hang on, no how! I do believe Maurice Denvers is goin' to elope with me! Help! Murder! Thieves! You can't marry me agin' my own free will, anyhow! I won't say yes; I won't! I won't!"

"Will you hush, woman!" sternly demanded Denvers, pale with anger and dismay. "Who on earth do you suppose wants to marry you?"

"Well, then," demanded the irate [illegible], "what are you runnin' away [illegible] [illegible] one of me that you're [illegible] all [illegible]! I've lost my [illegible] go my false teeth! my back's [illegible] broke! Oh! oh!"

[illegible]

Miss Keturah Green broke into a hysterical sort of trill, holding on to the side of the carriage as it rattled madly over the almost deserted roads. But Maurice Denvers never ceased his pace until he reined abruptly up at the little railroad station.

"There!" he said viciously, tossing bandboxes, parcels and wrappings out on the platform, and precipitating Miss Keturah after them. "You've ruined my prospects, if that is any consolation to you."

And before she could pour forth the accumulated vials of wrath that were trembling on her tongue, the carriage had disappeared down the road.

Our little heroine also had heard the soft steps through the hall, the subdued murmur of voices, the muffled roll of the carriage wheels.

"He has come," murmured Laura to herself. "Oh, I must see papa once more before I go."

She stole softly to her father's room. As she opened the door a light streamed out into the hall. 'Squire Green was sitting at his table awake and dressed.

"Laura!" He started as he saw her white, agitated face. "Daughter!"

And he drew her tenderly to his side. "I'm not sick, little one. Don't be frightened; but I got news last night that I couldn't sleep on. See."

He gave her the letter from the bank. She glanced over it with dilated eyes and blanched cheeks.

"Father! it is not possible that Maurice has forged your name—that he is a villain!"

"There is the best possible proof, Laura. The officers are on his track already."

And Laura, clinging, pallid and trembling, to her father's side, began to realize what a narrow escape she had made.

Half an hour after sunrise Maurice Denvers was arrested for the crime of forgery. The elopement, which had been his sole hope—for surely, he fancied Jotham Green would hardly deliver his daughter's husband up to the penalties of the law—had proved a miserable failure, and we may imagine the imprecations he mentally heaped on poor old Aunt Keturah's head.

Mike Reilly waited at the foot of the lane until daylight, and then came philosophically home, put up his horses and went to work, agreeing with Hamlet that it was "better to bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of."

As for Miss Keturah Green, she went home resolved for the future to mind her own business, and Laura has not left off thanking Providence that she did not elope in the rainy darkness of that eventful morning.

The great argument for Christianity is Christianity.

About half of the Jews in New York are orthodox and half are liberal.

Round Lake camp grounds, near Saratoga, have been saved from sale and the debt reduced to $25,000 by the sale of some vacant lots.

The Congregationalists are sending out to China from the California Chinese Christians some most able and efficient teachers and preachers.

Atlanta, Georgia, has fifty-two organized churches for a population of 50,000 people. Sixteen denominations are represented and $1,000,000 in property.

Sixty-three Sunday schools in Philadelphia are contributing monthly towards a church in North Dakota. About $900 of the $1,000 proposed are already raised.

One of the most religious cities in the country is the old headquarters of American aristocracy, Richmond, Va. It has 53 evangelical churches, and 25,162 communicants, more than one-third of the population of the city.

The strict Sabbatarianism of a former generation has happily passed away. Chains are no longer stretched across our streets during the Sunday church services. We no longer fight the Sunday milk cart and horse car. But the protection of the Sabbath rest by the government has not been given up, and must not be.—[N. Y. Independent.

Wild poppies, in their brilliant natural shades, give the French name, coquelicot, to the new scarlet seen in all new fabrics for trimming.

Afternoon dresses, which may also be worn in the street, are made of two kinds of silk, or else some fine wool for the over dress, with a skirt of silk.

For light silk dresses two kinds of silk are chosen for a costume, one of which may be in small checks, or in narrow stripe, or in the glace grounds that are changeable.

The first importations of spring millinery are of colored straws in small bonnets, slightly larger than the capotes worn during the winter, and in round hats of varied shapes.

The designs for spring dresses are similar to those of last winter, but the drapery is more bouffant on the hips and back and may consist of not only one puff, but of double vertugdin puff put below the belt.

Look Out for Your Head!

No matter what part it may fatally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery in this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousand of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Apply with the finger to to the nostrils. 38t3

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three years of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

NEW YORK TIMES

FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of the well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the follies of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 THE WEEKLY TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

TOKAR, an Egyptian City, has been captured by the rebels under El Mahdi.

NINETEEN Miners lost their lives in a colliery explosion in Pennsylvania last week.

THE dead of the Jeannette exploring expedition arrived in New York last Friday and were buried with great funeral pomp.

CYCLONES swept several of the Southern States last week, causing the loss of hundreds of lives and great damage to property.

SALMI MORSE, the author of the "Passion Play" was found drowned in Hudson river at New York last Friday. It is believed that Morse committed suicide.

A NEW YORK postoffice clerk was arrested Sunday on a charge of robbing the mail. Five letters addressed to prominent firms in that city were found in his possession.

SENATOR CONGER of Michigan, is the sole successor of Hannibal Hamlin in his persistence in always wearing a swallow-tail coat in the Senate chamber.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS has accepted the invitation of the Boston city government to deliver a eulogy on Wendell Phillips, and has selected Wednesday, April 16, as the time.

SIXTY years ago De Witt Clinton estimated that it would cost $90,000 to build a canal connecting Newton creek with Flushing bay. Now that the project is again talked of, surveyors estimate that the canal will cost $100,000,000.

ENGINE No. 18 of the Boston, Hoosac Tunnel and Western railroad, has within three weeks killed at Mechanicsville, Lockwood and Dedrick, employes of the company, and James Fitzpatrick. The railroad hands fear the locomotive, and say the number is unlucky.

DETERMINED efforts are being made by New York tenants to have the rents reduced this year. The Astors, whose movements virtually control the market, do not ask any advance. Some large real estate owners have agreed to a small reduction, but the majority will stick to present rates.

THE fiftieth anniversary meeting of the Congressional Temperance society took place Sunday evening. The new president, Hon. R. B. Vance, of North Carolina, was introduced by Senator Dawes, the retiring president. Addresses were made by Hon. J. D. Taylor, of Ohio.

THE extensive hennery and adjoining buildings at White Plains on the farm of Charles J. Quincy, president of the New York Fanciers' club and one of the largest breeders of Wyandotte and Java fowls in the State, were destroyed by fire Sunday morning. Over 300 pairs of well-bred fowls valued at from $10 to $30 a pair were lost. The loss is estimated at $8,000.

Reputation with posterity has ever been esteemed one of the most powerful incentives to deeds of heroism; and one modern school of philosophy recognizes as the only true immortality of man, the enduring beneficial influence of his virtuous actions. If, however, the fabric of our civilization were seen to be tottering, it is plain that this particular stimulus to virtue would fail. But "Is our Civilization Perishable?" The question is asked in the North American Review for March, by Judge J. A. Jameson, who considers the several agencies by which the overthrow of the existing civilization might be effected. In the same number of the Review there is an article of extraordinary interest on "Agricultural Politics in England", by William E. Bear, editor of the Mark Lane Express. "A Defenceless Sea-board", by Gen. H. A. Smalley, is a description of the unprotected condition of the harbors and coast cities of the United States; and though the author employs none of the arts of the rhetorician, his statement cannot fail to awaken the people of this country to the importance of being in peace prepared for war. There are many other things of interest in the number which can be obtained of nearly all newsdealers or at the office of Publication, 30 Lafayette Place, New York.

The Brookfield Courier has the following: The village of Hartwick was the scene of no little excitement at the town meeting held there recently. It seems that the ladies had prepared a free lunch and were dispensing it to those who voted the temperance ticket, when those opposed to the modus operandi sought to drive them out by filling the room with tobacco smoke. As the atmosphere got too blue for comfort, resort was made to the windows, [illegible]

[illegible] of which came to New York. Our civil war had in the meantime given a new impetus to iron manufacturing in this country, and the reports of fabulous prices paid skilled workmen, drew the attention of many in England.

In 1865 D. F. Schenck and S. C. Schenck having established the second chain factory, and the fourth for ordinary chain in the United States secured through their agent in England the services of Mr. Atwood as Superintendent of their factory. He remained with them several years.

In 1873 he was employed to build a shop for the Miles Chain Co., at Miles, Ohio. He remained there first as superintendent and later as stockholder, until the panic and iron strike of 1876; this bringing serious reverses to all connected with the trade, he returned to Fulton, where he conducted a small shop at the time of his death.

During his life he invented several improvements in chain making, one of which perfected a pulley that entered the Industral Exhibition in 1840 at London and afterwards attracted much attention at our Centennial.

Mr. Atwood possessed in many respects rare executive ability. He was a genial companion, a kind neighbor, an earnest christian. His integrity and honesty were beyond question. His kindly ways and many virtues will remain long in the memory of the community in which he lived.

The funeral services, attended by Rev. W. F. Markham, were held at the residence Sunday, Feb. 24th at 3 p. m. A large number gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to a friend and brother. Many were unable to gain admission.

SUPREME COURT—OSWEGO COUNTY.
The Fulton Savings Bank against Charles L. Pratt, Welthia M. Pratt his wife, Myron Smith and Andrew W. Stonebury. In pursuance and by virtue of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale duly rendered in the above entitled action and entered in the clerk's office of Oswego county, New York, on the 19th day of February, 1884, I the undersigned Sheriff of Oswego county, New York, to whom it was referred in and by said judgment to make such sale will sell at public auction at the law office of Giles S. Piper in the village of Fulton in said county of Oswego on the 12th day of April, 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day the real estate and premises in and by said judgment directed to be sold and therein described as follows: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the village of Fulton, county of Oswego and state of New York, being part of mill lot number ten (10) at the State Reservation at Oswego Falls and on block one hundred and twenty-five (125) of the village of Fulton according to [illegible]

[illegible] which mark the individual of descending form certain ancestors. Too often, indeed, these characteristics are infirmaties, and often of a physical nature.

These facts were strikingly brought out during a conversation which a representative of this paper recently had with Mrs. Carrie D. T. Swift, who is the wife of one of our most prominent citizens. This lady related that she inherited from her parents certain tendencies, over which she had no control, and which were in the nature of blood difficulties, assuming the form of Rheumatism. Her experience can best be described in her own words. To the writer she said:

"I felt the beginning of this hereditary taint many years ago, in vague pains, which seemed to come unaccountably and at uncalled called for times. They were annoying, exhausting, and interfered not only with my duties, but also totally destroyed my happiness. At first, they would be only trancient, appearing only for a day or two and then disappearing; then again they would come in such violent forms, that it was impossible for me to lift a cup to my mouth. Afterwards, my feet and hands swelled so that it was impossible for me to draw on my shoes or gloves without the greatest effort, I realized what the difficulty was, but seemed powerless to to avert it. I finally became so bad that I was confined to the house and my bed most of the time. My joints pained me continuously and my feet swelled to enormous proportions. Knowing that I had inheirited this tendency, I had about abandoned hope, when I began the use of a remedy, which was recommended to me by a friend as being specially efficient in cases of a similar kind, to my great gratitude, I found that it relived me, restored my appetite, and now I am able to say that I have gained forty pounds in weight, feel perfectly well and am in the best possible condition, owing wholly to Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure, which was the remedy I used."

"No one would ever suspect you had suffered so, Mrs. Swift, to see you now," remarked the reporter.

"That is what all my friends say. Only yesterday, an acquaintance of mine, whom I had not seen for some time hesitated, before speaking, and apologised by saying, 'Why, I really did not know you, you have changed so for the better since I last met you, how well you do look.'"

"Have you any objections to giving the name of the party who first mentioned this remedy to you?"

"Not the slightest. It was Mr. R. H. Furman, the photographer."

The newspaper man, after bidding Mrs. Swift good bye, repaired to the photographic rooms of Mr. Furman, when the following conversation ensued:

"Have you been a sufferer from rheumatism, Mr. Furman?"

"Well, I should think I had."

"For how many years?"

"Twelve or fifteen."

"Did you try to cure it?"

"Yes, I tried everything, and, at last, went to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, and nothing seemed to do any good until I tried Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure."

"And it cured you."

"Yes, completely."

"And you can cordially recommend it?"

"Yes, indeed, more cordially than anything I have ever known of. It is simply a wonderful medicine. I believe that two-thirds of all cases, both acute and chronic, could be cured as I was cured by this remedy. In fact I know of a number of persons who have been in the worst possible condition, and are now completely well wholly through its use."

The statements above made are from sources, the authority of which cannot be questioned. They conclusively prove the value of the preparation named and show that even hereditary taints can be removed by the use of proper means.

Rev. Father Wilds'
EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. [illegible]
Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

AYER'S
Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

Granby Democratic Caucus.

[illegible]

[illegible] at too early a day they [illegible] a candidate his [illegible] a [illegible], he naturally feels tired and [illegible].

This was about the condition of political affairs in Fulton last week.

Things have brightened up a bit this week, however, owing to the fact that town meeting comes next Tuesday.

This town will hold its election in the hall of Stephens Opera House, while the town meeting of Granby will occur in Howe's hall as usual, although an effort will be made to have the future town meetings of Granby held at Johnston's hall.

On Saturday the caucuses of both parties in both parties will be held; in Granby the Democratic caucuses will meet at 1 o'clock in Howe's hall and the Republican caucus will convene an hour later in Johnston's Hall. In Volney the Republicans meet at one o'clock at the hall of Stephens Opera House and at 3 o'clock the Democratic caucus will be called to order at the same place.

The temperance people propose, if possible, to elect a no-license excise commissioner next Tuesday and are holding meetings in nearly every school district in the town. Last night the Rev. J. S. Riggs and J. G. Benedict spoke at the Sixteenth district. To-night meetings will be held at the following places and the speakers named will deliver addresses:

Volney Centre—Rev. J. S. Riggs.
Bundy's Crossing—Dr. W. L. Woodbury, E. R. Redhead.
Mt. Pleasant—Rev. W. F. Markham.
Owen District—J. P. Streeter.

On Sunday afternoon a temperance meeting will be held at the Sons of Temperance hall, but it has been decided not to hold a meeting at the Ontario street school house.

Sunday evening a union temperance meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church and will be addressed by the Rev. B. R. Dow, Rev. J. S. Riggs, and J. G. Benedict. On the same evening at the Free Methodist church the Rev. James A. Odell and Dr. W. L. Woodbury will speak upon the subject of temperance.

In Granby a committee of temperance men has been appointed to nominate a no-license excise commissioner.

The Republicans of Volney have succeeded in finding a candidate for Supervisor in the person of John W. Pratt, who, it is said, has expressed his willingness to become a candidate. Mr. Pratt would doubtless make an excellent Supervisor. He belongs to the powerful Republican faction led by George M. Case, and would poll a very heavy vote, not only among Republicans, but among Democrats. It is almost an assured fact that Supervisor Howard will be re-nominated by the Democrats. His election, however, does not seem as probable as it did two weeks ago. Then it was held that if Valkert Vant was not nominated by the Republicans for Collector that the votes of large numbers of country Republicans would go in the box for Mr. Howard. Leading farmers in various parts of the town have lately expressed their unwillingness to enter into any such arrangement. Republicans say too that Valkert Vant's chances for a nomination for collector have been nipped in the bud and they concede but few Republican votes to Mr. Howard.

The Collectorship contest among the Republicans has narrowed down to about three candidates—E. A. Waugh, N. R. Cole and Elwin Hart. The former has been working like a beaver since the beginning of the canvass, while Mr. Hart has had so many business engagements that he has been unable to do any electioneering whatever. Carl Fuller seems to be a dark horse in the race.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers.

The celebrated Fisk University Jubilee Singers, will appear at Stephens Opera house next Monday evening.

This troupe of colored singers are probably superior to any others in the country. They gave a concert here last fall to a large, intelligent and appreciative audience, which gave them a very enthusiastic reception. This was exceedingly gratifying, for it acts as an inducement for managers of entertainments of a high character to come to Fulton.

The western floods have interfered with the plans of this troupe, thus enabling their manager to make an engagement in Fulton before going to Europe for an extended stay. Doubtless a large audience will avail itself of this opportunity to once more listen to the rich music of these people.

There was a large and enthusiastic temperance meeting at the Methodist Church on Sunday evening. It was addressed by Ex-Supervisor H. E. Nichols, Police Justice G. S. Piper and the Rev. W. F. Markham. The two first named speakers presented facts and figures which had come under their official observation concerning the liquor traffic and the evils resulting from it in the town of Volney.

On the evening of Washington's birthday, a pleasant gathering met at the residence of R. P. Algers. The party was held for the benefit of Mrs. Kimber and was intended as a pound party, but the the pounds multiplied to such an extent that a large extension table would hardly bear their weight. A purse of $16 was also made up and presented to her. Mrs. Kimber hardly knew how to express thanks to her many kind friends, but is certainly very grateful for their rememberance of her.

"A BLESSING IN DISGUISE."

284 Adelphi St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
March 29, 1881.

No family should be without Allcock's Porous Plasters; their healing powers are wonderful and their efficacy far reaching and lasting. For years past I have seen and known them to cure and relieve the most obstinate and distressing cases of rheumatism, kidney complaint bronchitis, neuralgia, lumbago, inflamation of the lungs and throat, paralysis, asthma, spinal weakness, and coughs and colds. In my own case they have afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. They are a blessing in disguise; and no wife or mother should be without them if she values her peace and comfort and freedom from nervous exhaustion and other ailments. As a strengthening plaster, also for backaches and weakness, they have no equal. I have never yet found a plaster so [illegible] [illegible] or to give so much general satisfaction. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] capital, the village being in no way holden [illegible] to contribute to the cost of construction or maintenance of the works.

This company has entered into a conditional contract with Messrs. Hinds, Moffet & Co. of Watertown to construct and fully complete before Oct. 1st, and probably by July 1st, a system of Works upon the following plan, subject to probable extensions, but in no case to reductions.

First to erect a fire proof pump house of brick, to be located upon lower dam west of Box Factory, to place therein two Worthington duplex plunger pumps, each of a capacity of 518,000 gals per day, water to pass through revolving filters before entering pump, two turbine water wheels and other necessary machinery. Either pump arranged to run with either wheel in case of breakage. From pump a 10 inch main, supported by independent iron truss, to conduct water to First street, and by distributing mains on the following streets: First St., from Hubbard to Division; Oneida St., from First to Seventh; Wall street, from Oneida to Seneca; Cayuga street, from First to Fourth; Third street, from Seneca to Academy; Fourth street, from Oneida to Broadway; Rochester street, from Third to Fourth; Broadway from First to Mt. Adnah Cemetery. Patrons not on lines of mains will be reached by small service pipes within reasonable distance.

Twenty-eight frost proof Fire Hydrants will be placed substantially as follows: near Mason's Mill, near Thayer's Woolen Mill, at corner Wall and Oneida, near Hubbard's Bazaar, near Bennett & Stewarts, these giving three streams each. At corner Rochester and First, near residence C. R. Nichols, near residence J. W. Pratt, corner First and Broadway, corner Seneca and Wall, near res Dr. D. Pardee, cor. Second and Cayuga, cor Cayuga and Third, cor Rochester and Third, near res. F. E. Bacon, cor. Oneida and Fourth, cor. Rochester and Fourth, near Seminary, all two streams each. Cor. Seneca and Third, cor; Oneida and Fifth, cor Oneida and Sixth, cor Oneida and Seventh, cor. Academy and Third, cor. Second and Broadway, cor. First and Pratt, cor. 4th a Highland, cor. Fourth and Broadway, cor. Broadway and Fifth, one stream each. Valves so arranged as to permit repairs or extensions without interference with general service will be placed at suitable points on line of mains. In addition to duplicate pumps, for greater security a wrought iron stand pipe forty feet high and fifteen feet in diameter, with capacity of one day's supply will be erected in elevated part of village.

This enterprise is undertaken simply as a business investment, its patronage is compulsory upon no one, its success must depend upon the general patronage of the public, which can only be obtained by giving a satisfactory service.

It is safe to assume those investing a large amount of money in its construction have carefully considered the reliability of necessary power, the comparative cost from different points, as well as by analysis the quality of water to be obtained.

The average daily flow of the Oswego River in low water is 1620 million gallons; the average amount of all coloring materials including soap and soda used at the Oswego Falls factories, is 2000 pounds daily, giving as the possible pollution from this source one grain to each 116,000 gallons. Very few ingredients used are of a poisonous character, and rarely in quantities exceeding two pounds per day. As it requires two grains of arsenic to poison a person. If one should drink in an unguarded moment 230,000 gallons of this water he might realize the ill effects.

In getting these figures no deduction has been made for very large part of dyeing materials absorbed in fabrics colored. It would seem that alarm from this source is unnecessary.

There are 115 establishments which discharge into the Schuylkill above point where water supply for Philadelphia is taken, with no apparent change in its chemical properties, so great is the dilution by this much smaller stream. (See Bell's Water Supplies of the World.)

It is admitted the discharge from factory may be an objection, if found actual it will, by possible means be remedied, certainly at a fraction of the estimated additional cost $24,000 of bringing water from upper dam.

In reference to the supposed advantage of greater elevation of water at upper dam, it is sufficient to say that the [illegible] of water in pipe equals [illegible] 11 feet [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] in [illegible].

In answer to the question of excessive charges by the Water Works Company it need only be said that under the law the village can at any time compel the works to be transferred to the village upon an appraised value therefor.

By a general reduction in the Insurance rate, which is allowed by the Nat'l. Board of Underwriters the additional tax of 99cts on each $1000 assessment, will as a rule be offset by saving in insurance, and largely exceeded in much business property, even though Fire Department expenses are not reduced.

To the objection that may be made by some in the remote points of the village on account of being detached from any direct benefit of the works, it can be said that all such are indirectly interested in the preservation of all village property from destruction, by a much larger extent than tax of 99c. on each $1000. Every piece of taxable property taken from the assessment roll throws the burden which that bore upon the balance of property. The "Nelson Mill" alone pays a tax nearly equivalent to the entire amount proposed to be raised for hydrants and every tax payer is interested in having it preserved upon the tax roll. How much more is that true in preserving business and valuable property from any such great destruction as occurred at Pulaski and Wolcott, solely from lack of fire protection facilities.

The building of such works will necessarily involve the employment of much labor and the expenditure of a large amount of money in this community.

The subject of Water Works in Fulton has been agitated at intervals during the past thirty years, but has never before assumed definite shape. It is now for the tax paying electors to decide whether they shall be built, fullfillment of contract being conditional upon village voting the sum named. The amount asked being less than is generally paid for similar service in villages of Fulton's population, consequent upon our natural advantages, it is believed that it will be approved by the progressive people of this community.

Dated Feb'y 25th, 1884

Giles S. Piper,
Secretary of the Fulton Water Works Co.

Blessed Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announced the discovery that by combining well known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicine was produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors. These Bitters are compounded from Hops, Buchu, Malt, Mandrake and Dandelion and other, oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world and contains all the best and most curative properties of all other medicines, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Kidney and Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic, and mild stimulant, these Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative tonic and stimulating, without intoxication.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you're sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use the Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. ☞ $500 ☜ will be paid for a case it will not cure or help. Do not suffer yoursel for let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember that Hop Bitters is the purest and best medicine ever made; the "Invalid's Friend and Hope." No person or family should be without them.

"I was troubled for many years with serious Kidney and Liver Complaint, Gravel, etc.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about, and was an old wornout man all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood is pure, kidneys are all right, and I am as active as any man of 30, although I am 72.—Father."

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more, and I tried, but my folly proved to be wisdom, and two bottles cured her, she is now as well and strong as any man's wife, and it cost me only two dollars. HAIR RENEWER was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Analysis by Dr. A. Voelcker, F. R. S., Consulting Chemist Royal Agricultural Society, England, shows only a trace of nitrates in Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco. The soil of the Golden Belt of North Carolina, in which this tobacco is grown, don't supply nitrates to the leaf. That is the secret of its delicious mildness. Nothing so pure and luxurious for smoking. Don't forget the brand. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull. All dealers have it.

How Watch Cases are Made.

The many great improvements introduced in the manufacture of the Jas. Boss' Gold Watch Case, have led to similar improvements in the making of silver cases.

Under the old methods, each part of a silver case was made of several pieces of metal soldered together, requiring a great amount of cutting and soldering, which softened the metal and gave it the pliability of lead rather than the elasticity of silver.

Under the improved methods, each part of the Keystone Silver Watch Case is made of one solid piece of metal hammered into shape. The advantages are readily apparent, for every one knows that hammering hardens the metal while soldering softens it.

To test the superiority of the Keystone Silver Watch Case, take one of 3 oz. weight, press it squarely in the center when closed, and it will not give, while a case of same weight of any other make will give enough to break the crystal. The Keystone Silver Watch Case is made only with silver cap and gold joints.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparallel success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
StemWindingOpenFaceCase,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust-Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding [illegible]

EDITED BY MRS. MARY MAPES DODGE.

The New York Tribune once said: "In the avalanche of immoral literature that threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them and St Nicholas has reached a higher platform and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The reference to the wide resources in art and letters commanded by St. Nicholas was never more fully illustrated than by the extraordinary list of attractions which that magazine announces for 1884. "[illegible] I have done nothing [illegible] in the [illegible]. I am [illegible] piece of advice which will probably diminish the warmth of your feelings towards me," said Jack grimly. "I hope this scrape you have got into, Amy, will be a lesson to you, and will make you more discreet in your conduct. People have talked about you and Carruthers in a manner which was deuced unpleasant for me to listen to, I can tell you."

With regard to the task he had undertaken, the young man felt considerable doubt how to act for the best. For a subaltern in the Guards Jack Harwood was more than gifted with shrewd, common sense and business-like capacity. His impulse was to call upon Mr. Marmaduke Carruthers and insist upon his giving up the letter. But Marmaduke Carruthers was one of those men who inspire more candid natures with wholesome distrust and a somewhat exaggerated notion of their cleverness. He had a very doubtful reputation, and although entitled to the courtesy title of "honorable" by virtue of his father being a peer, he had the same pretentions to that desirable epithet. Jack Harwood imagined that Marmaduke Carruthers was not the least likely to part with his cousin's letter simply for the asking. It would have suited Jack's humor to back up his demand by physical force, but by this means he might only create a scandal without attaining his object. Besides, if his cousin's suspicions were correct, and Marmaduke Carruthers had been base enough to boast about the letter, the mischief could not be cured by merely getting it back again.

In order to satisfy himself upon the latter point, he first turned his steps towards the Blenheim Club, of which he was also a member. He soon discovered to his great disgust and indignation, that rumors were afloat which seriously affected his cousin's reputation. Her flirtation with Marmaduke Carruthers had been a subject of comment for some time, and latterly it had been whispered that the lady was quite willing to elope with her admirer. So far as Jack could ascertain, Marmaduke Carruthers had dropped hints which had caused this shameful report to get about, and though he had not apparently gone so far as to show the letter, he made no secret of having received it.

Jack was not a hot-tempered man, but it cost him a great effort to control his rage and indignation and to reflect calmly over the situation. He smoked two full-flavored cigars—a very unusual thing for him to do in the middle of the day, and a sure sign of mental perturbation—and after an hour's cogitation he rose from his seat with an air of desperation.

"It can't be helped. I must dissemble, as they say on the stage," he muttered to himself. "It is devilish unpleasant to have to shake hands with a man one is longing to kick. But I've undertaken the job and I must carry it through for Amy's sake, though it isn't in my line at all."

So saying, he seized his hat and started to call upon Marmaduke Carruthers at his chambers which were near at hand. Marmaduke Carruthers welcomed him with the frank appearance of cordiality which he could always assume at a moment's notice. In this particular instance, perhaps, he did no great violence to his feelings, for he and Jack were old club acquaintances of many years' standing, and the latter had the great recommendation in the eyes of an impecunious younger son of being the heir to a fine estate.

"Have some breakfast?" said the Hon. Marmaduke, when they had exchanged greetings.

"No, thanks; I have just had my lunch," replied Jack, with a forced laugh. "I will take a cigarette, if you don't mind."

"By all means. Light up," said the Hon. Marmaduke, resuming his seat at the breakfast table. "I have been up late the last few nights."

"Lost some money I hear," said Jack, puffing furiously at his cigarette.

"Well, I'm about square again now," returned the Hon. Marmaduke. "I had luck at the Phœnix yesterday, so I shall swear off for a while. What brings you here!" he added, evidently noting Jack's embarrassment.

"A very unpleasant business, Carruthers," said Jack, unable altogether to repress his temper. "I've heard something about my cousin, Mrs. Ainslie, which has rather upset me. I know I have no right to interfere between you and her; that is her husband's business. At the same time I should be awfully cut up if anything happened."

"My dear fellow, you needn't be afraid," said Hon. Marmaduke, reassuringly. "Nothing will happen. I thought matters were going a trifle too far, so I considered my duty to—to terminate the acquaintance."

"What!" exclaimed Jack. with an involuntary start.

"Well, you know, I was in an awkward fix. It turned out that the lady took our innocent flirtation au grand serieux," said the Hon. Marmaduke, smiling. "I had not bargained for anything more than a Platonic friendship, [illegible] that I was [illegible]

[illegible]," said Jack, [illegible]

[illegible] a letter.

"Read that," he said, [illegible] the table towards Jack, and [illegible] with rather [illegible] coolness.

Jack opened the letter with the air of a man who could hardly believe the evidence of his eyes and ears. After glancing quickly through it he withdrew to one of the windows and read it very deliberately, while the Hon. Marmaduke continued his breakfast with supreme indifference.

"I say, Carruthers! Will you give me this?" said Jack, advancing suddenly with the letter in his hand.

"I don't think you can ask that," returned the Hon. Marmaduke, rather hastily. "It is the sort of letter which only the lady's husband could claim, and, of course, he knows nothing about it."

"I should have thought you would have destroyed it," said Jack, looking his companion straight in the face.

"I'm afraid you don't know the world as well as I do, my friend," responded the Hon. Marmaduke, coolly, as he replaced the letter in his cigarette case. "I wish Mrs. Ainslie no harm, of course, but I must protect myself. When a woman imagines her affections have been slighted she becomes a dangerous enemy. This letter is my safeguard, and so long as it exists—or rather so long as it remains in my possession—she will not attempt to harm me."

"But you say you would give it up to her husband," suggested Jack.

"So I would if he should hear of it. In that case, from what I know of Mr. Ainslie, I imagine madam's wings would be clipped," said the Hon. Marmaduke, with a laugh which betrayed his vindictiveness.

"Will you authorize me to use my discretion about telling my cousin's husband of this wretched letter?"

"You can please yourself; but for goodness sake don't imagine I suggest such a course," said the Hon. Marmaduke, with a gleam of triumph in his eyes.

"Of course not. I cannot sufficiently thank you for this interview," returned Jack, with a faint attempt at heartiness. "Shall you look in at the Blenheim tonight in case I want to see you?"

"As likely as not. At all events you know my address," said the Hon. Marmaduke, who, as usual, was the centre of an admiring circle of youngsters. The appearance of Mr. Ainslie caused some little stir among the youthful coterie, from which it was evident that some of them, at all events, had heard of the scandal about that gentleman's wife. Jack nodded to the Hon. Marmaduke and modestly took a seat in the background; but Mr. Ainslie who looked very pale and determined, stepped into the centre of the circle which was formed in front of the fire, and said in a tone of voice which was audible in every part of the room:

"Gentlemen, may I beg your attention for one minute? I am about to take a very unusual course, but, as most of you know, I am one of the oldest members of this club, and you may therefore feel assured that I am acting under careful deliberation."

Every one in the room started up in astonishment, and one might have heard a pin drop the moment afterwards. The Hon. Marmaduke raised his eyebrows and glanced towards Jack, who was severely criticising the end of a cigar which he had just lighted.

"I regret very much having to intrude my private affairs upon you," resumed Mr. Ainslie, "but my object is to put an end to a painful scandal which has been circulated in the club regarding my wife. It is rumored, I believe, that a member of the club, who is now present, has in his possession a letter of a very compromising nature, written to him by Mrs. Ainslie."

All eyes were immediately turned towards the Hon. Marmaduke, who seemed not a little disconcerted, and sought to hide his confusion in a cloud of tobacco smoke.

"Assuming such letter ever to have been written," continued Mr. Ainslie. "I think all of us will agree that the recipient was in honor bound to keep the fact a secret. In this unhappy instance the gentleman I refer to has been so wanting in good feeling as to talk freely of the letter and its contents in this club to several persons."

"Shame!" cried an old gentleman, energetically, who probably heard of the affair for the first time, whereas the rest of the company looked at one another significantly.

"I refrain from characterizing such conduct as it deserves," said Mr. Ainslie scornfully, "but I call upon the gentleman to produce here, before us all, the letter he has been bragging about."

The Hon. Marmaduke shifted uneasily in his chair and glanced at Jack, who maintained a stolid expression of countenance. Then he said in a very fine-drawn voice:

"Do you really mean what you say, Mr. Ainslie?"

"I do," was the firm response.

"Very well. But in my turn, gentlemen, I must beg you to bear witness that this disagreeable scene is not of my making. I think I am entitled to ask, after what has passed, that the letter be read," he added, with a sudden [illegible]

[illegible] ask you to [illegible] house. You [illegible] that it given [illegible] him, but for my [illegible] as my own I feel [illegible] no alternative. With our united kind regards, believe me yours very [illegible]

AMY AINSLIE.

After the reading of this unexpected epistle there ensued a silence more eloquent than words. The Hon. Marmaduke seemed utterly taken aback, and hurriedly brought forth his cigarette case again. This involuntary movement caused a titter in the room, which developed into general laughter when the Hon. Marmaduke, having opened and glanced inside it, replaced it in his pocket with an air of bewilderment. Nothing is more galling than ridicule to a man of the Hon. Marmaduke's temperament, and the general hilarity caused him to lose his head entirely.

"It's—it's a lie! It's a conspiracy! That is not the letter I gave you, Rowlands!" he cried excitedly.

"What the deuce do you mean by that, Carruthers?" cried Mr. Rowlands, who was a hot tempered individual. "I will swear that this is what you handed me and I have read it word for word."

"Several voices were raised in indignant verification of this statement, and the Hon. Marmaduke, found the feeling of the room so strong against him that he apparently considered it would be useless to attempt to offer further explanation. Perhaps, too, he found it difficult to collect his thoughts, for he was trembling with rage and vexation. At all events he rose from his seat, and said:

"The matter shall not stop here. I—I will prove that the letter I received was not the one which has been read."

"The subject must, as a matter of course, be brought before the committee," said Mr. Ainslie, as the Hon. Marmaduke walked out of the room, with a futile attempt at a dignified bearing. "For my part, gentlemen," he added, addressing an entirely sympathetic audience. "I propose to tender my resignation, if the committee choose to accept it. My wife's good name being at stake, I could not be delicate about the means of vindicating it. This letter which has been so much talked about in the club has now been produced and read to you, and I think that you will agree with me that it effectually disposes of the scandal.

It was a rather singular circumstance that, in spite of the threat, Hon. Marmaduke made no attempt to bring his grievance before the committee. He contented himself with asserting that Jack Harwood had, at a private interview, substituted another one for the letter Mrs. Ainslie had written to him. But Jack easily disposed of this accusation, which nobody was inclined to believe, by a contemptuous shrug of his shoulder, and popular indignation was so thoroughly roused at the Hon. Marmaduke's conduct that the most plausible explanation could hardly have saved him. The upshot was that he withdrew his name from the club, thereby anticipating the action of the commitee, which at the instance of Mr. Ainslie investigated the affair. No questions were asked of that gentleman and his resignation was not accepted.—[Belgravia.

Young ladies having thin arms now wear very low-necked dresses with long sleeves of a different color and material from the dress.

Young girls wear very short dresses for dancing. They are trimmed with real butter-cups and daises, which at this season cost more than roses.

Fashionable New York girls are learning the art of scientific dressmaking, impelled thereto by the enormous expense involved in following the present fashions.

At a recent ball in New York, a bouquet of cabbages and turnips, tied with streamers of oil-cloth and Turkey red, was sent to the leader of the german. Very stupid "fun."

A skating dress of gold and ruby cloth, trimmed with plush of Vandyck red, a short-cape of plush, and a fur hat, was much admired on Central Park lake, New York.

The best leap-year fun we have heard of is a theater party where forty young ladies invite young men, and give them (at a private house) a supper afterward. There is safety in numbers.

The costliest dog collars, generally worn by pugs, are of gold and silver set with diamonds, opals, emeralds, and other jewels, the initial letters of which spell out the name of the wearer or its fair owner.

Evening dresses of great taste and elegance are made of new ecru batistes, nearly covered by gold or silver figures that make them look like cloths of gold or silver; but this stuff comes among millinery goods only.

A fashionable woman of New York, who receives a few friends every afternoon at five o'clock, wore recently an elaborate tea gown of gold-colored satin, trimmed with deep flounces of tulle duchesse embroidered in gold. A loose jacket of orange-colored velvet, embroidered in gold, opened over a chemisette of tulle; a "train independant" of orange colored velvet completed this elaborite "undress," which was very much admired.

FARM GOSSIP.

No one who plants an orchard should fail to keep a register of the trees.

Horn and hoof shavings are exceeding rich in nitrogen and should be utilized on the farm.

A compost of good muck with lime has sometimes been found as effective as manure, load for load, upon light and heavy soils.

Never give fattening cattle rapid changes of food, but change often and give as much water and salt at all times as they will take.

Should you be keeping a large flock of hens and the choice lay between feeding the milk to pigs, decide in favor of the hens every time.

Manure to be used in hot beds should not be allowed to get dry. If there is any danger in this, turn over with a fork, watering as you go freely.

Plant must be laid and provisions made for the work of a whole season. It is a poor policy to have to run to the store for everything as it is needed.

A cold, damp, airy temperature will cause animals to consume more food without corresponding results in bone, muscle, flesh and fat, much being used to keep up warmth.

The garden seeds and plants should all be ordered now. Think of the delays in filling orders at the last moment and the danger of getting the waste and culls of more thoughtful buyers.

Though the cost of starting and planting a hedge is less than that of building a good board fence, hedges are not adapted for farmers who will not give them the continued care required to keep them in good order.

The roller on the wheat should be the first work on the farm when the frost gets out of the ground and before the high, drying winds blow the fine particles of soil from the roots of the plant. Wheat suffers more from the spring winds than the winter frosts. The remedy is the roller.

NEW YORK TIMES

FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 THE WEEKLY TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

HENRY A. TILDEN, brother of Samuel J. Tilden, is not expected to live.

THE Governor has signed the Comstock bill prohibiting the making of further contract for labor of convicts.

THE Sun believes that "Regard for the exact truth obliges us to record the fact that at the present time James G. Blaine leads all other candidates for the Republican nomination."

THE constitution prohibitory amendment bill was lost 68 to 61 in the Assembly last week. D. C. Littlejohn voted against instead of for the bill which would have passed by the Speaker's breaking the tie had he voted for it.

SENATOR EDMUNDS has just written to a friend who sent him a number of newspaper clippings favoring his nomination for the presidency; "I am extremely obliged to you for your kind interest and good wishes, but I can say with absolute candor that I have no disposition whatever to hold that place to which you refer, or to have my name used in connection with it. I am none the less grateful, however, for the good opinion of my countrymen."

ON Thursday morning last Laura Lavarine, known to the world as the tattooed woman, gave birth in Baltimore to a 15-pound boy. The remarkable thing about the child is that it bears the same marks or tatooed figures on its skin as does the mother, these marks being identically the same both as to position and color. The tattooing of the mother is in blue and red India ink, and the marks on the baby are in the same colors, representing snakes, animals, flowers, and figures all over the body, except the face.

A WASHINGTON correspondent writes the following to the Rochester Union: "For two or three days Mr. Holman has been unusually sad. Mr. Dana came here last week, stayed in the capital three days, visited the president and talked two hours with him in the president's private office, played billiards in the Arlington barroom with his London correspondent, Mr. Laffan, and played in his shirt-sleeves; passed half a day in the society of two arboriculturists swapping lies about trees and shrubs, and did not go near Holman and Holman did not go near him."

ON Sunday morning a fire broke out in the shoe manufactory of H. J. Halbrook & Co., at Utica. The conflagration which followed was the most disastrous in the history of Utica. The Holbrook building, M. B. DeLong's furniture house, James Rockwell's clothing house, M. C. & E. D. Comstock's storehouse, the Utica City National bank, Newell & Sons' paper and glass store, the Utica Observer building and office, Comstock Brothers' wholesale house, C. H. Sayer's hardware store and Edward Martin's gasfitting and plumbing store were totally destroyed with most of the contents. The Utica Observer saved its files and little else. The losses amount to nearly a million dollars.

ORRIN MERRILL, of Orskany, has begun suit against the canal and lake steamboat company to recover $20,000. In October last, young Merrill was a passenger on the canal boat packet Lewis Lawrence from Utica to Oriskany, and while the latter boat was passing the steam canal boat Jupiter, owned by the defendants, the agents of the company owning the latter, negligently and carelessly turned the valve in the escape pipe, or that part of the steam engine through which the surplus hot steam and hot water are let off, which is called the surface blower, and let the hot water and steam escape thereform and discharge itself into the "Lawrence," that the steam and water struck the Merrill boy on the abdomen, thighs, and other parts of the body, burning and scalding him badly, whereby he became seriously impaired in physical health and was confined to his bed several weeks under the care of physicians.

Weather Record for February.

The month just closed has been a remarkable one in more than one respect. During the month we have had only eleven inches of snow, being a small amount for February. We have had no clear days which is another singular fact. The month has been quite mild which is a noticeable feature, the mean temperature at 7 A. M., being 22½ degrees above zero. The middle part of the month was the warmest, the coldest day the 29th.

The warmest day the 13th, and the roughest the 29th. The greatest snow fall at one time was only two inches. It rained on 6 days and snowed at least on 10 days. On 12 days the mercury rose above the freezing point, and only on 4 days it sank below 10 degrees above zero.

The 29th was the coldest day and the roughest for the same day in 40 years. The nearest to it in cold, was in 1872, and next to it in bluster, in 1852.

The greatest amount of snow for February during the last 40 years was in 1858, being 61 inches. Then follow 58 inches in 1866; 38 inches in 1864; 35 inches in 1870, 34 inches in 1844; and 33 inches in 1858, 1862, 1869 and 1888.

The least snow in February 1851 and 1880, 2 inches each; 7 inches in 1848; 8 inches in 1863, and 9 inches in 1852, 1859, 1878 and 1882.

The coldest February for the last 31 years was in 1875; the mean at 7 o'clock A. M. being only 7-3 degrees. The next to that was 11-2 degrees in 1868; 11-7 degrees in 1865-6 and 14 degrees 1858. The warmest February during that time was 28-3 degrees in 1857; 26-4 degrees in 1867 and 23-5 degrees in 1867 and 2[illegible]-1 degrees in 1877. The lowest point of mercury in February for above named time was 33 degrees below zero Feb. 6, 1855. Next to that 30 below on February 8, 1861. The highest point 57 degrees above in 1857, and 54 degrees in 1875.

Mrs. Haily of Brooklyn has sued Mrs. Schroeck, her next door neighbor, for stealing the affections of her husband. She fixes the damages at $10,000. Mrs. Schroek is not worth ten cents and the man she is alleged to have enamored has lived for years off the earnings of his wife, who is a washerwoman. The records of the police court show he has often been brought up for beating and abusing her because she would not give him her wages to buy whisky with, instead of spending it for bread to keep the children from starving.

"A BLESSING IN DISGUISE."

284 ADELPHI ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.
March 29, 1881.

No family should be without ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS; their healing powers are wonderful and their efficacy far reaching and lasting. For years past I have seen and known them to cure and relieve the most obstinate and distressing cases of rheumatism, kidney complaint bronchitus, neuralgia, lumbago, inflamation of the lungs and throat, paralysis, asthma, spinal weakness, and coughs and colds. In my own case they have afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. They are a blessing in disguise; and no wife or mother should be without them if she values her peace and comfort and freedom from nervous exhaustion and other ailments. As a strengthening plaster, also for backaches and weaknesses, they have no equal. I have never yet found a plaster so efficacious and stimulating, or to give so much general satisfaction. Used in connection with BRANDRETH'S universal life-giving and life-healing PILLS, no one need despair of a speedy restoration to good sound health. MRS. E. TOMPKINS.

ONE TRIAL.

If you have been using other Plasters one trial of Allcock's Porous will convince you of their wonderful superiority. Take no other so-called porous plasters that claim to be better, they are all frauds gotten up to sell on the world-wide reputation of the genuine article.

Mr Padbock, Postmaster at Wolcott, N. Y., says: "I can safely recommend Rheumatic Syrup to all who are suffering with indigestion and rheumatism, as one of the surest and best remedies ever offered to the public. I have taken many so-called remedies, but found no relief until I commenced the use of the Syrup, and after three weeks' use I had no pain, and could move around as well as ever. My difficulty was in my hips and back, and I feared I had some kind of kidney affection, but I am now entirely free from it and as well as ever."

NOT A HUMBUG.

Colonel Richard Forgham of Lyons, N. Y., says that by the use of a few bottles of Rheumatic Syrup, he was completely cured of a very severe attack of rheumatism, which confined him to his room for months. He also said that he had no faith in patent medicines, but has changed his mind since using Rheumatic Syrup.

A Lady's [illegible] Companion.

[illegible] in Rochester, N. Y., about twenty years ago. The Genesee river, [illegible] falls, where Sam Patch made his [illegible] and fatal leap, became completely blockaded by ice, forming an impassible dam, and the water coming down the Genesee river overflowed the principal portion of the city of Rochester. This catastrophe would have been repeated the present year had not the energy and foresight of the the city authorities prevented it. The writer happened to be in Rochester at that time and was greatly interested in the manner in which this great catastrophe was averted. Every few moments, a roar like the peals of thunder or the booming of cannon would be heard, and in order to see this ice blasting process, the writer went to the top of the new Warner building which overlooks the Genesee river. From here he was not only enabled to see the process uninterruptedly, but also the magnificent building which has just been completed. This is unquestionably the finest building devoted to business and manufacturing purposes in America, and being entirely fireproof, eight stories high, and containing over four and a quarter acres of flooring. Mr Warner treated your correspondent very courteously, and in the course of the conversation said:

"We are doing a tremendous business and are far behind our orders. This is the season of the year when people, no matter how strong their constitution may be, feel more or less, the pain and indisposition, the headaches, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, dull pains, sore throats, coughs—all the 1001 ills that flesh is heir to, come this time of the year, if at all. It is natural, therefore, that we should be very busy. This is specially true of our Safe Rheumatic cure, and it is crowding us very sharpely for a new remedy."

"Singular, but I had forgotten that you do not advertise to cure all diseases from one bottle, as is done generally by other medicine men, but I supposed Warner's Safe Cure was for the cure of rheumatism."

"And so it has been until our remedy especially for rheumatism and neuralgia was introduced. We have been three years perfecting this new remedy. Study first taught us that there were certain powerful elements in Warner's Safe Cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, that made wonderful cures and in chronic and acute rheumatism, but during our investigation, we learned of a remarkable cure at a celebrated springs, and put experts to investigate and found that the springs did not contain any valuable properties, but the course of treatment that was being there was performed all the benefit. By carefully combining the active principles of this remedy with our Safe Cure, we have produced our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and the cures it is effecting are simply wonderful, and I do not doubt it will become as popular as our Safe Cure."

"You seem to talk freely in regard to your remedies and appear to have no secret, Mr. Warner."

"None whatever. The physician with his hundred calls and one hundred diseases, is necessarily compelled to guess at a great deal. We are enabled to follow up and perfect, while physicians can only experiment with their hundred patients and hundred diseases. With the ordinary physician the code binds him down, so that if he makes a discovery, he is bound to give it to the other physicians, which, of course discourages investigation, to a great extent. This is why the great discoveries in medical science of late years have been made by chemists and scientists and not by physicians, and it in a measure accounts for the great value of our remedies, also the remarkable success of those doctors who make a specialty of one or two diseases."

"And you find that you are curing as great a number of people as ever before?"

"Yes, a far greater number. We never sold so much of our medicine as now and never knew of so many remarkable cures."

The writer departed after the above interview, but was greatly impressed, not only by the sincerity of Mr. Warner, but by the vastness of all he saw. Mr. Warner's medicines are used the entire length and breadth of the land, and we doubt not the results they are effecting are really as wonderful as they are related to be.

AYER'S
restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.
It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.
MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."
J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."
MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."
MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."
We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

THE SNOW STORM [illegible] LAST WEEK.

The Flats are Flooded and Families are Driven from their Houses in the Night—The Railroads.

A blustering snow storm which proved to be the most severe for several years set in last Wednesday night. A high wind accompanied the snow which did not cease falling until Friday night, when the country roads was left in almost an impassable condition.

The inhabitants on the flats who had been fearing a freshet for several weeks were flooded by the waters on Friday night and some ten or a dozen families were obliged to seek shelter among their neighbors, some of them during the night. The water came up to a point near Schenck & Swan's lumber yard. Since Saturday noon the water has receded.

The snow also interfered with the railroads. Trains on the New York, Ontario and Western road were abandoned between Oswego and Oneida all day Friday and portion of the day Saturday. The New York train which should arrive here at 9;36 did not get here until 12 o'clock Thursday night. Besides being hindered by the snow an intoxicated man passing between two cars fell from the platform. The train at the time was between Oneida and Cleveland and was running at the rate of 30 miles an hour. Every one supposed the man had been killed and the train was stopped, the conductor and a brakesman going back to look for the remains. After a half mile's journey they saw a furrow in the snow down a twenty foot embankment. Following this trail they found their man in the ditch on his hands and knees entirely unhurt, but covered with snow.

With considerable difficulty they succeeded in getting him on board the cars and landed him at Cleveland, his destination.

After leaving Fulton the train became stalled in VanBuren's cut about two miles north of Fulton. The engine was detached and succeeded in reaching Oswego. Two engines were sent back and in trying to reach the train in the blinding snow one of them ran into the baggage car, lifting the train from the track and demolishing the front platform. The stalled train did not reach Oswego until Saturday afternoon. There were only two passengers on board when the train left Fulton, Miss Poucher, of Oswego and a gentleman, the young lady remaining on the cars for two nights and a day.

None of the trains on the D. L. & W. road were stalled, although some of them were late.

The roads in the village were almost impassable on Thursday and Friday and business was nearly at a standstill.

The storm can be compared in severtiy with one which occurred a few winters since, when Fulton had no mail communication with the outside world for for several days.

"Pirates of Penzance."

Next Tuesday evening the pleasing opera, The "Pirates of Penzance," will be rendered at Stephens Opera House by the Wilbur Opera Company, who comes highly commended by the press, the Louisville Commercial giving them following laudatory notice: "The Wilbur Opera Company gave the favorite opera of the "Pirates of Penzance" at Macauley's Theatre. Miss Ray Samuels displayed her voice to good advantage. Mr. Brand, as the Pirate Chief, fully sustained his reputation, and the rest of the cast was all that could be desired, and the opera was given in a very satisfactory manner."

Owing to the severe storm last Friday, the social to be given at the Odd Fellows Rooms on that evening was postponed until Friday evening of this week. A good time is guaranteed and a cordial welcome extended to all.

Miss Florence Gregg entertained friends at the residence of her parents at Pennellville Friday evening. Several were present from this village, Fulton and Central Square. The parlors were crashed and an exceedingly pleasant occasion was enjoyed.—[Phoenix Register.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church held a sociable in the church parlors last Wednesday evening. A large attendance was present and a very pleasant evening was passed. F. T. Halpin and Miss Cora Foster entertaining the company with vocal solos.

The Sons of Veterans are about to organize a drum corps. They have already six snare drums, a bass drum, and six fifes. They have engaged a a teacher from Mexico. There will be a meeting of the Sons of Veterans at the Grand Army Rooms next Friday evening for the purpose of completing the organization. Sons of veterans who are sixteen years old or over are invited to attend.

Friday evening Richard Foote will play at the Opera House in Shakespeare, Richard III. An excellent actor himself, whose rendition of Richelieu largely contributed to the success of the Princess theatre, London. Richard Foote has concentrated his experience and talent upon the purpose of establishing a company which can present Shakespeare's plays with a high standard maintained throughout. The design is happily illustrated here when Blanche Revere, Frank Wolfe, Clara Morris, W. H. Whedon and Ernest Allen appear. The company is perfect in every detail and Mr. Foote is considered the best Richard III in America.

Below we print Mr. Piper's reply, in which he repeats emphatically what he said before that he cannot accept the office for another term:

Fulton, N. Y., Feb. 29, 1884.

Hon. Abram Howe and many other fellow townsmen.

Gentlemen:—Your favor bearing date the 20th instant was handed to me some days since and it affords me great pleasure to peruse it and the names it bears. That my administration of the office of Police Justice has met with such approval is also very gratifying to me. I must, however, emphatically decline to accept the office for another term. Trusting that you will believe I decline the office for good reasons rather than from being weary of well doing, I am

Most Respectfully Yours,
GILES S. PIPER.

The Sunday Night Mass Meeting.

The Presbyterian church was literally jammed Sunday evening to listen to the temperance addresses. The first Speaker was J. G. Benedict, who gave a history of the efforts of the temperance people to suppress the sale of liquor under a no license board, and the legal difficulties which they encountered. Mr. Benedict was followed by Rev. B. R. Dow who made a vigorous address and struck the key note to the situation when he said that the only way which the traffic could be stopped was by the citizens putting their hands in the pockets and raising a fund to prosecute violaters of the law. After a hymn by the choir Rev. Mr. Riggs addressed the audience and urged concentration of effort on part of the temperance elements, momentum with out direction is simply a great force stumbling over obstacles and not accomplishing anything. It is well enough for those who so desire to vote for temperance men and to select them from other parties to form the tickets but remember that what we are after next [illegible] hold it until we can put the other forward next spring by the election of another no-license man and the man will have a majority in the board and we can accomplish the overthrow of the liquor traffic in this community." Rev. Mr. Markham acted as moderator of the meeting and introduced the speaker. After Mr. Riggs' address the audience sang the doxology and were dismissed by a benediction by Rev. B. R. Dow.

HALL'S

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Analysis by Dr. A. Voelcker, F. R. S., Consulting Chemist Royal Agricultural Society, England, shows only a trace of nitrates in Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco. The soil of the Golden Belt of North Carolina, in which this tobacco is grown, don't supply nitrates to the leaf. That is the secret of its delicious mildness. Nothing so pure and luxurious for smoking. Don't forget the brand. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull. All dealers have it.

Though the day seems dimly distant when the power of love shall rule,

Yet we must remember we are in the father's school,

So slow the mills are grinding we scarce can progress see

That we get impatient waiting for the better times to be.

But our Father works in ages in the earth's slow, cooling crust,

In the crushing by the glacier of the pebbles into dust,

In the life and growth of planets in the river of life that runs,

In the trembling, heaving earthquake in the birth and death of suns.

Then let us cease to cavil and put willing trust in Him,

Knowing love will stoop to conquer and in the end will win,

While all the worlds in splendor below, around, above,

Feel the glorious presence of the warmth and growth of love.

Thou Father, gavest love to conquer, the foes of all mankind,

The bond of common brotherhood to ever closer bind,

Thou has set it a glorious beacon to be forever burned

Till the last, lone, distant wanderer, has seen it and returned.

Hate never conquers foes, work it ever as we will,

He that by stripes is overcome, has heart rebellious still,

None but may be reached by omnipotence above,

Working by the warring power of everlasting love.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases is made of a composition known as albata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, bends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accummulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 17, 1883.

In our long and varied experience in handling watches, we cannot but acknowledge and give our testimony that the Keystone Solid Silver Watch Cases are the best made to our knowledge. Having no soldering they remain homogeneous, harder and stiffer than they would be were they heated for soldering, and have more resisting power against pressure than any other cases in the market. THE WORLD CHALLENGED will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,
MANUFACTURED BY THE
AMERICAN WATCH CO.,
WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. R. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The sunshine was warm and still on the high road, and I was rather glad when we came to the cool shadows of the Red Swamp, when the birds are all silent in the noon heat, the sweetest of odors came floating up from the tangled recesses of fern, on either side of the solitary railed-in road.

All at once old Pomp gave a sidewise start—his ancient idea of shying—and then I saw a man, pale, dusty and tired-looking, sitting on a fallen log; I was like mother—who would never let the shabbiest or meanest looking vagabond go past our house without a draught of milk, or a piece of fresh baked pie, or a slice of our famous home made cake—and without stopping to think, I drew up old Pomp's rein."

"Are you going towards Lennox Cross Roads?" said I. "Yes?" "Then jump in; I'm going in that direction, too, and I'll give you a lift."

He thanked me in a silent, drooping sort of way, and seated himself on the board at the back of the wagon, toward which I pointed with the handle of my whip.

"You look ill," said I.

"I am not ill," he said, with a smothered cough. "Only tired with my long walk, I didn't know it was so far to Lennox."

"I suppose you are going for work?" I said. "Deacon Brierley has a good many hands just now in his tobacco factory."

"No," said he, "I am not going to work."

I asked no more questions. I did not like the idea of a man's shrouding himself in mystery in that sort of way; and as I glanced around once more a sudden revelation came across me like a blaze of light. It was the man who had eyed me so keenly on the steps of the Park Hotel. Then I remembered my mother's words of caution, Leeman's reiterated exhortations, the landlord's friendly words of warning.

And in spite of all, I had deliberately thrust my silly head into the jaws of danger. There was only one thing to do—to get out of the scrape as best I could.

I cast about in my mind how to do this, and presently, with a beating heart I dropped a little paper parcel of blue ribbon into the road.

"Oh," I cried, checking up Pomp, "I've dropped my parcel! Would—would you mind getting out after it?"

"Not in the least," said the stranger; and he climbed laborously out of the wagon.

He had scarcely set his feet on the ground before I laid the whip on to old Pomp with a will, and rattled away over the long, straight road at a pace that seemed perfectly marvelous to me and Pomp both.

So we left our passenger behind in the middle of the Red Swamp. I could see him standing there, blank and astounded, the sole figure in the long perspective, as I ventured to look; but I only whipped Pomp all the harder; and never let him abate his pace until we were well out of Red Swamp.

"I've out-generaled him," said I to myself, "and saved Leeman's twenty-four dollars. I'm sorry about the blue ribbon; but it was only a yard and a quarter, after all, and I can trim Lil's hat with something else."

They were delighted at my prowess when I related my adventures at home. Leeman declared I was a capital little market-woman; mother shuddered at the idea of the desperate tramp alone with me in the tangled wilderness of the Red Swamp; Lil declared that I was a heroine.

"Wasn't it a good idea for Kate to drop the blue ribbon, and send him after it?" said she.

"Kate was a goose ever to let him get into the wagon," said Leeman knitting his brow.

"Kate mustn't go by herself such a long distance again," said mother.

"I drank my cup of tea and rested myself, and went out afterwards to see the new brood of darling little yellow chicks which Old Speckle had brought off the nest during my absence.

I was on my knees in the hen-house, feeding them with scalded meal from the palm of my hand, when I heard mother calling me from the house.

"Kate! Kate! come at once! Colonel Hay has arrived."

"Colonel Hay?"

I started up looking with blank dismay at my calico dress and the meal stains on my hands.

A STUDY OF HUSBANDS.

By a Woman for Women and May Be Read by Men.

We hear much about the art of winning a husband. Let us take a step further and make a study how to keep one. If he is worth winning he is worth keeping. This is a wicked world, and man is dreadfully mortal. Let us take him just as he is, not as he ought to be. In the first place he is very weak. The wife must spend the first two years in discovering these weaknesses, count them on her fingers, and learn them by heart. The fingers of both hands will not be too many. Then let her study up these weaknesses, with a mesh for every one, and the secret is hers. Is he fond of a good dinner? Let her tighten the mesh around him with fragrant coffee, light bread and good things generally, and reach his heart through his stomach. Is he fond of flattery about his books? Let her study the dictionary for sweet words, if her supply gives out. Does he like to hear her talk about his brilliant intellect? Let her pore over the encyclopedia to give variety to the dearth of her admiration. Flattery is a good thing to study up at all hazards in all the delicate shades, but it must be skillfully done. The harpy who may try to coax him away will not do it absurdly. Is he fond of beauty? Here's the rub—let her be bright and tidy; that is half the victory. Next, let her bang her hair metaphorically and keep up with the times. A husband who sees his wife looking like other people is not going to consider her broken down. Though it is a common sneer that a woman has admitted that her sex consider more, in marrying, the tastes of her friends than her own, yet it must be considered ludicrous that a man looks at his wife with the same eyes that other people do. Is he fond of literary matters? Listen to him with wide open eyes when he talks of them. A man doesn't care so much for a literary wife if she will only be literary enough to appreciate him. If she have literary inclinations keep them to herself.

Men love to be big and great to their wives. That's the reason why a helpless little woman can marry three times to a sensible self reliant woman's none. Cultivate helplessness. Is he curious? Oh, then, you have a treasure; you can always keep him if you have a secret, and keep it carefully. Is he jealous? This is not for you. Cease fretting that tortured heart that wants it all for its own and teach him confidence. Is he ugly in temper and fault finding? Give him a dose of his own medicine, skillfully done. Is he deceitful? Pity him for his weakness; treat him as one who was born with a physical defect, but put your wits to work—it is a bad case. It is well not to be too tame. Men do not waste their shot on hens and barn yard fowls; they like the pleasure of pursuing wild game—quail and grouse and deer. A quail is a good model for a wife—neat and trim, with a pretty, swift way about it, and just a little capricious. Never let yourself become an old story; be just a little uncertain. Another important fact is don't be too good; it hurts his feelings and becomes monotonous. Cultivate a pleasant voice, so that this very mortal man may have his conscience prick him when he is in jeopardy; its pleasant ring will haunt him much more than would a shrill one. It is hard to do all this besides taking care of the babies and looking after vexatious household cares and smiling when he comes home, but it seems necessary. "To be born a woman is to be born a martyr," says a husband who, for ten years, has watched his wife tread the wine press of existence. It is a pitiful sight to some men. But if the wife does not make a study of these things the harpy will, to steal away the honor from his gray hairs when he is full of years and the father of sons and daughters. At the same time, good wife, keep from trying any of these things on any mortal man but your own. These rules are only evolved in order to keep a husband. The poor weak creature would rather be good than bad, and it is woman's duty to hold him by every means in her power.

A Long Trip.

A bright faced, red headed boy, 14 years old, dressed in the uniform of a messenger boy, called at a pawn store Saturday and threw a pawn ticket for a gold chain on the show case and said: "Gimme that chain."

Mr. Lewyt looked at the ticket, which he at once recognised. "The man to whom this ticket belongs is in New York," he remarked to the boy.

"Well, that's just where I came from," said the boy. The little fellow then said that on Saturday afternoon a call came to the Seventy-second street office, East Side, New York city, for a [illegible] in the Philadelphia central police station. She was but a child, so young that she could hardly speak plainly, and so small that a policeman had to help her up the steps to the station house.

"Did you put my mother in jail?" The officer stared at the little waif: they had arrested a tangle haired woman who spoke four languages in her rage, and fought the officers like a fury, and they did not dream that this was her child; but it was.

The little thing seemed so innocent and pure they did not want her to see her mother caged like a wild beast behind iron bars; but the mother heard her voice and called for her, and so they swung open the door and let the little creature in. She went to the cell door looked in and cried:

"Why, mother, are you in jail?"

The mother shrank back ashamed, and the child dropped down on her knees upon the stone floor, clung to the iron door and prayed:

"Now I lay me down to sleep and I hope my mother will be let out of jail."

The strong men had a strange moisture about their eyes as they gently led the little thing away, and when the case came into court his honor whispered to the woman to go home, and for her child's sake and behave as a mother should. Perhaps she will do so—unless she will meet with some one licensed to deal out that which makes fathers act like brutes, and mothers forget the sucking child. Perhaps she will prove a true mother—unless some honored and respected citizen gets her crazy on a dram, on which he gets a profit of six cents. Strange things are done in this world; but few are more strange than the wonders wrought by the devil's draught, which in an hour turns love to hate, calmness to frenzy, quiet to confusion, and a mother to a fiend.

Still a Slaveholder.

A strange reminder of the ante-bellum days was witnessed a short time ago in the busy streets of the peaceful City of Staunton, in the Valley of Virginia. A sturdy mountaineer from Pocahontas Co., W. Va., had made his way from his seclued fastness in an outlying district across the Cheat and Alleghany Mountains, 150 miles to the nearest center of civilization, to make sale of some stock, the fluctuations in whose value once sent a throb through the commercial world. In his his high and insolated eyrie, enjoying the independent freedom and simplicity of rural life, he had not heard of "war's alarms" and none of the confusion incident to secession had disturbed the peaceful rounds of his life. He had tended his flocks, cultivated the soil and prospered until the surplus was beyond his consumption. Reckoned among the wealth that could be disposed of as no longer necessary for his needs were two finely-built colored men, and it was more particularly to sell these that he had gotten the consent of his mind to make the perilous journey to the nearest point within the pales of civilization.

Arrived in Staunton he asked for a slave dealer, and tried in vain to sell his slaves. He could not be convinced that there had been a great war, and at last he left in disgust. When last seen he and his dusky property were on their way back home to enjoy a life free from the vices of an unreal civalization.—[Staunton Correspondence of the Baltimore American.

An Open Winter.

"See here, sir, Mr. Vennor," exclaimed an irate citizen, "didn't you predict an open winter?"

"I—I—yes, I did," retorted Mr. Vennor, pulling himself out of a snowbank and vainly striving to keep his teeth from rattling out of his head.

"So I thought," resumed the indignant citizen, "and relying on your predictions, I neglected an opportunity to buy two new stoves, a roll of flannel and a dozen blankets at a big bargain. Now the things are costing me four times as much," and he tilted Mr. Vennor back into the snow bank.

"My predictions are all—all right, my dear sir," insisted Mr. Vennor, regaining his feet, "and you must not blame me if you misinterpreted it."

"Indeed! How did I misinterpret it, pray?"

"It is simple enough. I predicted an open winter, didn't I?"

"Yes."

"Well, every day or two the winter skies open and let down an avalanche."—[Philadelphia Call.

A Noble Deed.

Jay Gould stopped at an apple stand on Wall street, and, picking up a big red apple, cautiously inquired its price.

"Four cents," replied the proprietress of the establishment.

[illegible] a story [illegible] back to [illegible]. The writer tells how he was [illegible] black log. From one of the [illegible] open [illegible] serpent, which was easily killed. The man who tells the story continues from this point as follows: On stretching it out I found it to be thirty-one feet two inches in length, and the thickest part of its body measured twenty-nine inches in circumference. It was a different species of serpent from any ever seen before. Its tail was armed with a sharp-pointed and curved horn, its body was variegated with alternate brown and dirty yellow stripes, and on close examination I discovered that it had been totally blind, its eyes seemed to have turned into a reflectionless, hard, bone-like substance. This explained its undecided, hesitating movements when it first came from the log. A strange crease appeared about the neck just back of the head, which I found to be caused by a stout thong of leather, about which the flesh of the serpent had grown until it had sunk almost out of view. Cutting the thong and removing it, I found attached to its under side a copper plate which had heretofore been hidden by the body of the snake, and on one side of it was scratched: "D. Boone, April 15, 1779." I split the log in two, and near the lower end of the hollow I found where there had once been an opening, but long years ago it had been closed up with a plug made of oak wood, about and over which the maple had grown until it was almost concealed. The dead appearance of the small portion visible of the oak plug was all that called my attention to its existence. My theory of the matter is this: Daniel Boone, many years ago, on the date recorded on this piece of copper, caught the snake, then young and small, fastened the copper plate about its neck, and imprisoned it in the hollow of the tree by means of the oak plug, where his snakeship had remained until the day I delivered him to free air and sunlight again.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

The recent Republican Convention at Nebraska was called upon to approve the operations of the high-license law of that state. The resolution received but one affirmative vote.

Father Walworth of Albany, recently stated before the Legislative Committee that in Buffalo the ratio was one liquor store to every seventeen persons, and affirmed that it was the most drunken city in the State.

Forty-one deaths in the aggregate of members of the National Division of the Sons of Temperance have been reported at the last five annual sessions of that body. The youngest was 85 years of age, the oldest 92, and the average at death was over 66.

"Now and then," said Henry Ward Beecher, "a man can steal a horse, but we should not lay to the state from which it is taken the charge of abetting the theft." Certainly not so long as the State prohibits theft; but if the state should license theft, would it not then become an abettor?

The New York Commercial Advertiser sums up the situation in this city in a brief paragraph: "The liquor dealers are up in in arms and eager for the fray. Rather than submit to a high license they will pull their barrels and grease the wheels of legislation. 'On to Albany' is the alcoholic cry: 'Down with temperance and its advocates!' aut rum, aut nullus!' It is a fair fight between clear heads and the best interests of the community and the spirit of evil, and the right is bound to win."

"That lady is handsome, but she looks as if she had a temper of her own," remarked one drummer to another on the train yesterday. "You bet! You read character correctly," was the reply. "Why, you speak as if you was acquainted with her!" "Well, I am, slightly. I married her some ten years ago and I have been studying her ever since."

NEW YORK TIMES

FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the follies of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign [illegible]. During the Presidential year of 1884, THE TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt [illegible] information of the progress of the canvass.

MR. HALSTEAD, who is in Washington, called to see Mr. Blaine the other day. The latter gave the friendly journalist to understand that he was not in the Presidential race. "I feel justified in believing," says Mr. Halstead "that Mr. Blaine meant every word he said. In fact he aspires to be Secretary of State again. He would like to answer Bismarck's letter on the Lasker resolution," added the Cincinnati editor, "and what a ringer it would be!"

PERSONS who have visited Albany report that the proposition finds favor to reduce the legal rate of interest to five per cent. The argument is urged that no large loans are made on real estate above that rate, and that legislation should accord with the fact. Many commercial loans, it is also urged, are placed at five per cent. or less, and long loans will pay less than four per cent. The rates of interest certainly tend downward.

MR. TILDEN told "a remarkably beautiful girl" who, the other day, pronounced the view from his Gramercy observatory "the prettiest thing she ever saw," that it must be she "never looked in her mirror." "I tell you," said the relator as he continued his story "a man that can say such things at his time of life is not too feeble to run for the Presidency. I'm for Tilden every time." The speaker was Erskine Phelps of Chicago, president of the Iroquois club.

The press of the State does not speak very approvingly of Mr. Littlejohn's window resolution. Here are a few extracts from the Auburn News. "The [illegible] of Assemblyman Littlejohn's [illegible] to be a very costly thing. JOHN JARRETT, of the American Tin Plate Association, has prepared a paper to be sent to the committee on Ways and Means in answer to the statement of Mr. Sherman, of the New York Free Trade Club, that labor received only eighteen per cent of the value of manufactured products. Mr. Jarrett says the trouble with Mr. Sherman's deductions is that he has included the item the value of material in his calculations. This he should have deducted from the value of the products. Had he done so he would have found the percentage paid as wages no capital invested to be sixty per cent.

As soon as it became known in Brazil that a monument to Longfellow was to be erected by subscription at Cambridge, the scholars and literary men of that country, led by the Emperor, started a movement to assist the work. The Emperor headed the subscription list with $250, and the Count d'Eu followed with $50. Men of letters, poets, journalists, professors, students, and ladies added their subscriptions, as Longfellow's poems are well known and popular in Brazil. The Baron of Paranapiacaba, himself a poet, has just forwarded the amount of the subscription to the Brazilian Consul-General here. Salvador de Mendonca, who yesterday sent the money on to Mr. Arthur Gilman, the Secretary of the Longfellow Memorial Association in Cambridge.

From Our Exchanges.

Only witness against a girl charged with stealing in Oswego, was a boy four years old. He took the oath and told a very connected story.

Hugh C. Miller, clerk, was married, eight years ago, to Caroline Miller, of Oswego, by the Rev. Alexander Miller, father of the bridegroom. On February 22, Mrs. Miller had her husband arrested for failing to support her. While the case was being heard, Wednesday, in New York, Miller, Sr., placed a paper in the hands of his daughter-in-law, which proved to be a summons in a divorce proceeding upon the charge of adultery. The woman denies the accusation.

Samuel P. Wigg, a lumber dealer was arrested at Oswego, Monday, at the instance of Ross & Co. of Quebec, charging him with being about to leave the country for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. His property has been attached and he is confined in default of $20,000. Wigg says his intention to leave the country was well known to Ross & Co., and it was for a social and not business purpose. He owes Ross & Co., considerable money, but claims it is not due.

The jail in Lyons had a troublesome prisoner—a negro indicted for burglary in the first and second degrees. He has twice made attempts to escape from the jail, and is unusually incorrigible. For a week he has been confined in a dark cell, but that doing no good he was on Saturday shackled, the irons being riveted by a blacksmith.

At the annual meeting of the Syracuse Civil Service Reform association, last Thursday evening, Dr. Fisk, the secretary, in his report stated that the Syracuse club was one of the most influential in the United States, because of the large number of leading men connected with it. The following new officers were chosen; President, N. F. Graves; vice presidents, I. G. Vann, W. C. Ruger, C. N. Sims, G. F. Comstock, E. W. Leavenworth; secretary, Richmond Fisk; treasurer, J. L. Bagg; corresponding secretary, J. F. Comfort.

A correspondent of the Utica Herald writes from Morrisville that there is no truth in the rumor that a petition is in circulation there, praying for a commutation of Mrs. Haight's sentence, or that Hon. William Murry, the presiding Judge, signed the same or intends to do so. On the contrary, the sentence is considered just and righteous by all who have known of the case. Mrs. Haight refuses to be seen or interviewed by any one.

AN extensive strike is in progress among the cigar makers of New York and the Cigarmakers Progressive Union keep pickets posted near the factories to induce other cigar-makers not to go to work. Last week four of these pickets were arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct, but upon being brought into police court were discharged. It is to be hoped that employers will learn after a time that work people have some rights which they are bound to respect. There are numerous instances of the arrest of sentinels who have been quietly trying to induce others not to fill their places, and in every such case the prisoners have been discharged when brought into police court. Judge McAdam, of New York, in a test case some time ago, said that in picketing a factory there was no violation of the law, and that pickets had the right to warn other workmen from taking the places of strikers. When employers are contemplating the arrest of peaceable strikers they should bear these things in mind.

Mrs. Jennette Southard died at her home in Granby last Thursday at the age of 78 years. With her husband she came about fifty years ago from Steuben county, where she was born. They have resided in Granby since, and both have always been held in high esteem by their neighbors. They have been the parents of seven children, six of whom are living. Mrs. Southard is also survived by her husband who desires to thank those who have shown many kindnesses during deceased late illness and to the choir of Oswego Falls Congregational Church for music furnished at the funeral.

The Loiselles.

Charles and Maxime Loiselle were tried last week in Rome before Judge Sutton. The trial continued from Wednesday until Friday, Charles Loiselle being entirely indifferent to his surroundings, while Maxime, the Oswego Falls man, gave way to fits of hysterics. The Utica Herald of Saturday contains the following account of the conclusion of the trial: "All the evidence had been given and the argument was given alone. Mr. Pomeroy, counsel for the prisoner, made a strong plea in his behalf, speaking about fifty minutes. At one time during Mr. Pomeroy's speech he was obliged to take his seat on account of Maxime, who had one of his peculiar spells, hooting, kicking and shaking, and three officers had difficulty in holding him. District Attorney Mattison followed. After a short charge by Judge Sutton, the jury retired at 11:35.

Soon after 12 o'clock, the jury returned and asked if the stolen property was found in the possession of the prisoner, if that convicted him of burglary. The court answered that it did not necessarily, and the jury retired.

At 5:30 the jury again entered the court room. Maxime and Charles were brought up, Maxime crying like a small boy. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty, and Maxime was sentenced to state prison for five years.

Charles Loiselle was then asked to stand up. In response to the question as to whether he had anything to say or not why sentence should not be passed upon him, he said, "I am the guilty man, my brother is not."

The court—You have admitted your guilt and have confessed that your entire life has been devoted to burglary. It was his trade and profession, and it was the duty of the court to protect the public against said persons. The sentence of the court was that he be imprisoned in Auburn state prison for the term of his natural life.

"Is that all I am going to get?" asked the prisoner. He took the sentence very coolly while his brother cried and yelled. They were taken from the court room by three officers, and will be taken to Auburn the first of the of the week."

While walking down Pennsylvania avenue the other day I met Mr. William M. Ashley, formerly of your city, whose long residence here has made him unusually well acquainted with the operations of the lobby.

Having made my wants in this particular direction known, in answer to an interrogative, Mr. Ashley said:

"Yes, during my residence here I have become well acquainted with the workings of the 'Third House', as it is termed, and could tell you of numerous jobs, which, like the 'Heathen Chinee,' are peculiar."

"You do not regard the lobby, as a body, vicious, do you?"

"Not necessarily so, there are good and bad men comprising that body; yet there have been times when it must be admitted that the combined power of the 'Third House' has overridden the will of the people. The bad influence of the lobby can be seen in the numerous blood-bills that are introduced at every session."

"But how can these be discovered?"

"Easily enough, to the person who has made the thing a study. I can detect them at a glance."

"Tell me, to what bills do you refer?"

"Well, take the annual gas bills, for instance. They are introduced for the purpose of bleeding the Washington Gas Light Company. They usually result in an investigating committee which never amounts to anything more than a draft upon the public treasury for the expenses of the investigation. Another squeeze is the abattoir bills, as they are called. These, of course, are fought by the butchers and market-men. The first attempt to force a bill of this description was in 1877, when a prominent Washington politician offered a fabulous sum for the franchise."

"Anything else in this line that you think of, Mr. Ashley?"

"Yes, there's the job to reclaim the Potomac flats, which, had it become a law, would have resulted in an enormous steal. The work is now being done by the government itself, and will rid the place of that malarial atmosphere of which we hear so much outside the city."

"During your residence here have you experienced the bad results of living in this climate?"

"Well, while I have not at all times enjoyed good health, I am certain that the difficulty which laid me up so long was not malarial. It was something that had troubled me for years. A shooting, stinging pain that at times attacked different parts of my body. One day my right arm and leg would torture me with pain, there would be great redness, heat and swelling of the parts; and perhaps the next day the left arm and leg would be similiarly affected. Then again it would locate in some particular part of my body and produce a tenderness which would well nigh drive me frantic. There would be weeks at a time that I would be afflicted with an intermitting kind of pain that would come on every afternoon and leave me comparatively free from suffering during the balance of the twenty-four hours. Then I would have terrible paroxysms of pain coming on at any time during the day or night when I would be obliged to lie upon my back for hours and keep as motionless as possible. Every time I attempted to move a chilly sensation would pass over my body, or I would faint from hot flashes. I suffered from a spasmodic contraction of the muscles and a soreness of the back and bowels, and even my eyeballs become sore and distressed me greatly whenever I wiped my face. I became ill-tempered, peevish, fretful, irritable and desperately despondent."

"Of course, you consulted the doctors regarding your difficulty?"

"Consulted them? well I should say I did. Some told me I had neuralgia; others that I had inflamatory rheumatism, for which there was no cure, that I would be afflicted all my life, and that time alone would mitigate my sufferings."

"But didn't they try to relieve your miseries?" "Yes, they vomited and physiced me, blistered and bled me, plastered and oiled me, sweat, steamed and everything but froze me, but without avail."

"But how did you finally recover?"

"I had a friend living in Michigan who had been afflicted in a similar way and had been cured. He wrote me regarding his recovery and advised me to try the remedy which cured him. I procured a bottle and commenced its use, taking a table spoonful after each meal and at bed time. I had used it about a week when I noticed a decrease of the soreness of the joints and a general feeling of relief. I persevered in its use and finally got so I could move around without limping, when I told my friends that it was Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure that had put me on my feet."

"And do you regard your cure as permanent?"

"Certainly, I havn't been so well in years as I am now, and although I have been subjected to frequent and severe changes of weather this winter, I have not felt the first intimation of the return of my rheumatic trouble."

"Do you object to the publication of this interview, Mr. Ashley?"

"Not at all, sir. I look upon it as a duty I owe my fellow creatures to alleviate their sufferings so far as I am able, and any communication regarding my symptoms will care that may be sent to me at [illegible] avenue will receive prompt and careful attention."

"Judging from your recital, Mr. Ashley, there must be wonderful curative properties in [illegible]"

TO THE COMMITTEES OF THE ESTATES OF LUNATICS, IDIOTS, OR HABITUAL DRUNKARDS IN OSWEGO COUNTY:

I desire to remind the committees that the statute, (2,341 of the Code of Civil Procedure) requires them to file in the County Clerk's office, in January of each year, annual accounts of their proceedings in relation to their estates, and annual inventories showing the amount and value of the property in their hands.

It is also the duty of the County Judge under section 2,343 of said Code, to examine said accounts and inventories in February of each year, and also to compel, by order, the filing thereof of such committees as have neglected to do so.

Upon examining the files of the county clerk's office, I find that very few have been filed for any year.

A strict compliance with the above mentioned statute will be required, and I trust that the committees in default will attend to the matter at once.

Dated at Chambers at Mexico, N. Y., this 23d day of February, 1884.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three pears of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

...politics ...office at the coming charter election are beginning to show their colors. The candidates for Police Justice have been named before. F. D. VanWagenen, jr., and Herman Hulett are still anxious to secure the Republican nomination with the chances about equally divided between them. Mr. VanWagenen is confident that he will be successful, but Mr. Hulett is equally confident and the contest between the two promises to be sharp.

John Sharp is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Police Justice and it is probable that he will be successful in the caucus unless a stronger candidate than any of those previously named should appear in the field to oppose him.

President J. F. Herrick will not be a candidate for renomination. Jeff. Bailey has been mentioned as a candidate for trustee, while Dr. W. A. Hall and William Waugh are mentioned as possible candidates for village President, Thomas D. Lewis has also announced himself as a candidate for this office. Mr. Lewis is well versed in business affairs, he represents directly and indirectly a large amount of property and would make an excellent President. Since he is willing to assume the duties of an office, which for many reasons is so undesirable, it is to be hoped that he will be nominated and elected.

Either of the other gentlemen mentioned, however, would make excellent Presidents.

It is understood that Dr. Hall would accept the office, but it is not known whether Mr. Waugh would consent to become a candidate or not.

The Water Works.

The Fulton Water Works Company have improved upon its proposed plans by concluding to run a twelve inch suck pipe from the pumps to a point near the deep lock, and this, it is believed, will prevent any filth from the factories being pumped into the pipes, and thus will a serious objection against the construction of the water works in Fulton be remedied.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT.

Fulton Becomes a Wheat Market —Nearly 10,000 Bushels Bought by Fulton Millers.

Fulton is becoming famous as a wheat market. Yesterday at about eleven o'clock a. m., First street was lined with teams from the Lewis House to Taylor Bros' knife factory. In all there was about 4,500 of which Gardner & Seymour purchased about 2,500 bushel and W. G. Gage & Co. receiving the balance. The grain is drawn mostly by Victory and Ira farmers. The market was also flooded with wheat last Wednesday, not less than 5,000 bushels being brought in town, Gardner & Seymour, W. G. Gage & Co., each receiving about half. The average price paid was $1.17. This is the largest amount of grain ever brought to Fulton at one time.

Baird's Minstrels.

To-morrow evening Baird's minstrels will give an entertainment in Stephens Opera House. The troupe is one of the best on the road and will receive without doubt a liberal patronage. The band is under the leadership of Matt Elder, who is well known in Fulton and the orchestra is led by Prof. Speurl from the Howard Athenæum, Boston. Of the company as constituted this season the Boston Herald says: "The Windsor Theatre was opened last evening by I. W. Baird's Mammoth Minstrels, who began their fourth annual engagement. Always the best. Baird's minstrels, like good wine, improve with age, and this year Manager Baird has brought us an entertainment, refined, original and brilliant throughout, which suffers nothing in comparison with others."

Wanted to Play "Richard III."

Richard Foote and Theatrical Company came to town last Friday to play "Richard III." They had been previously billed, but Manager Stephens, of the Opera House, subsequently learned something decidedly detrimental to Richard and refused to allow him and his company to play at the Opera House. Next day Richard made an abortive attempt to secure Nichols Hall for Monday. Finally becoming disgusted he and his company left town. Mr. Stephens and the public are to be congratulated that an attempt to play at "Richard III." was not permitted, for certainly to render Shakespeare's plays a company must be composed of actors of a national reputation.

An Eloquent Missionary Sermon.

The Rev. J. S. Riggs preached a sermon on Sunday, his topic being missionary work and the necessity of this church making a large contribution this year. He desired the church to give $1000. Two years ago they gave $800 and over $600 last year. He said there were three principal objects for the bestowal of missionary funds—Educational, Publication and Ministerial relief. More men were being called for in the foreign missionary field and there was need of ministers to respond to these calls. It was not the wealthy who sought the ministerial profession and it cost $4,000 and ten years of hard labor to prepare young men for the ministry. The sermon was attentively listened to.

A few months ago Dr. D. E. Lake established an office and commenced the practice of medicine in Syracuse. His intention was to remain in that city every day of the week but Saturday and Sunday. The Wilbur Opera Company.

The rain of last evening did not deter a goodly number of Fulton inhabitants from visiting Stephens' Opera House for the purpose of hearing the Wilbur Opera Company in the comic opera, "The Pirates of Penzance." This is the first presentation of the opera in Fulton, and the audience was delighted and more than satisfied with the performance. It is safe to say that a hearty welcome awaits their return to Fulton.

ELEPHANTS SPECIALLY.

Saturday night the allied attractions are to join a grand street parade, which will be one mile long, with fire works, forty elephants and a thousand horses, nine different kinds of music. If the weather continues, I pity the Zulus and Hottentots "in native costume" and the "beautiful women in gorgeous costumes" (cotton tights and paper cambric waists.) The weather—but I won't say a word about it, for every one knows of the blizzard. New York has felt it as much as other places and all sympathize with each other.

The recent set back our city fathers received from the Rosevelt bill is keenly felt by them all and now that our young champion is pushing the high license bill, too, several of the aldermen begin to despair, for if that bill becomes a law I guess that three-quarters of our city rulers will have to close up their shops and strike out for pastures new. It is a burning shame that such a city as New York can have it said that the majority of its rulers are grog mixers. The president of the board is the proud possessor of three gin palaces. Talk about cleaning the streets, I think it high time to begin that process inside the city hall.

A sort of righteous wave seems to have swept over the city. The detectives have lately landed behind the bars several noted leaders in criminal circles, The "4-11-44" shops of Thompson street are all closed up and the gamblers of all kinds know not where to lay their games. Several opium joints in Mott street are closed and the Sunday license law is very well enforced. The recent convictions of "The" Allen, Sandy Spencer and Billy McGlory speaks volumes, and the society for the Prevention of Crime is striving to convict other noted keepers of low resorts.

A New Yorker last week contributed a thousand dollars to the "conscience fund" at Washington; who says there's no hope for New York. The Hudson River Tunnel, although nearly forgotten by everyone, is still in existence and the work on both sides is progressing rapidly, and there is some possibility of this wonder of engineering being completed in another year. Then the Brooklynites can walk over one river and under the other to Jersey City, and all the railroads now terminating in the latter city will be extended to New York The Arcade Railroad Company has procured its charter and will soon begin work on the Broadway tunnel. All the existing pipes, sewers and tubes are to be moved at the company's expense and provided with a separate tunnel. The excavations are to extend not less than sixteen feet below the surface of the street and a foot path is to be provided for pedestrians, with stairs at every crossing. An endless cable will undoubtedly be the motor used.

And a charter has just been given a new surface rapid transit company, which is to place tracks in most of the important crosstown streets, from the Battery to the Harlem river; also a track from the Harlem, down Lexington avenue and through several avenstreets to the bridge and then down through Pearl and Broad streets to South Ferry. This will supply a long felt want, for most of the cross town lines run "bob tail" cars and what can be worse than these? The motive power used will be the endless cable, with all the latest improvements. The bridge trustees won that suit I spoke of in my last letter and the Elevated Rail Road station must go.

The theatres are, as usual, doing well. Abbey opens the spring season of Italian opera, with Hamlet, Don Giovanni, Martha and Faust. "Confusion" reigns at the Comedy theatre and the "Princess Ida" has settled down at the Fifth Avenue. "Separation" is yet at the Union Square, while the "Alpine Roses" still bloom at the Madison Square. Nat Goodwin and wife are to be seen at Haverly's and the "Shaugraun" at the New Park. This play has lately been bitterly denounced from several Catholic pulpits in this city, but this it seems has made the play more popular. Thatcher, Primrose and West are at Niblo's, John McCullough at at the Star and the "Voyage en Swisse" with the acrobatic Hanlons is at the Third Avenue. "The Country Girl" at Daly's and "Lady Clare" at Wallack's are playing to crowded houses. Robson and Crane with their "Boarding House" are at the Grand Opera and "Cordelia's Aspirations" is still running smoothly at Harrigan & Hart's, and is soon to be replaced by "Cordelia." "Orpheus and Eurydice" is to be withdrawn from the Bijou and be replaced with ...

HALL'S

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

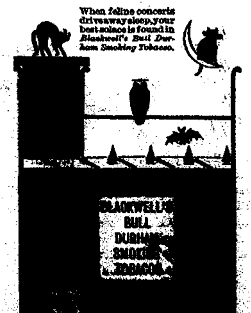
Analysis by Dr. A. Voelcker, F. R. S., Consulting Chemist Royal Agricultural Society, England, shows only a trace of nitrates in Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco. The soil of the Golden Belt of North Carolina, in which this tobacco is grown, don't supply nitrates to the leaf. That is the secret of its delicious mildness. Nothing so pure and luxurious for smoking. Don't forget the brand. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull. All dealers have it.



When feline concerts drive away sleep, your best solace is found in Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco.

THE SUN.
NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Sun printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race [illegible] thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

It is with pleasure I write you in regard to your Rheumatic Syrup. I think it my duty to let the suffering public know what it has done for me. I have suffered greatly two years with rheumatism in my hip. I have tried many liniments but received no benefit from them. Being acquainted with a number who had been cured by the Rheumatic Syrup, I gave it a trial, and I am cured after using but four bottles. I I know the Syrup will cure any case of rheumatism, if taken as directed, as hundreds will testify to in this immediate vicinity. I am gratefully yours,
John P. Fowler, Justice of the Peace.

Pimples, blotches, sores, or scaly eruptions on any part of the body can be cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, which cleanses the system and blood of all impurities, and builds up the debilitated system and gives new life to the feeble and overworked sufferer.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases is made of a composition known as albata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, bends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accummulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 17, 1883.

In our long and varied experience in handling watches, we cannot but acknowledge and give our testimony that the Keystone Solid Silver Watch Cases are the best made to our knowledge. Having no soldering they remain homogeneous, harder and stiffer than they would be were they heated for soldering, and have more resisting power against pressure than any other cases in the market. THE WORLD CHALLENGED

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificate of cure prove it to be an unparallel success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being composed of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT
DUST-PROOF
Stem Winding Open Face Case,
MANUFACTURED BY THE
AMERICAN WATCH CO.,
WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1883.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881."

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

CONQUERING A HUSBAND.

"Uncle Phil has been lecturing me again!" exclaimed Mrs. Marian Dykes, as her husband came home to tea one evening. "I cannot and will not stand it any longer!" and the young wife dropped into a chair as though the last remaining portion of her strength had left her.

"What was the subject of the lecture, my dear?" inquired Mr. Dykes, with a cheerful smile, as though he did not regard the situation as at all desperate.

"You know very well that Uncle Phil has but one subject."

"And that is extravagance or the reverse, economy," added Mr. Dykes.

"Of course that was the subject of the lecture; and you always take his side of the question. Uncle Phil has ten times as much influence with you as I have. Whatever he says is right and whatever I say is wrong," retorted Mrs. Dykes, rather warmly.

"If supper is ready, I think we had better attend to that next; and we shall have the whole evening to discuss Uncle Phil's lecture. The subject will keep for awhile."

"But Uncle Phil will be here to take part in the discussion, and that is just what I don't want. He overshadows me entirely when he says anything, and I might as well hold my tongue as to speak," pouted the wife.

"Uncle Phil will not be here, Marian. It is half past six, and he has to go to church meeting at seven."

"Very well, but I'm going to have something done this time. I won't have Uncle Phil here any longer. If he is to stay in this house I shall not!"

Mrs. Dykes was very young, and her angry pout, as she sailed out of the room, made her look decidedly pretty; at least so thought her husband. But before she was fairly out, the door opened and Uncle Phil came in. The door was ajar and he must have been in the hall during some portion of the lady's severe remarks about him. He looked as placid as though earth had no sorrow for him. He was a man of fifty, though his hair and beard were white enough for seventy.

He did not seem like a man who could be very disagreeable if he tried. He had a deaconish look about his face, that of a serious though not austere man. Certainly no one would have taken him for a shipmaster, but he had spent most of his life at sea or in foreign ports. He used to read the Bible to his crew every Sunday, and allowed no swearing or other bad language in his presence on ship-board. Though he was a "psalm-singing skipper," no captain was ever more popular with his men than Captain Dykes.

Uncle Phil had been married in early life, but his wife died while he was absent on a long voyage. He had recently given up the sea, and returned to his native town, now an important place of ten thousand inhabitants. He found himself a stranger there, but at his own request his nephew had taken him as a boarder.

The gossips were not a little bothered to determine whether the retiring shipmaster was rich or poor. He engaged in every church benevolent enterprise, and contributed moderately of his means.

Charles Dykes had opened a store at Tippleton a year before, and everybody thought he was doing well. Mrs. Dykes thought so too, though Charles [illegible] he was not making money very [illegible], he could not tell how [illegible] balanced his books and took account of stock. In the main he was a prudent careful young man or at [illegible] to be so.

[illegible] supper and [illegible] went to his meeting. He acted a little strangely for him, [illegible] his [illegible] less than usual, and [illegible] about [illegible]

[illegible] what I [illegible] Dykes, when [illegible]

[illegible]

"I am sure that nothing but his interests in us prompts him to say anything. If one means well almost anything can be excused."

"When I said that I wished you would keep a horse so I could ride out every day or two he read me a lecture an hour in length. Whether he heard me or not I said just what I meant. You must get him out of the house in some way, Charles. Take your clerk to board and tell your uncle you must have the room." "If I tell him to go, I shall tell him the reason why I do so."

"I am willing to bear the blame. I don't want any one in the house to come between me and my husband," said the lady with a good deal of spirit.

"Uncle Phil does not come between you and me, Marian. That is absurd."

"I have asked you, and even begged you a dozen times, to keep a horse. Uncle Phil takes sides with you against me."

"But he never said horse to me in his life. I can't afford to keep a horse."

"Yes you can, Charles. They say you are doing more business than Tinkham, and he keeps two horses: and his wife looks patronizingly down upon me from her carryall when she meets me in the street," added Mrs. Dykes, with considerable bitterness in her tone.

"I know nothing about Mr. Tinkham's business, but I do something about my own," replied Mr. Dykes.

Before the supper things were removed Charles Dykes had promised to buy a horse and buggy. It appeared to be the only way to in which he could induce his wife to allow Uncle Phil to remain in the house. Doubtless he was weak to yield the point against his own judgment.

In the evening Squire Grave made a friendly call. Mrs. Dykes was very glad to see him, for he had a lady's horse to sell. It was just the animal she wanted, and as she had conquered her husband once that day, she intended to have the horse trade settled that evening.

"Glad to see you, Squire; anything new?" the young merchant began, doing the usual commonplaces.

"There is news, but I suppose you have heard it," replied the visitor.

"I haven't heard anything; what is it?"

"Haven't you heard that Tinkham has been attached?"

"Tinkham! Is it possible?" exclaimed Mr. Dykes, glancing at his wife.

"It is a fact; a keeper was put in his store this afternoon, and an attachment was put on his horses and carriages."

"That was all because he kept two horses when one was enough for him." interposed Mrs. Dykes."

With her the moral was between two horses and one.

Before the squire left he had sold his lady's horse. Mrs. Dykes was perfectly happy and her heart began to warm even toward poor Uncle Phil. When the retired shipmaster came in from meeting, there was a dozen things she wanted to do for his comfort. The lady had beaten her husband and his uncle and she was satisfied.

Before breakfast the next morning Squire Graves led the horse over and put him into the little stable. One of the clerks was to take care of him. Uncle Phil saw the purchase but he said nothing unpleasant. He looked the animal over and said he was worth a hundred dollars to be paid for out of the store. Marian even thought she liked Uncle Phil then. He did not prophecy any evil or disaster.

After breakfast the lady thought she would drive over to her father's in the next town. She returned in season for dinner.

But Uncle Phil did not come down to that meal. The lady rung the bell a second time but with no better result. Uncle Phil evidently did not hear the bell for he never kept the table waiting for him. The door was wide open and and she went in. The shipmaster was not there. His trunk was not there; the picture of the Seabird, in which he had sailed many a voyage, had been taken from the wall.

Was it possible that Uncle Phil had gone without even saying good-bye to them? There was a letter on the table. It was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dykes." With the letter in her hand she hastened down to the dining room. To say that she was astonished and chagrined, would not half express her feelings.

"Uncle Phil has gone!" she exclaimed.

"He has left for good, bag and baggage." She tossed the letter upon the table, for she had not the courage to open it.

"Then I suppose you are quite satisfied. You have got the horse and got rid of Uncle Phil," said Mr. Dykes greatly grieved to learn that the good man had gone; and he saw that he must have heard the impulsive words of Mrs. Dykes the evening before.

Mrs. Dykes dropped into her chair at the table and burst into tears. Just as she had become reconciled to the boarder he had fled without even a word of explanation. She intended to treat him with the utmost kindness and consideration, as a noble warrior treats a fallen foe. Just then she felt as though she would be willing to lose the horse to regain Uncle Phil.

Charles opened the letter. It was very short, but there was not a [illegible]. He should still [illegible] for them and [illegible] to do all he could [illegible] ly the same as he was before. He was glad to see them, and there was not a particle of change in his tone or manner. Both Charles and his wife tried to say something about his leaving their home but he headed them off every time. He would not permit the matter to be mentioned. They went home unable to get in even an apology.

[illegible]

Both of them missed the kindly word and wholesome advice of the good man, though Mrs. Dykes would not acknowledge it. His good influence was lost upon both. Even Charles became reckless in his finances.

The closing of Tinkam's store brought more business to the young merchant for a time, though the bankrupt's successor soon made matter's exciting for him. A ruinous competition followed. No longer restrained by Uncle Phil's prudent counsels Charles branched out and grasped more than he could handle.

At the end of the year the balance sheet was not pleasant to look upon. Then followed a reckless attempt to recover lost ground. Notes at the Trippleton bank became very troublesome. One of them was given for a new piano. People said Dykes was living too fast. The young merchant was worried. He had yielded to one extravagance and there was a long train behind it.

His next balance sheet showed that he was three thousand dollars in debt and that his stock was not worth half that amount. He saw that he must fail. After supper one evening, he told his wife all about it. It would be a terrible humiliation to fail, as Tinkham had, and poor Marian wept as though her heart would break.

In the midst of the scene Uncle Phil walked into the room, as he always did, without the ceremony of knocking. He often called.

"Uncle Phil, I am going to fail, for I cannot pay a note of four hundred dollars that falls due to-morrow," said Charles bitterly, when he saw that he could not conceal the facts from the good man.

"How much do you owe in all, Charles?"

"About three thousand dollars." groaned Charles.

"Will three thousand put you on your feet solid?"

"Yes sir, but I can't raise three hundred dollars."

"I will give you a check for three thousand dollars in the morning. I will be at the store at eight o'clock. I noticed how you looked lately, but you said nothing to me."

"I could not say anything to you, uncle; and I cannot take your money after what has happened."

"Nothing has happened as yet, and with the blessing of God nothing shall happen."

Uncle Phil would not understand him.

"You may help me on one condition," added Charles, after some discussion, "and that is that you will come and live with us."

Marion joined in insisting on this condition, and the good man yielded. He used no reproaches, he would not even say, "I told you so." The note was paid the next day, and in the evening Uncle Phil was domiciled in the old apartment, quite as happy as the young people.

Charles sold the lady's horse, the buggy, the piano, and other extras, and reduced all his expenses to a reasonable figure. Marion was happy again, and did not believe there was any too much salt about Uncle Phil. She has given up the task of conquering a husband. In fact both of them have come to believe that neither should conquer or try to conquer the other.

After a while it came out that Uncle Phil was worth at least fifty thousand dollars. Doubtless the church and missions will get some of it; but it is probable that Charles Dykes will be remembered, though both he and his wife sincerely hope that he may live to a hundred.

Odd contrasts of color, such as Suede with shrimp pink, gray with reseda, gray with Suede, and porcelain blue with buff, will be much worn by children.

Wide stripes of solid color, in contrasting hues, or in two tones of a single shade, will be fashionable this spring. Blue-gray and ecru tints will predominate.

Half a dozen or more tortoise shell hairpins set with a single Rhine stone are very beautiful and fashionable ornaments for the half-high coil now in vogue.

The styles our of grandmothers are revived in the soft faded hues of the new wool stuffs for spring dresses; and in the quaint designs woven upon them in old-fashioned sampler stitches.

The imperishable Irish poplins, which are now fashionable in England, will be much worn here during the season. They are made in in all the richest and most favorite colors and combination of color.

Tartar Emetic and the Tramp.

"You've got some nice wood over there in your yard," said a seedy looking tramp to an Austin avenue lady.

"Yes," said the lady of the house.

"I would like to carry it in for you," said he.

"My husband intends to carry it in," she replied.

"Well," said the tramp "I will carry it in and pile it up nice if you will give me my breakfast."

At this offer the lady consented, and the tramp went to work.

After he had carried a couple of armfuls the lady stepped to the door and found him sitting on the pile with his claws on his knees and his face buried in his hands.

"What is the matter?" said she.

"Oh, lady," said he, looking up, "I am so weak, for I have had nothing to eat since day before yesterday," and he again covered his face with his hands. This seemed to rouse the lady's sympathy and she went in and soon returned with an excellent breakfast. After he had swept everything from the board he arose and said: "Thanks, [illegible] lady for this sumptuous repast. Now let me give you this advice: Never again let your sympathy get away with your discretion. I'm off. Ta, ta!" and he walked majestically out of the front gate. The tramp had gone but a short distance when he became deadly sick. He seated himself and on a curbstone, and in a few moments later, having two or three violent spasmotic contractions of the stomach he lost his ill-gotten breakfast. Indeed his stomach would have followed suit had it not been thoroughly dovetailed to his diaphragm. He believed that he was poisoned, and he became very much alarmed. As soon as he regained strength enough to get his feet he slowly retraced his steps and found the lady standing in the front door.

"Madam," he said in piteous tones. "my breakfast did not stay on my stomach. I believe I've been poisoned."

"That is not to be wondered at," said she. "I suspected your little game, having been caught once before in the same way, I prepared myself for it by dosing your coffee with tartar emetic. Now let me give you a little advice: Never again let your rascality get away with your breakfast. To beat a dead beat beats everything. Ta, ta!" and she shut the door in his face. The tramp started sorrowfully down the street, wondering, no doubt, where and how he could get a breakfast that would stay by him.—[Texas Siftings.

A PASSENGER TRAIN BLOWN FROM THE TRACK.

Disastrous Effects of Altitude—Patti and Gerster in Denver—Judge Lynch's Stern Decree.

ALMA, Col., March 1.—We have at present less than a foot of snow, but wind enough to compensate for any deficiency in the former article. Last Sunday morning, near Georgetown, in this State, an entire passenger train including the locomotive, was blown off the track. Many passengers were injured, but none fatally.

Given equal velocity, the wind has greater power at a lower altitude, where the air is a denser medium. Then the houses, with but two exceptions, are not plastered. So the inmates necessarily feel the wind. As the walls are covered with heavy paper, and finished with ordinary wall paper, the absence of plaster is not noticeable to the eye. You feel a curious sensation, the first time you see the wall, apparently, moving to and fro. But alarm is banished by the assurance that it is only the result of the wind behind the paper.

Speaking of the altitude, reminds us how much it is responsible for. If a man is too lazy to work, he says "It's the effect of the altitude." When he has exhausted the credit of every store, and can find no one sufficiently credulous to trust him for rent, he decides to move to the valley, "owing to the altitude."

The Denver Republican says "Denver is the only place in America where one can enjoy Italian opera in an Italian climate at $7 a ticket." Denver is entertaining both Patti and Gerster, and yet is not happy. Tickets to hear Patti are $7 each; to hear Gerster $5, whereas in New York, each being sustained by a better company, tickets were but $3 and $5 each.

At least one couple have gone down from Alma to the opera. Their expenses for the round trip will be about $100. A very fair price for one evening's entertainment. The discussion of the prima donnas is a very pleasant change, after the long continued discussion of the Ouray lynching, which occurred in a south-western county.

The whole affair was terrible—the murder of a little girl by those who had taken her from an asylum; the excitment of the neighbors; the gathering of the mob; the culpable inablility of the Sheriff to protect his prisoners, or to disperse the mob; and finally the hanging of both man and wife. The storm of indignation that followed showed that Colorado is determined to stop all lynching within her borders. The best class of newspapers denounced the lynchers as well as the murderers.

The Ouray people resorted to the most revolting stratagem to secure the sympathy of the people of Denver. They placed on exhibiton in Denver the corps of the child, that all might see its wounds. It is a disgrace to the authorities of Denver that it was allowed. In theory lyncking is is always wrong, but when a community sees murder committed almost daily, when the authorties are so terrorized as to often acquit the criminal or if convicted to sentence to a short term in a notoriously insecure jail, it is not strange that for the sake of their own safety, the people resort to lynching. About three years ago Alma was the scene of frequent shooting affrays. One day a man shot another [illegible] fifty minutes Judge Lynch [illegible] the murderer after his victim. The best men here upheld the lynchers, saying it was the only way to overawe the desperadoes. In Fairplay, at about the same time, a man was lynched by a band of men calling themselves the "Vigilantes." They afterwards published a proclamation, stating that their object was to punish crime. That as the Judge and District Attorney were bribed they felt it necessary to protect themselves and society. We have a copy of the curious document which they issued.

But the little mountain towns of Alma and Fairplay have had peace for three years. And it still remains an open question, "Does the end justify the means."

The spring elections are approaching but we hear no agitation of the temperance question. Colorado gives no "local option" but is strictly a high license State. Saloons not only flourish during the last six days of the week but all day and night of the first.

In fact all places of business are open on Sunday, some only half, but many all day. NEMO.

NEW YORK TIMES

FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

CHEAPEST AND BEST

NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 THE WEEKLY TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

F. G. BULLOCK - - EDITOR.

The city of Baltimore owes $39,191,-901.73.

One hundred and fifty lives were lost, by the explosion of a coal mine in Virginia last Thursday Morning.

A shark of unusual dimensions has been captured in the waters of Panama Bay. It measured thirty-three feet in length.

In a shooting affray in a San Antonio, Texas theatre, one night last week, two desperadoes, Ben Thompson and Ning Fisher, shot each other dead.

Ex-Senator Blaine told a friend that he did not care to be President, but that he would like to be Secretary of State again in order to carry out a vigorous foreign policy.

On his visit to Samuel J. Tilden at Gramercy Park on Sunday last, ex-Speaker Randall was accompanied by ex-Senator William H. Barnum, chairman of the Democratic National Com-

Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, who is credited with losing somewhat near $100,000 in New Mexico mining, hopes to do better in cattle investments. He says that ex-Senator Dorsey's ranch is the finest he saw. The Colonel owns an interest in it.

Ex-Governor Foster says Ohio will send an uninstructed delegation to Chicago. It will be uninstructed because the Senator says he will not be a candidate, and the Republicans of Ohio will not commit their representatives to any body else while Sherman is a possibility.

Somebody objects to the civil service bill which failed to pass the Assembly Thursday, on the score that it would require policemen and firemen to pass an examination. Yet these are branches of service not likely to be injured by too much interest and sobriety.

Coloraod, now eight years old as a State, counts a settled population of 300,000, and a taxable valuation of $110,000,000, representing an actual valuation of $200,000. It is traversed by 3,000 miles of railroad, four trunk lines connecting Denver, the capital city, with the east.

Senator Van Wyck declines to be a delegate to the Republican National Convention, on the ground that another man "fresh from the people, without any of the prejudices which naturally gather around the somewhat cloudy atmosphere at the national capital, could better give expression to the Republicans of Nebraska."

It is stated upon learning of the defeat of the Whisky Bill, some Louisville distillers telegraphed to Speaker Carlisle: "You must feel d—n cheap." The fact that he represents a State which constituency of the character required to send a message of that sort, is well calculated to make a man feel cheap.

Under the head of "Democratic Blunders," the Atlanta Constitution says that "the Democratic House of Representatives has now been in session three months, and all that it has done is embodied in the tariff bill that can never become a law, and the unanimous recommendation of the committee on ways and means that the bonded whisky bill swindle be adopted."

The question as to whether Mr. Tilden will accept the nomination of the Presidency is exciting fresh discussion in the Democratic press. It is a very foolish question to ask concerning a man 70 years of age, who for some years past, has been, and now is, unable to speak aloud or write his name, to cut up his own food, to dress himself, or to go any place without an attendant—a palsied, collapsed, feeble old man, dead clear up to his eyes.—[Boston Herald.

The Albany Journal has changed owners, the paper having come into the possession of W. J. Arkell of Canajoharie. Of the change the journal says editorially: "The change in proprietorship does not involve so much a change in its political policy as a return to the enunciation and upholding of those articles of republican faith that have won for the party for a quarter of a century the confidence and respect of the people."

Weston finished his walk Saturday, having done 5,000 miles in 100 days. He appeared to be in good condition. The Victoria Coffee Palace was crowded, and the pedestrian was received with much enthusiasm. The last mile but one was the fastest recorded during the walk, the time being 9m, 17s. Doctor Norman Kerr presided at a meeting which was held at the conclusion of the walk. Canon Duckworth and many other prominent temperance advocates were present.

Several members of Sitting Bull's tribe of Sioux Indians, from the Black Hills of Dakota, arrived in New York last week in charge of Major Newell an ex-Indian agent, and were put on exhibition in the Madison Square garden. They came to the east from curiosity to see the manners and customs of the pale faces, and consented to combine business with instruction by going on exhibition. They do not speak a [illegible] [illegible] boasts of a debating club composed of colored people.

A Medina family owns a parrot that is said to be eighty-six years old.

The popularity of lawn tennis is said to be on the increase in Auburn.

The idea is gaining ground that the late fire in Utica was of incendiary origin.

Albert N. Childs, owner of the Seneca County News, proposes to build a new printing house in Waterloo.

E. N. Rowell, of Lynch shooting fame, has returned to Batavia and says he proposes to establish a box factory of his own and will not become a partner with Palmer.

A company has been organized at Bainbridge, Chenango county, for the manufacture or children's sleds, velocipedes, etc.

Justice Mulholland, of Syracuse, is reforming his police court. The Herald says he no longer smokes during the session, and that he prevents others from doing so.

It is reported that a young man in Lyons one day last week ate on a wager one pound of chocolate drops in 12¼ minutes, five count oysters rolled in sugar in 30 seconds, and two quarts of oysters, perfectly plain, in 15 minutes. We expect next to hear of his funeral or that he has been taken to an idiot asylum.

Contracts entered into by the Onondaga penitentiary for receiving and caring for prisoners from other counties will expire as follows:—Cortland, Oswego, Tompkins, Jefferson and St. Lawrence December 1, 1884; Madison, December, 1885; Tioga, December, 1886; Cayuga and Lewis, January, 1887.

Last week the Ilion Citizen printed its entire edition of 3,000 copies by electricity, using an electric motor, deriving the current from a ten-light dynamo fifteen rods away. It is the first newspaper in the country thus printed.

The bill appropriating $8,000 for the Onondaga salt works' machinery has passed both Houses. Some opposition was developed by Mr. Low and the economists in the Senate. Their statements were overcome by Mr. McCarthy, who said that the works had brought the State nine or ten million dollars and an average surplus of $10,000.

A droll blunder happened recently in a district school over in Ontario county, says the Palmyra Journal. In hearing the history class the teacher told them that Providence was the name of Washington's wife, and read this sentence: "Providence left the Father of his country childless." "So that must have been her name," he said. When told that it was Martha he said, "don't contradict me. Your history is wrong and mine is right." What makes this seem more singular, the teacher is a good mathematician, grammarian, etc.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Jay Barnes, of Oswego Falls, died at the residence of his father, Furman Barnes, aged 17 years. The funeral services were held at his home last Friday.

Almira C. Wheeler, of Palermo, died at her residence last Monday, aged 80 years. The funeral took place this morning at 10:30. The remains were taken to Mt. Pleasant for interment.

James S. Ramsey died at his residence in this village, Sunday, aged 52 years. The funeral services were held at the Free Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Free Masons. Mr. Ramsey was born in Bradford, England, Oct. 15, 1832.

Charity A. Barton, wife of Joseph Barton, of Granby Centre, died at the residence of her sister, Mrs. A. W. Cheney, last Wednesday, aged 65 years. The remains were taken to New Haven village for interment. A. W. Cheney, of Rochester attended the funeral at that place. He returned to his home on Saturday last.

Ex-Governor Henry M. Hoyt of Pennsylvania has written a rather sharp political letter, in which he asks some troublesome questions as follows: "If the Republican party is as harmonious as we all seem to hope it is, and is able to attend to its own business, what is the use of the 'management' and 'intrigue' which is now kindly bestowed upon it in certain directions? What kind of leadership is that for a great party which is compelled to keep itself out of sight, and dares not avow its real purposes? What kind of a leader is one whose friendship is fatal to the person on whom it is bestowed, and whose fidelity to his convictions of public duty (if he has any) are always and everywhere suspected? Why not let the party alone, just once to do its own will, even at the risk of making a mistake?"

A new steel is said to have been produced at Sheffield, England, which is expected to be of incalculable value to the manufacturing and railroad world. It is said to be made "by adding from 7 to 20 per cent. of the ferro-manganese of commerce to iron either wholly or to a good extent decarbonized and refined, and treated by any of the ordinary processes, or to steel produced by such processes." It is stated that a small bar containing 12 per cent. of manganese was bent double when cold, and was sufficiently hard to turn. [illegible]

There are outstanding obligations to my knowledge of $140 for stenographer's report, and the street commissioner has a small bill for breaking roads during the last severe storms, and there are a few small bills that have not been presented as yet. There are no new suits against the village. The LaDuke case was appealed and it is to be argued this month. There was a verdict rendered against the village for $1,300 in the Dodgson suit; that was also appealed and is to be argued sometime this month. During the past year a great many improvements have been made, and under the circumstances I think the money appropriated last year has been well and judiciously expended, and especially that upon the streets. Had the Board of Trustees been harmonious some things could have been improved upon, and money saved.

The amount paid for special police service may appear large, but this work was done at the urgent request of many of our citizens, and I think all law abiding persons will agree with me that the peace and quiet that has reigned upon our streets, and more especially upon the Sabbath, has more than repaid the outlay.

I would also recommend that the work done upon our streets be done more on the permanent plan. It has been the custom for years to pile on gravel until the majority of our streets have been raised so as to cause damage to property and be objectionable in many ways.

Thanking those members of the Board [illegible]

Arrangements are being perfected for the establishment of a butter box manufactory at Sandy Creek. A company will probably be organized, with a capital of $10,000. Seventy-five hands will be employed.

The people of Oswego are making a crusade against the pool rooms. S. W. Coy, in whose saloon two boys played for the drinks, was fined $25 or 50 days in jail, by Recorder Bulger, Friday. A suspension of sentence was refused. The defendant said he would go to jail rather than pay the fine.

The Erie canal boatman's transportation company has been organized with a capital of $10,000, nearly all of which has been subscribed. The Buffalo Sunday News says this organization is not all it is intended to be, and a new one is projected which will unite the whole canal interest. Among the proposed directors of the new association are E. J. Vickory of Phœnix, John Rafferty, Fulton, B. C. Frost and J. C. Hanlon, Oswego.

The store of D. L. Allen of Constantia was destroyed by fire Friday morning with its contents. The family lived over the store, and barely escaped. Loss on goods $3,000; insurance $2,000.

Hubert LaSage of Minetto, who is charged by his wife with carrying off their six months old daughter, was brought before Justice Churchill, at Oswego, to show cause why the child should not be returned to its mother. A motion to dismiss the case was granted.

Honor to Whom It is Due.

To the Editor of the Times-Star.

In your issue of the 11th inst., under the head of "Local Personals," is a statement which needs correcting. It is stated that one George W. Elliott, who brought to Cincinnati one thousand dollars ($1,000) in cash for a well known proprietary medicine concern of Rochester, N. Y., is now the advertising manager of a patent medicine concern on the Hudson. It is the first statement which needs correcting; of the latter I know little and care less.

Mr. Elliott did bring the money to Cincinnati, but he acted simply in the capacity of messenger of the Rochester house, which he represented. The facts of the case are these:

During the height of the suffering caused by the raging waters, when thousands of fugitives were starving from hunger and suffering from cold, long before the authorized call for aid was sent out by our citizens, Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., with that wholesale generosity which is characteristic of the man, telegraphed me that he had sent one thousand dollars cash and twelve hundred and fifty dollars worth of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the entire proceeds of the sale of which, together with the one thousand dollars cash, were to be given for the benefit of the sufferers, as in my judgment appeared best.

The goods were disposed of and, I believe, the entire proceeds, with the one thousand dollars cash, were given to relieve the wants and miseries of the sufferers. For Mr. Elliott to try and appropriate for his concern on the Hudson the thunder of a reputable house with which to rattle up a demand for his medicine, is not only unjournalistic, but decidedly unbusiness-like. If this concern on the Hudson wishes to reap the benefit of such magnanimity as Mr. Warner's, why don't Mr. Elliott have its proprietor donate his two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars? We dare say it would be judiciously expended, and that whatever glory and benefit there might be in such exhibition of generosity would be cheerfully given him.

I am led to make this statement from a sense of justice and right and from the fact that it is due Mr. Warner, whose liberality our citizens enjoyed.

Yours for the right,
M. Mosler.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

An absolute cure for Rheumatism, Sprains, Pain in the Back, Burns, Galls, &c. An instantaneous Pain-reliever.

To the Committees of the Estates of Lunatics, Idiots, or Habitual Drunkards in Oswego County:

I desire to remind the committees that the statute, (2,341 of the Code of Civil Procedure) requires them to file in the County Clerk's office, in January of each year, annual accounts of their proceedings in relation to their estates, and annual inventories showing the amount and value of the property in their hands.

It is also the duty of the County Judge under section 2,342 of said Code, to examine said accounts and inventories in February of each year, and also to compel, by order, the filing thereof of such committees as have neglected to do so.

Upon examining the files of the county clerk's office, I find that very few have been filed for any year.

A strict compliance with the above mentioned statute will be required, and I trust that the committees in default will attend to the matter at once.

Dated at Chambers at Mexico, N. Y., this 23d day of February, 1884.

M. L. Wright,
Oswego Co. Judge.

Shortly before five o'clock Friday afternoon smoke was discovered issuing from the boiler house of the Victoria paper mill, and before water could be obtained to quench the small blaze the whole mill appeared to be filled with the fiery element, clouds of dense, black smoke emanating from the doors and windows.

Shavings are used for fuel, and the engineer having fired up, left the engine house to perform some duty elsewhere, and during his absence a boy entered the boiler house and discovered the fire. Undoubtedly a spark from the furnace communicated with the shavings, and unnoticed the fire spread rapidly until it reached the stock room, on the floor and thence to the roof.

The firemen promptly answered the alarm. Steamer No. 1 had a stream on eight minutes after the alarm was sounded, and No. 2 in thirteen minutes. Unfortunately Taylor Bros., pump was disabled. Had it been in order the fire could easily have been extinguished. The neighboring mills were the first to get a stream on and Steamer No. 1 next. The firemen did excellent work and after three hours of hard labor the flames were extinguished. The upper portion of the building is completely ruined, and the machinery on the first floor is badly damaged by water. A small portion of the stock and most of the office furniture and books were saved, though badly damaged by smoke and water. The pulp mill adjoining was not damaged and was running Saturday morning as usual.

The loss is estimated at about $12,000, with an insurance of $7,500 in the following companies: Hartfort Ins. Co., $1,500; Home Ins. Co. $1,500; Fire Association of Phila., $1,500; Imperial Ins. Co., $1,500, and Phonix Ins. Co., of Hartford Conn., $1,500.

The Victoria paper mill is owned by Forrest G. Weeks of Skaneateles, and E. R. Redhead of Fulton, Mr. Redhead assuming the management. This is the fourth time the mill has burned, the second time with the present firm. The last burning of the mill was on the 20th of August, 1882, doing $10,000 worth of damage. Messrs Weeks & Redhead were doing an extensive business, and the mill was one of Fulton's recognized industries. Mr. Redhead intimates his intention of rebuilding and resuming business as soon as his losses are settled, but it will be some time before the mill will be in running order. About twenty-five hands are thrown out of employment.

No more practical illustration of our need of Water Works for fire protection at least, than the burning of this paper mill, could be given. The efficiency of our Fire Department is conceded, and in this instance the alarm was quickly responded to to. Could water have been supplied as promptly as hose was stretched, instead of after ten minutes delay, this loss representing we believe the cost of five years efficient protection for nearly the whole village could not have been sustained.

On Thursday evening of next week, March 27th, Dr. J. H. Vincent will deliver the closing lecture of the course. The subject selected is "That Boy" and the manner of discussion will interest and instruct every intelligent person in the community, certainly every one who attends.

Dr. Vincent's name is a household word the country through, with those connected with Sunday school work and his relation to the Chautauqua Literary Scientific Circle, makes his coming here a matter of great interest, where so many reside who have relations, directly or indirectly with the organization. School Dist. No. 2, Granby.

The closing exercises of School District No. 2, at lower Oswego Falls occurred last Friday in the presence of a large number of the patrons of the school. The declamations and recitations were excellent and reflected great credit upon the pupils and the efficient and popular principal, Prof. James Cooper and his able assistant, Miss Frankie Connors. The spring term will open Monday, March 31st, with the same corps of teachers, under whose management District No. 2 has acquired the reputation of being a model school.

A Bartender Convicted.

The "law and order society," which the temperance people of this town have organized for the purpose of repressing the illegal sale of liquor in Fulton, have commenced in earnest. Last Monday Ferguson Spencer, bar-tender at S. O. Woodruff's saloon, was arrested for retailing liquor under a store license. He was brought before Police Justice Piper, and pleaded guilty. The sentence was a fine of twenty-five dollars or sixty days in the Onondaga County penitentiary. He paid. Several hundred dollars have been subscribed for the purpose of doing away with the illegal sale of liquor in this village and it is hoped that further action will be taken in the matter.

Frank Keenan was announced a number of weeks ago as a candidate for Police Justice at the coming charter election. A few days ago he issued an address "To the Electors of the Village of Fulton" setting forth that he was a candidate and soliciting the aid of the general public to secure the place for him. The document closes with the following appeal: "My needs of this office are strong insentives in this appeal. The village of Fulton needs a Police Justice and the people need this victory. If you choose me, gentlemen, to fill this you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have conferred a favor upon one whose appreciatives qualities have not in the least degree been diminished by his infirmities."

ROSENBLATT, OAKS & GERAGHTY.
Rochester, N. Y. [illegible]

[illegible]

To the [illegible]

[illegible] the opinion of Giles S. Piper. He has [illegible] Police Justice that when he speaks on a public matter he is entitled to consideration and earnest attention. At the same time Mr. Piper is a lawyer and when he is retained to do so it is at times part of his duty to make "the worse appear the better reason," and as a stock holder and private secretary of the water works company he is directly in a private company whose object is to get money out of the taxpayers. Let us examine Mr. Piper's letter published in the Times two weeks ago, and since distributed about town as a circular and see if he is acting in a legal capacity as well as for himself and the water works company. Mr. Piper has given the public some facts as follows: He says the water works company is a private enterprise; this being the fact its purpose is solely to advance private interests, not that of the village, so that taxpayers if they act with ordinary prudence must look out for themselves and not trust their affairs to the care of a private company whose object is to make money out of them. Next he says the water works company is composed of eight or ten of our citizens, but in reality the capital is nearly all furnished by outsiders, citizens of Fulton owning about $100 each of the stock, while Messrs. Hinds, Moffatt & Co. of Watertown own all the rest of the stock and then this company which is really Hinds, Moffatt & Co. enter into a contract with themselves, Hinds, Moffatt & Co, to build the water works. There is no objection to this arrangement so far as we know. Only Messrs. Hinds, Moffatt & Co. are not such disinterested gentlemen as to come to Fulton and put in water works unless they expect to make money by it and therefore all representations, though possibly fair and honest, should be scrutinized carefully by the taxpayers before adopting them.

It is the sense of this community that we should have water works, but we should get them for the least money and at the best place and of the purest water.

Mr. Piper says the company purposes taking the water from the lower dam near the box factory. Is this the best place to get the water from? Is it where the water is purest? Is it the cheapest point to get it from? In the first place purity of water is of the utmost importance. Typhoid fever, diphtheria, intermittent fever and cholera are the direct results of impure water. The water at the lower dam is impure for many reasons. First, the Oswego Falls factories discharge their waste dye stuffs into the river above the dam and this frequently comes across the river in great dark poisonous streaks, so much so that they are plainly to be seen, and is at times so dark that the colored water enters the vats of the Victoria Paper Mills in such quanities as to discolor the pulp. And besides this poison the factories have privies which are used daily by their 1200 operatives, which privies empty into the river, and if the colored water from the dye tubs cross the river it is fair to assume that the water would be steadily impregnated by the filth and pollution of these privies. In addition to these the Ross foundry has also a large privy upon this side of the river, directly above where the pumps at the lower dam are to be placed which accommodates from 150 to 200 persons daily, and then, nearer yet is an eel skinning depot where thousands of eels are dressed and the skins and refuse thrown into the river to rot, directly above where it is proposed to take the water from the river at the lower dam. Then too there is a drainage from both Fulton and Oswego Falls, all above the point the water is to be taken from. With all these fountains of filth pouring into it who believes this water fit to drink? fit to use for cooking purposes? It might be excellent for lawns and gardens because of its fertilizing qualities, but disease and death follow its use for household purposes. Mr. Piper, however, attempts to be facetious on this grave subject and says 1620 million gallons of water flow over this dam daily and all the coloring used is only 2,000 pounds daily, so that to get two grains of poison one must drink 290,000 gallons of water. This is not fair. Mr. Piper should have said this 2,000 pounds of coloring matter is at some portion of the twenty-four hours dumped into the river and in half an hour passes over the dam, and mingles with a small portion of the water that runs daily, but whoever drinks the water while it is running just after it has been dumped in is liable to be poisoned by a mouthful of it. Mr. Piper's reference to the 115 establishments on the Schuylkill that dump chemicals into it for Philadelpians to drink reminds us of the reply of the western landlord to the boarder that asked him for a clean towel. "Why," says he "more than a hundred men have wiped on that towel and you are the first that has complained." We are sorry Mr. Piper holds up to us such a nasty example as these Philadelphians. It is bad enough to drink filth when we are obliged to do it, not because others do. No, Mr. Piper, let us be clean, no matter how nasty others may be.

Mr. Piper says that a wrought iron stand or reservoir forty feet high and fifteen feet in diameter is to be erected in an elevated part of the village with one day's supply. The water is to be forced into it by pumps and then is to run out of itself. Indeed, Mr. Piper, are you not afraid [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] the upper dam [illegible] it will [illegible] upper [illegible] lower dam, [illegible] overcoming [illegible] ing down. Gravity helps down hill but going up hill every pound must be lifted by power and every pound of power costs money and every foot that the water is lifted costs money. The upper dam is twenty-two feet higher than the lower dam. To lift this twenty-two feet will cost 1-3 as much as to lift it 44 feet, 1-3 as much to lift it 66 feet or 1-3 as much to lift it 110 feet. Can the village afford to pay so much merely for the sake of drinking this filth or putting money in the pockets of these gentlemen, Hinds, Moffatt & Co. Is it not better, wiser, cheaper, to have the water taken from the upper dam above these impurities and not pay for lifting these 22 feet from the lower dam. But this is a private Company and suppose they choose to pay for the most expensive route, it is their own matter and no ones business. Very true unless this company asks us to take water and pay in proportion to the expense. The people are expected to pay $30 per hydrant, where, perhaps from the upper dam the price might be $40 or $20 per hydrant. Has Messrs. Hinds, Moffatt & Co. made any figures on this thing? have they ever investigated the upper dam and how much less it will cost to take water from the upper dam? Would it not be wise to secure some experienced, practical man, who has no interest in the lower dam to examine and report upon the relative merits of the two locations and the difference in the expense. As this is a private enterprise the village has no interest except to have the cheapest and best; it has no interest to have it at the lower dam instead of the upper. And why is it the Water Works Company insist, in opposition to the general desire, to have it at the lower dam? Is there a job concealed somewhere beneath so peaceable an exterior?

The Trustees have granted permission and the legislature consented to this company building water works. The people if all united cannot prevent this, or say where they shall be built, or whether the water be pure or filthy, but they can say if they will contribute to such a purchase. You can lead the horse to the trough but you cannot compel him to drink. There is one remedy, if the people do not want water from the lower dam they can vote against paying for it. That will settle the question.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. Hall's Hair Renewer has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of Hall's Hair Renewer wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

"Will the coming man smoke?" was settled by Prof. Fisk in his charming pamphlet. He says, moreover, that the rational way to use tobacco is through the pipe. All agree that only the best tobacco should be used. Which is the best? That to which Nature has contributed the most exquisite flavors. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco fills the bill completely. Nearly two-thirds of all the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco belt of North Carolina goes into the manufactory of Blackwell, at Durham. They buy the pick of the entire section. Hence Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best of that tobacco. Don't be deceived when you buy. The Durham Bull trade-mark is on every genuine package.

Blackwell's Genuine Bull Durham is the choice of all judges of Smoking Tobacco.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of The Sun have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon, then back to Printing House Square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have an ambition to carry a gold watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a Solid Gold Watch Case, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus is not only needless, but undesirable, because gold is a soft metal and cannot furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case permanently strong and close-fitting. The perfect watch case must combine gold with some metal that will supply that in which the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the James Boss' Gold Watch Case TRADE MARK which saves the WASTE of needless gold, and INCREASES the SOLIDITY and STRENGTH of the case, and at the same time reduces the cost ONE HALF.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

THE WORLD CHALLENGED

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT DUST-PROOF Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"Valdosta, Georgia, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"Clinton, Iowa, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these dust cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding watch Case, Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

Cayenne pepper, mustard or ginger can with great benefit be added to the food of fowls to increase their vigor and to stimulate egg production.

Stable manure is often spoken of as the standard fertilizer and a complete manure in itself. It is probably so for corn, but for wheat and other small grains phosphate of lime is usually needed, and on sandy soils potash. This is shown by the fact that manure alone creates a heavy growth of straw without proportionate increase to grain.

Farmers can not be too particular in examining grass seeds to see that no weed seeds are mixed with them. The wild carrot and plantain are more likely to be found in clover seed, but a sharp eye and a good microscope will enable the farmer to detect their presence. Seeds that contain these weeds should not be sown, even if the land remains unseeded.

A good manure for fruit trees may be made by mixing four loads of dry peat or swamp muck with one load of stable manure, and one barrel of dry ashes, or two barrels of leached ashes. Let it lie in a heap for a few weeks and work it over before applying. It would do no harm to add a barrel of ground bone to the above. When it is applied, cover the ground well as far as the roots of the trees extend.

HER ENGAGEMENT RING.

Fannie Gerrard had been engaged to be married to young Dr. Harry Raymond, the nephew of a wealthy New York physician, whose extensive practice was expected to soon descend to his young relative. In the meantime Harry went off on a long sea voyage with an invalid friend, leaving a betrothal ring on the little white hand of the lovely girl who had promised to be his wife when he returned.

The ring was handsome and unique, with its splendid solitaire, and their combined initials in tiny diamonds imbedded inside the golden hoop; and of course Fannie valued it for its beauty as well as for the love of which it was the pledge. But when news came to her that the ship in which her lover sailed had not been heard of for many weeks, and that it was considered lost, having entered southern latitudes, where a terrific hurricane had done fearful damage, then the ring became a sacred thing to her as the last gift of the dead.

Fate had brought other trials to the poor girl since the loss of her lover. Her father had died, and subsequently her mother's money, upon which they were almost dependent, had been swallowed up in a bank failure.

It became necessary for Fannie to eke out the small remaining income by turning her accomplishments to account.

It was then that the thought of parting with her precious ring occurred to her for the first time, although all her other jewels had gone long since. The idea came to her with a sharp pang that was almost an agony; but having once come to her, it became a settled purpose.

"I need no reminder to keep me true to his memory," she murmured, while heavy tears overflowed through the long curling lashes, and fell, glittering rivals upon the diamond which she raised to her lips and kissed again and again with passionate fervor.

Having made up her mind to the sacrifice, Fannie put on her drooping hat and tied a black veil tightly over her [illegible] sensitive face; then, with rapid steps, she left the house and hastened to the jewelry establishment around the corner, at the windows of which she had often stopped to admire the dazzling contents.

"Is it your own?" asked the old man, with a searching look in his keen gray eyes at the young girl, who had made the request in such low and trembling [illegible].

"Oh, yes," she answered simply, un[illegible] of suspicion. "It was my engagement ring"—and she colored faintly, [illegible] paled again with painful thoughts.

"[illegible] a very valuable one for you." [illegible] the jeweler, slipping it on the first [illegible] of his finger, and glancing at [illegible] neat but decidedly shabby [illegible].

"[illegible] gentleman was rich and so was [illegible]," she answered quietly, checking [illegible] with the self-con[illegible] had taught her.

[illegible]

her to come back in the morning.

About ten minutes after Fannie Gerrard left Dugald Blaikie's store a young man walked up the avenue with long, rapid strides, watching the passers-by and the objects around with a half-curious, half-familiar and wholly pleased attention.

He entered Mr. Blaikie's store and drew out his watch.

"I wish you would be good enough to examine this watch of mine," he said pleasantly. "Something has gone wrong with it all of a sudden. No sooner do I arrive at home safe and sound than it becomes refractory after serving me faithfully through 'hairbreadth 'scapes by floods and field'—especially by flood? I hope it is not ominous."

And the returned traveler laughed as he handed the timepiece to the old man.

"Nothing more alarming than a broken mainspring," replied Mr. Blaikie, smiling. "We will have it ready for you, to-morrow, sir."

And then, as he watched the stranger go out, with his youthful, swinging stride, his mind recurred to the girl who had told him of the lover "lost at sea," and he sighed over his work.

Harry Raymond had not gone far before he was accosted by the ringing voice of an old friend.

"Hello, Raymond, old fellow! Where in the name of all that's wonderful have you sprung from? Why, dear boy, everyone believes you long since at the bottom of the sea or blown away by all sorts of simoons, or typhoons, or whatever you call em!"

"Blown away as much as you like, old boy," laughed Raymond, wringing his companion's hand heartily, "but not under water yet as you see. But, come—give me some land news, won't you? This is my first day in the city, and I haven't seen anyone yet. How is—everybody?

"Well, much as usual, I guess. But come over to my rooms, and maybe I can be more definite."

"The young man slipped his arm through Raymond's, and they sauntered on together.

"Oh, by the way," said Jack Gordon, suddenly bursting in on one of his own speeches, "you have just turned up in time to be too late for the marriage of an old sweetheart of yours—Fannie Gerrard. Married an old chap with heaps of money, too."

"What—what did you say?" said Dr. Raymond, clutching the arm that lay on his and stopping short in the street.

"I said that your old flame, Fannie Gerrard, was married yesterday to old Mr. Roberts, the millionaire. Why, what's the matter? What are you staring at? You look as if you had seen a ghost!"

Doctor Raymond drew his hand across his face once or twice before he replied.

"I beg your pardon!" he said. "I have just remembered an important engagement! I—I will have to leave you now."

"Oh, I'm sorry! But never mind! Drop in in the evening and have a chat. Good-by, for the present! Delighted to have met you."

And Jack disappeared around a corner, savagely condemning his long tongue" and thinking all kinds of hard things of the girl who could so soon forget a fellow like Raymond.

Harry Raymond walked on with bent head and downcast eyes. All the animation and brightness were gone from his face—all interest in his surroundings banished by a few careless words.

"Married!" he repeated—"married to another, and my heart true to her through all! Oh, fickle, faithless heart of woman!"

And, with a harsh, bitter laugh he drew his hat over his brow and strode on, he knew not wither, until night found him in his own rooms, worn out by fatigue and misery.

And so passed the first night of Harry Raymond's return home.

When Fanny Gerrard entered the jeweler's store next morning she was somewhat embarrassed to find a young gentleman talking to Mr. Blaiklie, and withdrew shyly to the furtherest end of the counter.

The old gentleman, recognizing her at once, bowed pleasantly, and in a few moments came to wait upon her.

"I will buy your ring for $150," he said. "Will you part with it for that?"

Fannie's face showed her disappointment.

"I thought it was worth more than that— intrinsically," she said. "Two hundred, at least."

The Scotchman shook his head and pressed his lips together, for although he was interested in the "puir lassie," he did not forget Christine Johnstone's precept that "beezness is beezness."

She looked at the ring with longing eyes, half tempted not to make the sacrifice at all, when she was startled by a voice beside her:

"I will buy the ring for $500, since the lady is so anxious to obtain a good price for it!"

Well did Fannie Gerrard know that voice, though never before had she heard it ring with contemptuous scorn as it now fell upon her ear.

With a strong inclination to scream, which she suppressed to a gasp, she turned and involuntarily held out both hands, while a look of mingled amazement, delight and love shone in her face. Then, meeting nothing but a strange smile of scornful bitterness upon the features that had become to her those of a saint, and where, hitherto, she had seen naught but glowing tenderness, she drew back as though stung.

One [illegible] look she gave toward the old man, [illegible] physician. Can I be of any use professionally?"

[illegible]

"So you are her lover—the lad who was lost at sea?" said Dugald Blaikie, not noticing the question.

"What do you know about me—or her?" Raymond asked sharply.

"Enough to know that you have caused sufficient trouble and grief by your absence, without breaking the bairn's heart altogether, now that you have come back. Hech, mon," continued Dugald, falling into broad Scotch, under the influence of excitement, "na lad ever had less cause for cauldness or suspeecion!"

Harry Raymond's lip trembled and his face flushed.

"You do not understand," he said. "She was my betrothed wife, and I return to find her—married!"

"Married?" exclaimed Dugald, blankly.

"Yes, married to a wealthy dotard, and anxious to get rid of that ring lest she should be disturbed by unpleasant associations."

And as he thus expressed this suggestion of his fevered fancy his voice was raised in resentful passion.

The bewildered girl heard the words, and standing in the doorway with a face of marble pallor and her slender figure proudly erect, she said:

"You are strangely mistaken, Dr. Raymond. I am not married, nor ever have been. I wished to sell my ring because I was in absolute need of money. However it is yours now without any equivalent!"

And with a haughty bend of the head, she would have passed him by; but Harry suddenly turned and caught her in his arms, and before she could protest, she was seated on the sofa in good old Dugald Blaikie's parlor with her repentant lover at her feet.

"Oh, forgive me, darling—pray forgive me!" he pleaded. "I was hastening to find you immediately on my arrival, when I was told that you were recently married! But I was mad—wicked to doubt you, and throw myself on your mercy!"

And he seized the little hands, nervously clasped together, and covered them with kisses.

"It was my cousin," she answered reproachfully.

"Ah! but I knew naught of her, and to me, sweetheart, there is but one Fannie Gerrard in all the wide world."

FASHION NOTES.

At the marriage of Marquis of Kildare the bride and bridesmaids all wore yellow terry velvet.

Velvet brocaded grenadines are being prepared for ladies going South to escape the cold winds of March and April in the East and North.

Gentlemen's evening suits are to be made of diagonal and ribbed materials, in order that waiters and guests may not be confounded as heretofore.

A capote of garnet-colored straw, is lined with shrimp-pink satin; outside the ribbon is garnet-red and the flowers are apple blossoms of the same pink as the lining.

The new round hats have high, large crowns like those of men's silk hats, but the brims are very narrow, shelving out slightly in front, but narrower on the sides and still narrower behind.

Capotes protrude over the brow and are trimmed inside the bows of flowers. Colored straws are lined with pleated velvet, satin, or faille of another color. Outside the ribbon is matched to the straw; but the flowers or feathers are matched to the lining.

Small bonnets and round hats of medium sizes continue to make up the bulk of the importations of millinery. Some of these bonnets have pointed sides coming low down behind the ears, while others are rounded off quite short on the sides, and have the long crown with a round top now used in the Langtry bonnet.

People in England often wear close-fitting, long-basque jackets, bordered with fur. One of the newest is a shot velvet, brocaded as well as shot, and bordered with fur. Fur flounces appear on mantles and on dresses. The rage for fur is nearly as great as when the Duchess of Edinburgh came over from Russia as a bride.

A bonnet of dark blue straw is lined with pale blue pleated faille, ribbon and clusters of pale blue forget-me-nots. A black straw is lined with pale gold satin and trimmed with black velvet and bunches of yellow cowslips. Another is lined with bright velvet and trimmed with poppies.

THOUSANDS SAY SO.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid seller." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by H. E. Phillips.

NEW MUSIC.—"O Where Have the Old Folks Gone! or By-Gone Days Recalled," is the title of a new song and chorus sent us by the publisher, Walter A. Perry, of this city. The words are by Mr. Perry, and the music by Frederick S. Stanton. It is a pretty song, and will undoubtedly become popular. It is embellished with a fine title page of the old Homestead, is dedicated to the publisher's [illegible]

RELIGIOUS READING.

The Andover Review thinks that "familiarity with the tongue, patristic learning, acquaintance with the history of the church and especially of Christian doctrine, general culture, and acumen are not for a moment to be compared with the simple possession and use of sacred text as means of arriving at doctrinal truth."

The so called "Boy Preacher," Thomas Harrison has been holding revival services in St Louis which have been remarkably successful, after his style of success. He has given great offense by saying in his invitations to "come forward" that colored people should not do so, but should take seats in the gallery in all cases.

A movement has been started by several prominent Philadelphia laymen of the Methodist church to secure increased representation of the laity in the general conference and in annual conferences. It is claimed that the laity are entitled to a larger representation than they now enjoy. A public meeting with this end in view has been held.

The village of Greenwich, Mass. is divided into factions over the question whether the church which for fifty years has been used by the Congregationalists belongs to that society or to the town, by which it has been maintained during this time and which not long ago appropriated $1,000 to its repair. The state of things which has existed is a relic of a time when church and State were not seperated in New England.

The Independent says: "We should be arrogating omniscience were we to assert that God's purpose in allowing Salmi Morse to die a miserable suicide's death was to make him a warning against blasphemously travesting the crucifixion of our Lord. Yet we can not but recall that he was the man who attempted to put a vulgar passion play on the boards of a New York theater."

Letters missive have been sent out to the 32 ministers selected by the anti-Newman party to compose the proposed council to decide upon the difficulties of the Madison Avenue church in New York. The three questions to be submitted are as follows: First, What is Dr. Newman's relation to this church? Second, Is it desirable that it be continued? Third, Has a Congregational church a right to hold business meetings by itself in its own house.

The refusal of the Presbyterian hospital in Philadelphia to accept a check for $6,000 and more from the managers of a charity ball has given some offense. President Dickey of the board of managers writes a letter in which he says the hospital is under the direct care of the church, providing for its main object the "instructions and consolations" of religion for the sick and administering the communion to those who are worthy. He concludes: "And it is our conviction that it would be inconsistent in us to accept means for support of the work which the church has given us to do, in its name and under its direction, which the church itself could not accept—which you would neither ask nor expect the church to accept."

A Badge of Mourning.

"Well, Brown was a good fellow and I am sorry he is gone," said a western editor to the proprietor of the paper. "He worked hard all his life and died poor, the way of most newspaper men."

"Yes," responded the proprietor, with considerable feeling, "Brown was a good printer and it will be hard to fill his place."

"I suppose we ought to attach something to the door in the shape of a badge of mourning for a little while," suggested the editor.

"It would be a good idea, but I don't believe there is anything about the place that would answer the purpose, and in the present feeble financial condition of of the concern I don't feel like putting out any money for crepe."

"No," mused the editor, "it would be better to settle up back salaries first, but now I think of it, I know just the thing."

"What is it?" asked the proprietor.

We might hang out one of the composing room towels."—[Philadelphia Call.

Whether the United States are to regain their former pre-eminent rank as a commercial and naval power on the seas, is a question that no American can contemplate with indifference. The subject is discussed with marked ability in the North American Review for April, by the Hon. Nelson Dingly M. C., who opposes the project of admitting foreign built ships to American Register, and by Captain John Codman, who is well known as a zealous advocate of that measure. Judge J. A. Jameson in the same number of the Review, discusses the question "Shall Our Civilization be Preserved," pointing out the means that are at hand for withstanding the various agencies, physical, moral and intellectual, which threaten to overturn our existing civil and social institutions. The Rev. Dr. Phillip Schaff gives a sketch of the "Development of Religious Freedom." Dr. Felix L. Oswald, writes of "Changes in the Climate of North America," with special reference to the increasing frequency of disastrous floods. Prof. C. A. "Now you are 'imposing' on me, and I won't 'stand' it. If that's your 'rule' I think it's a 'case' where I'd be justified in hitting you with a 'stick.'"

"Be 'composed,' miss, and I'll speak 'planer' to 'chase away your fears. Not for all the 'quoin' in Christendom would I 'take' advantage of your ignorance, and I would give you 'proof' that you are not my 'dupe'—rather, I would 'slug' the person who had 'lead' you to think so."

"Ah, yes, I know," she replied. "These 'stereotyped' sentences I've heard before, but in a shorter 'space' of this I've known a printer to take an 'em brace.' But I couldn't 'column' man a gentleman, who'd do so; could you?"

"I'd like to put a 'displayed head' on him." was the foreman's reply, as he went off to swear at the "devil" down the elevator.—[The Hoosier.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.

Gents—Since November, 1882, I have been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and have not known what it was to be free from pain until I commenced the use of Rheumatic Syrup. I have felt no pain since using the first bottle. I think it is the best remedy I ever heard of for purifying the blood and for the cure of rheumatism and neuralgia.

W. B. CHASE.

A BAD CASE OF SCROFULA CURED.

Port Byron, Feb. 20, 1882.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.

I had been doctoring for three of four years, with different physicians, for scrofula, as some called it, but found no relief until I commenced taking your syrup. After taking it a short time, to my surprise it began to help me. Continuing its use a few weeks I found myself as well as ever. As a blood purifier I think it has no equal.

PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or some neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by M. M. Williams. tf

BRANDETH'S PILLS

They are compounded of Roots, Herbs and Gums of the most healing and beneficial kind.

As a Family Medicine they are unrivalled, curing Head-ache, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia—clearing the blood of all impurities—acting on the Liver, Kidneys and other important organs, removing the waste tissue, and adding years to the lives of all who use them.

For fifty years they have been used by the American public, and their constantly increasing sales show how they are appreciated.

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.

ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S PILLS which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three pears of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

NEW YORK TIMES
FOR 1884.

REDUCED IN PRICE.
CHEAPEST AND BEST
NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 THE WEEKLY TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

MR. HISCOCK made a strong argument the bonded whiskey bill last Saturday.

THE Chamber of Commerce, of Lyons, protests against the embargo on American pork.

A GENTLEMAN, who refuses to dislose his name, has given Yale College $50,000 for a domitory.

THE Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas again refused to admit a woman to practice law at its bar.

THE winter wheat crop of Kansas is reported in good condition, with ten per cent more area sown than last year.

TEN more Gatling guns have been ordered at Hartford by the Chinese government, to be delivered in sixty days.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has sent in the name of August W. Burnett to be postmaster at Albion, N.Y. He is a stalwart.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES has been having a hard time of it with his hens during the late floods. He had better keep ducks if he is going to stay in Ohio.

GENERAL BUTLER thinks Bismark wants to quarrel with this country. Perhaps, if we promise to keep Butler and pork out of Germany, Bismark will cool down.

EX-GOVERNOR ENGLISH, who began life as a carpenter, is now worth several hundred thousand dollars. It is supposed that he got a job at building a house by the day.

MONDAY of last week was the Czar's birthday, and General von Schweintz, the German Ambassador, presented His Majesty with an autograph letter from Emperor William congratulating the Czar on that event.

THE Ohio legislature has abolished contract labor in the State prisons, but it has not left them without a substitute. The prisoners are to make all articles used in State institutions and the younger ones are to learn trades.

THE Tribune's Washington special says: It is rumored that Grant may reappear as a presidential candidate. It is asserted that great influences are being exerted in his behalf with the understanding that his name shall not be used unless it becomes manifest that Logan cannot be nominated.

EAGLE City in the new gold region, is probably the liveliest place in the contry at the present writing. With lumber at twenty-five cents a foot and whiskey at $120 a gallon, the material prosperity of the place is beyond question. It should be observed, however. that the chief industry thus far developed is gambling.

THE President has sent to the Senate a communication from the Secretdry of War transmitting an estimate made by Col. Rockwell, engineer in charge of public buildings and grounds in Washington, of $30,000 for the preparation of a site and the erection of a pedestal for the statue of the late President Garfield, which is to be erected in the city of Washington.

GREAT excitement prevails in Canada in regard to money being offered as a bribe to two or three members of the Legislature in Toronto. The penalty of the crime is two years imprisonment in the penitentiary, and $1,000 fine, and to remain in prison until the fine is paid. A royal commissioner has been appointed to investigate the matter.

EX-GOVERNOR Charles Foster of Ohio says that "the people of Ohio are in favor of Blaine as first choice," and that the Democratic nomination of H. B. Payne "is no longer considered a matter of doubt in this state but has become a certainty. The only fact at issue is whether he can carry Ohio. The coming spring elections in Ohio will test the strength of both parties. At the best the fight will be sharp and earnest."

THE American Sentry says: "We are informed that an organization apparently headed by Chicago political strikers, who call themselves the "Anti-Monopoly party," will make an attempt to hold a national convention in Chicago on or about the 14th day of May next, for the purpose of nominating a Presidential ticket. Many of The Sentry's readers doubtless recollect the convention (?) which proved such an inglorious fizzle, held by this clique in Chicago last Fourth of July. Some honest reformers attended that convention, and it will be remembered were greatly disappointed and disgusted with the company they there found themselves in. Are there any honest men who can now find any reason for again encouraging such a gathering?

GENERAL GRANT says, or is represented by a World interviewer as saying, that what he said at Fortress Mourse was this: "At Chicago on the first ballot I believe Blaine, Arthur and Logan will lead in about the order named." He did not indicate any preference or prophecy as to the result. He think's Logan's chances as good as anybody's, [illegible] nothing of a Grant-Blaine [illegible] reconciliation scheme, except [illegible]

[illegible] of measles are reported in Oneida, particularly among middle-aged people.

Dennison Fisk, of Hancock, N. Y., was killed by a sleigh accident on Friday and his son had an arm broken.

Mrs. Andrew Morton of Southwest Oswego died last Sunday of consumption. She has been a great sufferer for several years.

It is believed that arrangements will be made with the Ontario & Western railroad to run a line of steamers from Toronto to the Thousand Islands, touching at Charlotte and Oswego and running in connection with the railroad.

The Salvation Army will be in Oneida soon. They have leased the Devereaux opera house for one year.

The Syracuse Courier says it will soon have "a span new dress of entirely new fashion, such as has not yet dressed any newspaper in this country."

His right leg was crushed. He was sent to the hospital where his leg was amputated. O'Brien's parents live in Oswngo and he has a brother employed in the Oswego Palladium office.

WHY WE ARE SICK

No device that can add to the comfort and convenience of a dwelling is omitted in our modern architecture, and money is not regarded when the luxury of clothing or beauty of personal adornment is in question. Hence we all live in better houses and wear better clothes than did our forefathers. Why should we not take the same better care or our health? Why should dyspepsia, and the train of diseases that follow it, almost unknown to the olden time, be so prevalent now? Simply because of the poisonous and indigestible trash which in these days is forced upon the public as genuine food, or used to adulterate those articles that go to make up the daily bill of fare of every household. Our forefathers were content to make money by plain and honest methods; but the hot competition of the present day and the strife for rapid riches have called forth all the ingenuity of modern science to devise cunning deceptions that shall enable the avaricious dealer to more rapidly increase his profits, even though he destroy the health of the public thereby. The consequence is adulterated, impure, poisonous and bogus food on every hand.

The people buy these adulterated articles of food because they are cheap, entirely ignorant of their poisonous qualities. A few years ago this evil had reached such alarming proportions in England that the public sentiment demanded legislative interference, and parlament enacted the most severe repressive laws. Dr. Small, U. S. A., after an examination recently made under the direction of the War Department, concludes that the adulteration of food is as great in this country to-day, and of as dangerous a character, as it was in England at the time referred to.

No article entering so generally into the food of every family has been found more villainously adulterated than baking powder. For the purpose of underselling an absolutely pure powder like the "Royal"—which has become the standard for purity and strength in baking powders—hundreds of dealers are putting up baking powders with cheap and adulterated cream of tartar containing lime, earth, etc., adding strength by the free use of alum. These powders are sold cheap, but their use is expensive, for they are one of the chief causes of the dyspepsia from which the American people are suffering. This species of adulteration, at least, at least, can be avoided by following the advice of Prof. Mott, the chemist to the Government, who recommends consumers when purchasing baking powders to select one standard powder, as the "Royal Baking Powder," rather than to risk [illegible]

[illegible] Second National Bank of Oswego, has purchased the house lately owned by ex-postmaster Alfred at Mexico. It is stated that he will reside there permanently.

A lively excitement exists in Mexico over the office of supervisor. At the late election of town officers L. L. Virgil, of the firm of Virgil & Green, was elected supervisor. For some time previous to his election he was school trustee and it is claimed by many not friendly to him, that inasmuch as he had not resigned the office of trustee before his election to the office of supervisor, he is ineligible to his present position.

West Granby.

WEST GRANBY, March 24.—Stephen Arnold is very sick with the measles.

A little child of Eugene Summerville is recovering from the croup.

The farmers in this vicinity have sold their tobacco crops at prices ranging from seventeen to twenty cents a pound.

Miss Ella Summerville has been stopping at Fred Peterson's at Bowen's Corners for a week.

Mrs. M. Dan is having her house made another story higher and otherwise enlarged by the addition of a wing. C. S. Chandler of Granby Center is doing the work with the assistance of her son Fred.

Mr. John Sullivan has moved on the Wm. Osborn farm in Hannibal.

Mr. Ed. Baker of Ira has taken one of Wm. Kilfoyle's farms on shares and has moved on the premises.

Many of the farmers through this section are hiring Germans and other foreigners as help on their farm. Wm. Fairchild has been to Castle Garden in New York city three times and brought over forty immigrants here and distributed them to whoever wants them. They are hired much cheaper than Americans, and it is a question of time whether it is a paying investment or not. Some of the work they perform is comical. One of our neighboring farmers sent his Dutchman out with some hams to smoke. Instead of taking them to the smoke house, he with a board managad to get on top of the house to hang them on the chimney, as he was taught to do at home. Then he descended somewhat lively and the result was a sprined arm.

William Summerville has a Swede working for him by the month. He is a young man of quiet ways and has a good education. He has the English language to acquire yet in which he progresses finely. R. K. S.

Meres Wyman, a veteran of the war of 1812, and a pioneer of central New York, died last week in the town of New Haven, aged 95. His father, Gardner Wyman, removed from Masschusetts, with his eleven childred, to Paris, Oneida county, about 1800. From there the family removed to Eaton, Oneida county, where Mr. Wyman's father built the first log house. This place was called "Log City," in commemoration of that event. In 1804 the family removed to the town in which Mr. Wyman died. For thirty years he was a lake captain, and was afterwards engaged in sailmaking.

Dr. William J. Acker an old resident of the town of Hannibal died last Sunday after a long and painful illness. Dr. Acker went to Hannibal about forty years ago. He was born in Schodack, N. Y., in May, 1815. Among his ancestors were many well known military men who flourished during the war of 1752, the Revolution and the war of 1812. He has held several local offices and represented Hannibal on the Board of Supervisors during the years 1257 and 58. Bodily infirmities caused by chronic rheumatism and aggravated by exposure during the early years of his practice prevented his actively entering public life to which his ability eminently qualified. He was an earnest and active student in his profession up to almost the last days of his life although for some years he has been debarred on account of ill health from active practice. He leaves many warm friends who will miss his words of cheer and advice, friends made by his honest upright and correct life. The funeral took place at the residence of his son, Dr. D. F. Acker, yesterday, at 11 a. m. The doctor was formerly a highly honored member of the I. O. O. F.

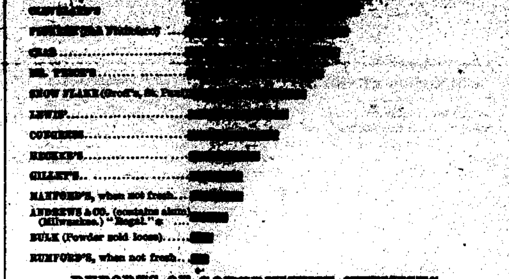
Syracuse Murder.

The murder of Adam Satter by Mrs. William W. Ransier in Syracuse last Saturday night caused considerable excitement in that city. The shooting occurred on Greene near Howard street in the fourth ward. The shot went through the heart. Both carried loaded revolvers but the woman was too quick for her suitor. They quarrelled over a trivial matter and she told him to leave her at once as she wanted nothing more to do with him. He refused to retrace his steps. [illegible]



REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS
As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It it a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure." "H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A one pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

Dr. J. A. Barringer's Arrest.

Dr. James A. Barringer of Elba, Gen esee county, N. Y. was arrested last Monday and taken before Police Justice Piper, charged with a misdemeanor in not having complyed with the laws of 1880, which require that "every person now lawfully engaged in the practice of physic and surgery within the State shall on or before the first day of October, 1880, register in the clerk's office of the county where he is practicing."

The doctor was discharged.

Hannibal's $5,000 Fire.

About 7:30 a. m. yesterday a telegram was sent from Hannibal to Oswego stating that a destructive fire was raging there and asking for help. An engine and hose arrived in Hannibal in a little over an hour. The fire originated in a two story wooden building owned by West Sitterly and occupied by his clothing store and residence. From this building the fire spread to the tenement house owned by S. W. Brewster, and occupied by three families. Both buildings were destroyed but the contents of the latter was saved. Mr. Sitterly was insured for $2,900 and Brewster's block for $600. Goods in the adjoining stores were considerably damaged by water.

He was convicted and sentenced to three months in the county jail but the sentence was suspended. Keller surrendered his license and will stop selling liquor.

S. O. Woodruff, whose bar tender was arrested last week and fined $25 for selling liquor under a store license, was himself brought before Justice Piper for selling intoxicating drinks without a license. Mr. Woodruff said he did not know that his license was made void by the conviction of his clerk selling by the drink, and paying the penalty the court inflicted. He was informed by the court that his license was void and could not be renewed under three years. Mr. Woodruff was fined $15 which he paid, making with the $25 paid by his bartender, $40.

The C. L. S. C. of lower Oswego Falls met on the evening of March 24th, at the residence of Mrs. E. E. Swan. Mr. Jennings gave a concluding essay on the fall of Jerusalem, which was followed by remarks from Rev. Mr. Markham of the M. E. church. Miss Conner read a selection giving something in mythology in connection with the golden fleece. Mr. Markham then interested us, as far as the subject would admit, by giving us some account of the mysterious myths of mythology. In other words he gave us as clearly as possible an account of some of the theories and conclusions of scholars, and introduced us to some of the happy speculations of inspired writers, as well as those of modern poets. The attention of the circle had been turned in that direction previously, and his carefully arranged study and thought on the subject was every way helpful and suggestive. The next regular meeting will occur on the evening of April 9th, at the residence of Mrs. H. Schenck.

A Vocal and Instrumental Concert for the benefit of the M. E. church will be given in the church Wednesday evening, April 2d. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Concert to begin at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents. Children under 15 years of age 15 cents.

OBITUARY NOTES.

The community was grieved at the announcement of the death of Emery L. Howe, who died last Sunday morning about 4 o'clock at the residence of his son-in-law, Arvin Rice, in this village, aged 63 years. Mr. Howe was born in Marlburo, Mass., March 4, 1821. He came to Granby in the spring of 1824, and lived there—with the exception of two years which he spent in the west, until 1866, when he moved to this village. He married a daughter of Elder Merritt, of Granby. The deceased was by profession a surveyor, but for a number of years carried on a mercantile business in Granby, it being the last business he engaged in. Mr. Howe leaves three children, Mrs. Arvin Rice, of Fulton, Mrs. William Forsyth, of Milwaukee, Wis., and H. Howe who resides near Milwaukee. The deceased also leaves five brothers and three sisters, the brothers being Dr. Asa Howe, of Jordan, N. Y., Dr. Chauncey Howe, of Seneca Falls, Abraham, H. C., and B. R. Howe, of Fulton. He has been failing physically for a number of years, but his mind was bright and active. Mr. Howe was highly respected in this community for his excellent qualities of probity, and by being true to all the obligations of a Christian and citizen. The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church in this village.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock p. m., from the residence of his son-in-law Arvin Rice, Rev. J. S. Riggs officiating. The funeral was largely attended.

Mrs. Minerva Golden wife of Rev. L. Golden, former pastor of the Baptist church in this village, died last Friday at Clinton, Oneida county, where her husband is now located. Mrs. Golden at one time lived at Rome, N. Y., and was a member of the family of Elder Vogal and taght a select school there. Her maiden name was Minerva Stevens. Mrs. Golden was an earnest temperance worker and a noble christian woman. The father and daughter have the sympathy of their Fulton friends. The funeral took place from the family residence in Clinton yesterday at 9:30 a. m., and from the church at 10 o'clock. The remains were interred in the Rome cemetery.

Dora, daughter of Charles and Fannie Tompkins died at her home in Minetto, March 12th. aged 4 years. The remains were taken to Mt. Pleasent for interment.

To Remove to Fulton.

Geisler, formerly of the drug firm of Case & Geisler, and who for some time past has been conducting business on his own account, on Main street, removes next week with his stock of goods to Fulton. N. Y., where he has leased a store. Mr. Giesler, who will add largely to his stock, is a young man with lots of energy, and his Oneida friends will wish him abundant prosperity in his new home."

Mr. Geisler will open his store in the Opera House block next Saturday with a fine line of drugs and shelf groceries.

Considerable complaint is being made among the proprietors of pool rooms in this place on account of the decrease of patronage from the young men. They claim that the roller skating rink is the cause, and are making an effort to have it done away with. They assert that two-thirds of their trade has dropped off. This is sufficient proof to convince our citizens that the roller skating rink is a benefit to the town in this respect. Is it not better for young men to spend their evenings in the rink than at the pool table?

[illegible] If a woman lives [illegible] and doesn't marry, a logical conclusion is that no man ever gave her an invitation to share his future weal or woe. No woman in her sober senses would refuse an offer of that sort. No matter how unworthy or uncongenial the man is who makes the proposal; it may be her only chance you know. Any fate is better than the fate of an old maid. In the language of the spinster who prayed for a husband, and hearing the "whoo, whoo," of an owl replied "Good Lord anybody," she says "I'll have to marry him if he does not amount to much, I may not have another offer and it would be awful to be called an old maid." And so she marries him, and they fight like cats and dogs for a while. At last this sort of existence becomes unendurable. Then comes a separation, next a divorce and Mrs. Grundy smilingly turns up her nose at the "grass widow," and every body feels sorry for him and guesses she wasn't any better than she ought to be" and says "she must have a dreadful temper, and wonders how he ever happened to fancy her anyway." He gets all the sympathy, she bears all the odium. But cases like the above are exceptional you say. Oh, I know very well that all mis-mated pairs don't separate. They stick together and rack their brains, through the day and lie awake nights, devising plans to render each others existence a burden and their amable endeavors are generally attended with success. Unhappy marriages are the rule. Happy marriages the exception. We are told that matches are made in Heaven but the brimstone must be put on in the place where it is kept and a match without brimstone is—well not very much of a match you know. Yes, it is a fine thing to have "Mrs." prefixed to your name. It sounds well when others repeat it and will look well in an obituary notice, but before you add that prefix consider all it involves. Think of the endless round of household duties, the everlasting cooking, washing and ironing; the buttons to be sewed on; the garments to be kept in repair; the economizing; and the striving to stretch $1 into two. You follow your liege lord to the hall door as he starts for his place of business, and screwing your courage to the point tell him Johnny's shoes are out at the toes and Susy is asking for a geography, and suggest that a little of the "Root of all Evil," would be very acceptable just now. His face takes the hue and expression of a thunder cloud, and he asks in a voice loud enough to be heard five blocks off "why it isn't two weeks since I gave you a dollar, what on earth have you done with it?" And he walks off with a twenty-five cent cigar in his mouth, and his hands in the pockets of a thirty dollar overcoat, and you go back in the house and spend the rest of the day in contriving how to get money enough to retrim the the sacque you have worn the past four winters, and trying to remember when you last had a new garment. Your wardrobe may have reached the condition that Mother Eve's was in before she went into the fruit business, for ought he knows or cares. You think to propitiate him by cooking his favorite dish for dinner, you burn your face and blister your hands preparing it, while the baby yells loud enough to wake the pilgrim fathers, and Johnny and Susy wage war over the possession of a ball. He comes. He parts the belligerents with a cuff and a shake. "Wishes he could come once and find that young one quiet," and subsides into his seat at the table. You pour the coffee and wait on the children with the baby in your arms. He helps himself to a liberal quantity of the dish which you have prepared for his special delectaton, tastes it, asks sarcastically if you have named it yet and if so what do you call it? wishes he could get a decent cup of coffee once in six months and not be compelled to drink slop the year round; wonders why some women can't learn to cook, clears the table of everything eatable on it and takes his departure. That is the last you'll see of him till—well any time between eleven o'clock and three. You clear away the table, bring up the coal and kindling wood, attend to the numerous duties that night brings with it, and seating yourself with one foot on the rocker of the cradle and a pile of garments before you to be mended, which seems like a mountain to your tired eyes and hands. You'd give your two ears to change places with Miss Sabrina Singleton who is thirty-five if she is a day and who earns her own living and says she wouldn't marry the best man alive, and if she had a husband like Mrs. Snook's (meaning you) she'd trade him off for a cancelled postage stamp.

Sympathy and advice are alike wasted on old maids, for they don't need it and don't want it, and you men need not wear such a haunted, worried expression if it is leap year, for not one of them have the most distant idea of making any matrimonial overtures to you and nothing except your own insufferable conceit will tell you so.

This was three years ago and I have ever since enjoyed complete health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure." A. Bilderbeck,

"Humpty Dumpty."

Next monday evening Tony Denier's Pantomime Company will appear at Stephens Opera House in the old time, yet ever new, "Humpty Dumpty." We quote the following from the Baltimore Sun:—"The Tony Denier's Pantomime Company is the most thoroughly organized and equipped combination of its kind now on the road, and its performances are all new and well executed. The troupe is very large, and none but strictly first-class artists are employed in any one of its departments. Many tricks of startling intricacy are for the first time introduced by them, and as for clowns their work is simply wonderful, and altogether unique of its kind. No pains has been spared to handsomly and effectively set the piece, and the result is sure to be an entertainment of rare and excellent merit. The prices will remain at their present moderate rates.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

How Watch Cases are Made.

This process of manufacture was invented by James Boss, who started in business in 1854, and the methods and tools used in making these watch cases are covered by patents. This is the only watch case made under this process. For many years the introduction of these goods was slow, owing to popular prejudice against "plated" goods, but gradually the public learned that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case was not a cheap gold-washed or electro-plated article, but was made of genuine gold plates of standard quality and thickness. Conscientious adherence to the determination to make the best watch case ever put on the market, and the adoption of every improvement suggested, has made the James Boss' Gold Watch Case the STANDARD. TRADE MARK In this watch case the parts most subject to wear—the bow, crown, hinges, thumb-catches, etc., are made of SOLID GOLD.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon then back to Printing House Square, and then, three-quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

The Sun is and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much [illegible]

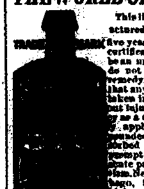
THE WORLD CHALLENGED



This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparallel success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle, Sold by dealers.

THE NEW PATENT DUST-PROOF

Stem Winding Open Face Case,

MANUFACTURED BY THE

AMERICAN WATCH CO.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these case cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding watch Case. Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

Too Much Competition.

The local burglars are trying to beat their own best previous records. The other night a cracksman had just successfully picked the back door of a house in South Park, when he was much astonished to have a man stick his head out of a second story window, and calmly remark:

"Hi, there! my man. Are you a burglar?"

"Yes, I am; and I'm not ashamed of it," replied the operator, who had been a stock broker in former life and was trying to gradually reform.

"All right. I just thought I'd get up and say to you, as I said to the fellow that was here an hour ago, that the man who broke in last night got about everything there was worth taking, except the piano."

"The mischief you say," said the disciple of Jimmy Hope, thoughtfully. "Is there any cold chicken in the pantry?"

"Not even a mutton bone. Good night, and please don't let the kitten out of the back gate when you go. Ta, ta."

And the housebreaker shouldered his kit and went off cursing this infernal competition that won't let a hard working man get a cent ahead.—[San Francisco Post.

Drunken Swine.

Mattieu Williams says that he once witnessed a display of drunkenness among 300 pigs which had been given a barrel of spoiled elderberry wine all at once with their swill. Their behavior was intensely human, exhibiting all the manifestations of jolly good fellowship, including that advanced stage where a group were rolling over each other and grunting affectionately in tones that were distinctly expressive of swearing good fellowship all around. Their reeling and staggering, and the expression of their features all indidated that alcohol had the same effect on pigs as on men; that under its influence both stand on the same zoological level.—[Popular Science Monthly.

THE BLACK BUOY.

"Swim?" said my grandmother, as we [illegible] around the crackling logs one Christmas Eve. "Every boy and girl should learn to swim. I could swim like a duck when I was a girl, and there came a time when it served me in good stead!"

My grandmother sat bolt upright in her high-back chair, resting her elbows on the arms, and smiling across at the General, who sat on the other side of the hearth. There was a conscious look in her bright eyes. My grandfather, pausing in the act of raising his tumbler to his lips, nodded and smiled back again. They were both white-haired, bright eyed and fresh-colored; each saw the other through an effacing medium, which smoothed out wrinkles, restored hyacinthine locks and blotted out the fifty years that lay between them and youth.

We the diverse-aged descendants of this stately pair, were grouping, in lazy attitudes around the vast, roaring hearth, with its tall, carved chimney-piece, and we saw the meaning looks that were exchanged between our respected progenitors, we scented a story.

My grandmother hesitated for a moment at our many voiced appeal, and shook her head; then looked across at the General, who nodded, and after a little pressing thus began:

"You know, young people, that you are of good family on your grandfather's side and not on mine, for he came of an old and honorable stock while my father was only the master of a vessel that traded between England and the West Indies. He was killed in a sea fight when I was a child and I was a brought up by my grandfather, who, ostensibly a boat-builder and fisherman, was in reality a smuggler. In those days smuggling meant great risks and enormous profits. It was not only a profitable trade, but it was reputable in a peculiar sort of way. It required great skill and courage. England was always at war in those days and the smuggler had to run the risk of being snapped up by an enemy's cruiser as well as the chance of falling into the clutches of a revenue cutter. In addition there were the inevitable risks of the sea.

Thus a smuggler must possess a knowledge of navigation. He had to work into the harbor on the darkest nights with the utmost secrecy and despatch. To do that he must know every inch of his way, be able to distinguish land marks and buoys in what would seem to the uninitiated to be blank darkness, and to know to a nicety at what time the tide turned, the twists of sand banks and position of sunken rocks.

"There was only one channel leading into the harbor, for the mouth of our little river was choked up with sand, and the banks extend out to sea. It was necessary to hit this channel some distance out at sea, and a small black buoy bobbed up and down to indicate its commencement. One side of the harbor was formed by a line of rocks shelving down gradually into the water, and the buoy was distant from these rocks about three-quarters of a mile, or a little more. This headland was called the point.

"The black buoy, a mere speck on the waters, was hard enough for any one to find in the broad day, but my grandfather never failed to find it in the dark—for, of course, it was only on a moonless night that the smugglers dared to run a cargo. The usual course of proceedings was thin: The lugger arrived off our coast at night-fall, lay to until a signal was flashed from our friends on shore flashed a reply, found the entrance to the channel, and worked in with the tide.

"I had a very independent kind of life, getting a good deal of book learning from the old vicar, and passing many hours in the bright sunshine and free fresh air. I could run a couple of miles and pull an oar and swim with the best. The sea had no terrors or difficulties for me, except such as it was a pleasure to overcome. So at sixteen I was a fresh-colored, free-limbed and, I believe bright-eyed young maiden, whose only trouble was her long tresses of thick brown hair, and who thought very little of the outside world.

"On a certain day in September, my grandfather being absent and expected back at night, I set off for a long ramble in the country, taking some sandwiches with me for dinner. At nightfall I was returning tired and hungry, when I paused on the cliffs for a moment to take a last look around before striking into the path that led to the village. With a sigh of contented fatigue I turned homeward when I recollected that a [illegible] suit of blue serge which I used for [illegible], required some trifling repairs, [illegible] little cave not far from the [illegible] our contraband goods [illegible] conveyed; so without approaching the village I hastened to the [illegible] by the shortest route. I passed [illegible] the gully, slipped into the cave, [illegible] about for my dress. Having [illegible] it, I was just about to come out [illegible] when a strange sound broke the [illegible] of the night, and I stopped [illegible] apparently coming from the [illegible] the tramp of feet and the [illegible] voices, and a queer little thin [illegible] distinct—the clink [illegible]

[illegible] immediately. Two men [illegible] They had [illegible] of their [illegible]

[illegible] little ravine, evidently taking in the features of the place.

"'Very well," said he, speaking in a full low tone that I well remember. 'I shall post half the men here, and place the rest at intervals between this and the village to stop any one who attempts to pass. At 8:15 the tide turned. At 12 the signal. You undertake the signal don't you?'

"The sargent produced a lantern from under his cloak.

"'Here is the signal, sir.'

"'Then order the men down, and place the others as you think best.'

"The sargent salted, and clanked up the gully. The officer walked slowly toward the water, and stood there at the edge—some distance from me, for the tide was low—with his head bowed and his hands behind his back. Now or never for me to get away. Quick as thought I slipped out of my hiding place and hastened up the gully. Horror! at the head of it was a string of dark figures winding methodically down, their heads every now and then bobbing up and down against the twilight sky. The rocks were steep but not high, and I was half way up them in an instant. Behind a sheltered ledge I crouched, scarcely daring to breathe, while they marched, tramp, tramp, silently down the ravine.

"They passed out of sight. I heard an order given in a sharp, clear tone, the rattling of arms, and all was still. Then I breathed again. I looked to the head of the gully, and there, athwart the sky, appeared at intervals a black figure. A sentinel was posted there.

"Up to this moment I had only thought of escaping and arrousing some of our friends in the village. It would be hard if we could not devise some means of warning the lugger of her danger. Now that hope was gone, for my return to the village was cut off. Still every one must know what was going on, and would not some one slip out a boat? How could they? The tide was low; the only channel even for a small boat was close to the lower end of the gully, and the soldiers could prevent any one passing out.

"I covered my face with my hands, and busied myself to think. There could be no reasonable doubt why the soldiers had been brought twenty miles at least to our little village. Penal servitude for life! What does that mean? It was no uncommon punishment, I had heard, for a smuggler taken as my grandfather would surely be, red-handed. For a moment the hope flashed into my mind that he might not come to-night. But no! The wind was light and not unfavorable, there was no suggestion of a fortunate storm in the sky, and I knew that people with the carts had arranged to come, and that all was in readiness. My heart sank within me.

"Suddenly I raised my head and formed a bold resolve. I would save him. Yes, I! The skill which I had attained for my own heedless pleasure should be put to stern service. I determined that when the lugger showed her signal in answer to that treacherous one from the shore, I would swim out to the buoy and keep myself afloat at the entrance of the channel until I could hail our people and warn them of their danger

"I never hesitated after I had formed this resolution. I forgot that I was hungry and tired, and began instantly to make my preparations. On the narrow ledge of rock where I now knelt I undressed and put on my little bathing costume, which consisted only of a tunic and drawers. I made my clothes into a bundle and stowed them away in a cleft. Then like a cat I clambered up the rocks, hiding behind every projection, and keeping a fearful watch upon the sentinel at the head of the gully.

"Fortunately the gully was not very deep: When I reached the top I crept on my hands and feet until I judged I was well ought of sight and started for the end of the Point. I took my time, for the moment of action was long enough distant, and I had to husband my strength. At last I reached the rock from which I meant to dart, and sat down to wait for the lugger's signal.

"I did not know the time, and could only guess it by calculating from the sunset. How long should I have to wait Heaven knows, but it seemed an age, I got sleepy from my day's exertion. The night air was cool, too; and my clothing, admirably adapted for exercise, was somewhat scanty for sitting still. Besides, it was damp. The wretchedness of that long watch comes before me now. And, oh! would the slow minutes never pass?

"I waited so long that I believed I must have fallen asleep and missed the signal, and I was on the brink of burying my face in my hands and giving way to dispair, when I checked myself—and flash! far out on the dark sea, there it was! I sprang to my feet, every nerve tingling. The moment for action had arrived.

"I paused a moment to take the bearings of the buoy. I knew exactly how it lay from the point, for I had swam around it often enough. But not in the dark. Not with the water a vast, heaving black plain mingling with the black sky.

"But I never hesitated. In I went, and after a few strokes, the sense of vigorous exercise, exultation in physical power and skill, overcame my misgivings. Oh! I was swimming hard to [illegible]

It was like a friend in all this wild desolation of heaving seas. But now came the worst watch of the whole. The lugger must pass within hail of me, but what if my strength gave out. For it was ebbing fast. I had been without food for hours. I had walked many miles, and swimming is a most exacting exercise. Still, I was not going to give up at the last pinch, and I had my reward.

"A little gleam of parting waves, a black mass coming on, towering blacker than the darkness, and I hailed them, 'White Swan, ahoy!'

"A voice came from the darkness, 'White Swan it is; who are you?'

"'Lay to, and throw a rope over your starboard quarter.'

"The lugger was only about thirty yards distant. I made my last effort and swam to her. A rope was thrown and they hauled me on board and I had just time to give warning before I fell fainting on the deck.

"When I came to myself, the last keg of our cargo was being lowered overboard. We were some little distance up the coast and floats were attached to the kegs so that we might be able to find them again.

'So expeditiously was all this done that it was only some two hours afterward that we beat cautiously up the channel with the last of the flood, and cast anchor close to the mouth of the gully. All was very still. We pulled ashore in our boat and stepped on land, when in a moment, dark figures started up, lights flashed upon us, and we were surrounded by soldiers.

"'In the king's name!' said the officer, coming forward.

"It was a picturesque group, illuminated as it was by the flickering light of the torches which some of the soldiers carried. My tall, old grandsire, with his weather beaten face and gray hair; the boyish handsome young officer, bright with scarlet and gold and steel; the stolid seamen in their blue jerseys and sou'-westers; the soldiers, with their bronzed faces and glittering accoutrements, and, I suppose, myself, disguised in a suit of oilskins and a big sou' wester that covered my rebellious hair.

"My grandfather said nothing when the young lieutenant ordered the sergeant to board the lugger, and only a twinkle of his keen gray eye showed his enjoyment of the scene. The soldiers had to row, and clumsily enough they did it, provoking one of the stolid seamen to a loud laugh, which he instantly suppressed.

"The sergeant was back again pretty soon, his face, formerly red, now purple with wrath.

"'We've been made fools of sir!' he exclaimed, saluting the lieutenant. 'Nothing on board, except some nets!'

"The lieutenant's face fell for a moment; then he looked amused at the sergeant's discomfiture.

"'Search then!' he said. We'll make it sure!'

"A couple of soldiers held my grandfather while the sergeant searched him, and found nothing. Nor did the others prove better worth examination.

"I was hiding behind my grandfather's back, hoping to escape observation. But the sergeant caught me by the wrist. My grandfather interposed.

"'There is nothing contraband of that boy' said he, peremptorily.

"'I'll soon see that,' answered the soldier grasping my wrist until I could have screamed with pain.

My grandfather did not strike him, but administered a kind of a push with his heavy shoulder that sent the sergeant big as he was, staggering some yards away. With the losing of his hold I slipped and almost fell; off went my sou'wester, and down, alas! came my long brown hair all over me. The young officer instantly stepped between the sergeant and me.

"'I don't think we need search this youngster, sergeant," said he, in a tone of quiet authority. 'He is not liable to have anything contraband about him. Where have you been to-night?' he added, turning to my grandfather, while I got into the background, greatly confused and conscious that the officer had found me out.

"'Lobster fishing,' answered my grandfather composedly.

"'Not much sport, I'm afraid,' said the lieutenant, sarcastically.

"'Oh, yes; we caught a few," answered my grandfather, glancing around at the soldiers' coats.

"The lieutenant was good-humored and could take a joke. "Ah! but they're black when they're caught,' said he with a smile that showed a very white and even set of teeth.

"'Aye, aye, sir,' said my grandfather, with a twinkle in his eye again; 'but they are red when they're done!'

"The lieutenant laughed outright. 'You have got the best of us this time, Mr. Wilson,' said he, preparing to depart. 'But' he added in a lower tone, 'you had better be careful in the future. Meanwhile, I am sorry to have troubled you. Good night.'

"He put himself at the head of his men, gave a sharp, short order, and away they went.

"And away we went. But my grandfather had learned a lesson. He was a rich man, and gave up the trade from that very night, sold the lugger, and retired into private life."

Here my grandmother paused and looked at the general with a smile.

"And did you never see the lieutenant again?" inquired a young lady of fourteen, who had long become [illegible]

HENRY HOEHM,
Captain of Police.
Cleveland, O.

"For years I have had excruciating "pains in the small of my back and "was not able to raise from bed or be "in a sitting posture. The doctors "claimed that I was sufferingfrom "spinal disease, and I never expected to "leave my bed again. Though having "no hope of recovery, Warner's Safe "Cure was recommeded to me, which "I commenced taking, and eight bot-"tles have made a permanent cure.

MRS. CHRITJAHN,
No. 28, Thirteenth street!
Chicago, Feb. 26th.

"About two years ago I resorted to "the use of Warners Safe Cure, taking "in all thirty-two bottles for kidney "and uninary affections, and it has "proved a complete success, and rad-"ically cured the pain in my back. A "lady of this county, a confirmed in-"valid for three years past, with what "the doctors here said was internal "cancer, beyond all skill and hope, "in the doctors' opinion, has been "raised almost from the dead by the "use of nine bottles of this excellent "medicine." J. H. HUDSON.
Altoona, Pa, Feb. 27th.

"Pa," said a little boy to his father, on their arrival in St. Louis, "I didn't know people in this city had wings."

"Wings? Certainly not," replied the father.

"Then what are those things that stick up so high?"

"Hush, my boy," said the father in an undertone; "you mustn't speak so loud. Those are ears."—[Philadelphia Call.

A boy found a woman's switch in the opera house and returned it to her.

"Thank you, my little man," said the lady; "you are an honest boy."

"Oh, no, I'm not so very honest, but I know what I am."

"What are you then?"

"A hair restorer."

NEW YORK TIMES
FOR 1884.
REDUCED IN PRICE.
CHEAPEST AND BEST
NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES.

FOR 1884.
REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The price of THE NEW YORK TIMES was reduced on the 18th of September from 4 cents per copy to 2 cents, with a corresponding reduction in the subscription rates. Within three days the circulation of the paper had doubled, and its daily sales are still rapidly increasing. Facts like these give plain and positive proof of the excellence and completeness of THE TIMES as a newspaper for the people. But the step that has brought it within the reach of every class of readers involved no cheapening of its quality or lowering of its standard. It is, and will continue to be, an able, lively, and complete newspaper. Whatever is of human interest in the chronicle of passing events at home and abroad will be found in its columns. It prints more telegraphic matter from all parts of the United States than any other metropolitan journal. Its special cable dispatches promptly supply its readers with all important European news. While it neglects nothing of general interest, it has gained a recognized pre-eminence for the accuracy and fullness of its political reports and of its news concerning railroads, banks and banking, insurance matters, real estate interests, important legal decisions, military and naval affairs, educational progress, and social, religious and scientific thought and discussion. It gives early announcements of new publications, American and foreign, and it reviews with fairness and critical ability the best books of the day. Its dramatic and musical criticisms are a notable feature of its well-filled pages. Faithful to Republican principles, it is wholly unfettered by considerations of party or faction in expressing its opinions. Its criticisms of parties, of public men and measures are independent, fearless, and honest. It has no hobbies, but is in sympathy with all progressive and reform movements; and amid its graver duties it finds time and the mood now and then to be merry over the foibles of mankind.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, in addition to the news of the day, contains bright and readable selections from the latest English reviews and magazines, selected and original poetry, and extracts from the newest books.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gives a compact and complete summary of the news of the week, with editorial note and comment upon topics of national and general interest. It is an admirably complete weekly newspaper, and has a large circulation in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. During the Presidential year of 1884 THE WEEKLY TIMES will furnish its readers with prompt and full information of the progress of the canvass.

THE excitement in Ontario, over the so-called bribery cases is subsiding.

IT is announced that a State Greenback convention will be held in Albany on April 19th.

FREDDIE GEBHARDT was called a "liar and a coward" at the Union Club, New York the other night, by J. B. Livingston and didn't have the spunk to resent it.

A BILL to prevent the sale and use of intoxicating liquors upon the grounds of the Chautauqua assembly was introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Horton last Thursday.

THE Republican primaries were held in Utica on Saturday last, and the "Stalwarts" swept the field as if opposition existed nowhere. In the Eleventh Ward the caption of the ticket was, "For President, Roscoe Conkling."

THE Syracuse Evening Journal came to us in a new dress last Saturday evening. The face of the type is bolder and the impression more distinct. It is a decided improvement on the old dress. The Journal is a newsy and interesting paper.

KINGSTON, Ont., has passed a by-law forbidding merchants to expose goods on the sidewalk or from hooks at the front of the shops. Only goods placed in the doorways are exempt. Several merchants have been summoned for breaking the by-law.

THE butter question in the Legislature last Friday was full of interest, and the facts and figures adduced by Mr. Low will create widespread uneasiness. The oleomargerine industry involves probably the most gigantic fraud in the whole history of food adulterations.

PRINCE LEOPOLD, the youngest son of Queen Victoria, died suddenly at Cannes last Friday morning. The queen was profoundly affected by the death of Prince Leopold. The prince died in a fit as he was starting for Darmstadt to attend the wedding of his niece, Princess Victoria of Hesse.

ALTHOUGH considerable objections from the Secretaries of the Navy and War the Senate commitee on Naval affairs has reported favorably the joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to offer a reward of $25,000 for rescuing or ascertaining the fate of the Greely expedition.

THE New York Sun says:—"The death of the Duke of Albany, who was a very amiable and harmless young man, will be accepted by English radicals in the light of a small but grateful relief from the heavy burdens which the support of her Majesty's royal and numerous progeny entails upon the British taxpayer."

THE Syracuse Sunday Times says: Pastor Newman of the Madison Avenue Congregational church in New York city doesn't propose to give up his pulpit without a struggle in spite of the fact that the Church Council decided that he was only temporary pastor. A first-class church row is now in course of preparation there, apparently. Probably the courts will be called upon to take a hand before the difficulties are finally adjusted.

WHILE the Republicans are casting about for a candidate for President they surely should not overlook David Davis of Illinois. If there is any man in this country the Republican party is indebted to it is Mr. Davis, who was the advisor of Abraham Lincoln and who gave the presidency to Hayes by trading a seat in the Supreme Court bench for the Illinois Senatorship just at the time the Electoral Commission was being selected. It would be base ingratitude to overlook Davis.—[Buffalo News.

CINCINNATI, the queen city of the west was the scene of a bloody riot last week, which has created great excitement throughout the country. In the trial of William Berner, a boy of 17, and Palmer (colored), charged with the killing of Wm. H. Kirk a horse dealer, the following circumstantial statements were made by Berner which prove that the crime was deliberated: Kirk had slept several nights in Berner's barn. It was known he had considerable money. He was beaten to death and robbed. The judge admitted Berner's confession to evidence on the trial. But the jury with wonderful boldness brought in a verdict of manslaughter. The judge pronounced the verdict an outrage and discharged the jury without thanks. The verdict enraged the people and an indignation meeting was held last Friday night. This was followed by the wrecking of public buildings, the plundering of gun stores, and loss of life. The losses are estimated at over a million dollars, and not less than one hundred killed and wounded. The state troops were all ordered to the rescue. The Utica Herald says: "If Berner could have been found Friday or Saturday nights he would have been killed. Yet a lynching was as much to have been expected in New York as in Cincinnati. The riot shows what passions slumber under the ordinary calm of society, in such a country like ours, and at the same time it loudly calls the halt to the [illegible]

It is supposed he slipped out during the evening. [Syracuse Journal.

TO THE COMMITTEES OF THE ESTATES OF LUNATICS, IDIOTS, OR HABITUAL DRUNKARDS IN OSWEGO COUNTY:

I desire to remind the committees that the statute, (2,341 of the Code of Civil Procedure) requires them to file in the County Clerk's office, in January of each year, annual accounts of their proceedings in relation to their estates, and annual inventories showing the amount and value of the property in their hands.

It is also the duty of the County Judge under section [illegible] of said Code, to examine said accounts and inventories in February of each year, and also to compel, by order, the filing thereof of such committees as have neglected to do so.

Upon examining the files of the county clerk's office, I find that very few have been filed for any year.

A strict compliance with the above mentioned statute will be required, and I trust that the committees in default will attend to the matter at once.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

MR. TILDEN'S condition is reported by his "most intimate friend and constant associate" as being in splendid form,—weighing 125 to 130 pounds; sleeping naturally; eating well; hearing acutely; walking erect and quickly; seeing wonderfully; posessing healthy and strong vital powers. He suffers from rheumatism of the hands, and debility of the vocal chords, which do not incapacitate him for business affairs. Nevertheless he adheres to the position taken in his letter of declention in 1880, desires nothing more than the repose of private life, and shrinks from the enormous work of reforming the government. All of which proves Mr. Tilden's eligibility for a Presidential nomination.

CREAM AND COLD WEATHER.

What a luxury is a bath in summer. Surely, but a greater luxury is a clear head in winter; just when almost everybody is sneezing and snuffing with a cold in the head. A Business Melody.

There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise, for when he marked his prices down he them did advertise

And when he saw his trade increase, with all his might and main he marked still lower every price, and advertised again.

And when he advertised again, his rivals stamped and tore, to see folks rush with might and main to patronize his store.

And while they sat in solitude, and saw him custom win, that man behind the counter stood and raked the sheckles in.

And when he raked the shekels in, and saw his fortune rising, he took a goodly lot of tin and kept on advertising.

Each day a generous sum he'd sink, and demonstrate full plain, the more one pays for printer's ink the greater is his gain.

"A BLESSING IN DISGUISE,"

284 ADELPHI ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.
March 29, 1881.

No family should be without ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS; their healing powers are wonderful and their efficacy far reaching and lasting. For years past I have seen and known them to cure and relieve the most obstinate and distressing cases of rheumatism, kidney complaint bronchitus, neuralgia, lumbago, inflamation of the lungs and throat, paralysis, asthma, spinal weakness, and coughs and colds. In my own case they have afforded me almost instant and permanent relief. My friends consider them an invaluable and speedy remedy for all kinds of aches and pains. They are a blessing in disguise; and no wife or mother should be without them if she values her peace and comfort and freedom from nervous exhaustion and other ailments. As a strengthening plaster, also for backaches and weaknesses, they have no equal. I have never yet found a plaster so efficacious and stimulating, or to give so much general satisfaction. Used in connection with BRANDRETH'S universal life-giving and life-healing PILLS, no one need despair of a speedy restoration to good sound health. MRS. E. TOMPKINS.

ONE TRIAL.

If you have been using other Plasters one trial of Allcock's Porous will convince you of their wonderful superiority. Take no other so-called porous plasters that claim to be better, they are all frauds gotten up to sell on the world-wide reputation of the genuine article.

THE NEW PATENT DUST-PROOF

StemWindingOpenFaceCase,

MANUFACTURED BY THE AMERICAN WATCH O.,

WALTHAM, MASS.

This case is formed in one solid piece without joint or seam, opening in front only, thus avoiding the usual Cap, and securing greater strength and durability.

These watches are all open face. The bezel, into which an extra strong crystal is fitted with an especially prepared water-proof cement, is attached to the case by screwing it thereon, and thus forms an air tight junction with the body of the case, which is proof against dust and moisture.

To railroad men, travelers, miners, lumbermen and others who are almost constantly exposed and who have to make frequent reference to the watch these qualities are of the utmost importance.

The following letters tell their own story.

"VALDOSTA, GEORGIA, July, 20, 1882.

"I sold one of your Patent Dust Proof Cases about ten months ago, and the other day it came back to me with the request to make it wind easier. On examination I found that the stem was rusty, and I inquired into the cause of it. The gentleman stated to me that he was starting some saw-logs that had lodged in the bend of the river, when his chain caught in a bush and threw his watch into about twelve feet of water, and he was about two hours finding it. When he got it out it was running and he thought all right. In about three months he found that the stem was hard to turn and sent it to me.

I can say that the watch is all that the company claims for it and recommend it to all railroad and mill men. B. W. BENTLY."

"CLINTON, IOWA, April 29, 1881.

"I wish you would send me a spring for the Wm Ellery Watch * * * By the way this Ellery is a watch I sold in your Screw Bezel Case to a farmer last fall. The first of January he lost the watch in the woods, and found it this week in about one foot of water. It had lain three months and over in snow and water, with but slight injury to the watch—only a hair spring. C. S. RAYMOND."

The above very were severe tests, and demonstrate beyond a doubt, that for any reasonable length of time during which a watch might be under water it would receive no injury whatever.

We make these case cases in both gold and silver, and as a Perfectly Dust Proof Stem Winding watch Case, Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

THESE ARE VERY GREAT BARGAINS.

March went out like a lamb.

The Northern lights were visible in the skies last Friday evening.

Remember the "Kinder Symphony" concert at the M. E. church to-night.

The work of putting in new fronts in the Lewis House stores was commenced yesterday.

E. K. Jeffords of lower Oswego Falls, brought to THE TIMES office yesterday half a dozen new potatoes.

It is rumored that one of our prominent Divines will lead to the alter a young lady who resides in the vicinity of Fulton.

About thirty member of the Lake Ontario Commandery, of Oswego were in Fulton on Monday to attend the funeral of the late William Hornibrook.

A fair sized audience witnessed Tony Dennis' Humpty Dumpty show at the Opera House last Monday night. The performance gave good satisfaction.

The Rev. B. R. Dow preached his farewell sermon last Sunday morning. He goes to the vicinity of Boston. The Baptist people lose a social and effectual pastor.

C. D. Hubbard, formerly proprietor of the Boston Bazaar, is now employed in Dey Bros. dry goods store, Syracuse. Mr. Hubbard commenced his duties yesterday. Fulton has lost an energetic young man.

The nine Odd Girls will give a leap year party Friday evening, in the Odd Fellows' parlors. About 200 invitations have been extended. The girls propose to make it a success. A good time is expected.

Arrangements have been made for those who desire an opportunity to hear Maggie Mitchell as "Little Barefoot." A special train will leave the lower D. L. & W. depot this evening at 7:15. Fare for the round trip including tickets to the play, $1.50.

The grocery of E. Sayer, corner West First and Murry streets, Oswego was broken into last Saturday night. The safe was cracked open and about $700 was taken. There was $300 in an adjoining drawer which was not touched. It is supposed the robbery was committed by professionals. There is no clue.

The Lower Oswego Falls reading Circle met at the residence of Mr Henry Rockwood last evening. The meeting was opened with music, after which the Secretary's report was read; reading from Shakesphere and interspersed with selections, followed with instrumental music by Miss Mable Waugh and Nellie Wheeler; singing by the younger members of the circle.

At the Annual meeting of the Oswego County Association which was held at North Hannibal last Thursday, William Cartwright of Oswego was unanimously elected president, but declined the honor and James M. Hart was substituted. W. J. Bradt was elected Vice President, D. D. Metcalf, Secretary and Mr. Lockwood, Treasurer. L. B. Bigelow, a large manufacturer of syrup, of Phelps, N. Y., was present and addressed the meeting.

In the Fulton correspondence of the Syracuse Sunday Courier we notice the following mention of the former editor of this paper. The wish therein expressed will be heartily seconded by our readers: "The numerous readers of THE TIMES of this village hear with deep regret of the forced retirement of its editor, Mr. Frank Bullock, from the columns of the paper. Failing health is the cause. His determination to withstand the assaults of that insiduous disease, consumption, has kept him at his post far too long, but with entire rest and the coming of sunny days and soft, balmy air, coupled with a brave heart, it is to be hoped he may soon change the life current which seemed fast ebbing out and his young life be spared to a loving wife and doting mother."

We regret to learn of the immediate removal of F. B. Fay, our popular dry goods merchant. He has leased a store in Auburn, where his family now reside and will move in about two weeks.

Ebonized gold turned cornice polls are selling for $1.50 at Lang's.

Rip Van Winkle.

John M. Hickey's Ideal Rip Van Winkle Co., will be played at Stephens Opera house next Tuesday evening, March 8th. They come highly recommended by the press. The Williamsport Times says: "Jno M. Hickey's Ideal Rip Van Winkle Co. played to a packed house last night. Mr. O. W. Blake as Rip is unquestionably the best we have ever seen, and the support throughout was far above the average. Miss Jackson as Meenie, and Miss Rucker as Gretchen, being particularly good."

A Former Fultonian's Success.

Some of our Fulton people remember William Costello, a former resident of this village, and will be pleased to hear of his success. He is now located with his family in Walla Walla, Washington Territory, and his business interests are in Thompson Falls, Montana, situated on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, at the terminus of the only practicable stage road into the Coeur d'Alene mines, and is within twenty-eight miles of Eagle city. Thompson Falls is destined to be the great commercial entrepot of the Coeur d'Alene mines, situated as it is on the shortest, best and easiest traveled road. During the past 20 days over 70 buildings have been erected at Thompson Falls, and many more are under course of construction.

The following we quote from the Walla Walla Union: "Wm. Costello, well and favorably known in this city, has blossomed out as the President of the Thompson Falls Townsite Company. The title is not purely honorary as the corporation over which Mr. Costello presides is doing a veritable "land office business." Thompson Falls, the only starting place to the mines, is experiencing a great boom and town lots are being rapidly sold at good prices."

Nearly a Fatal Accident.

A sad accident occurred on Tuesday evening by which Mrs. Alice Pierce, wife of William Pierce, of this place came near losing her life. Mr. Pierce and wife were returning to their home from Fulton in a buggy, and when about a mile west of Granby Center, the horse stumbled and fell, throwing Mr. and Mrs. Pierce over the dashboard to the ground. Mrs. Pierce fell under the horse's hind feet and in endeavoring to rise from her fallen position, the horse kicked her in the back rendering her insensible, She was conveyed to the residence of Mr. Keene, near where the accident occurred, and Dr. Lee of Fulton was summoned, who pronounced her condition critical. Mrs. Pierce so far recovered as to be able to be conveyed to the residence of her grandfather, Mr. B. R. Sykes, in this village. Her injuries are believed to not be serious as was thought at first, although badly injured, it is thought she may recover from them.—[Hannibal News.

A Pleasant Gathering.

Last Thursday evening the employees of Taylor Bros. & Co's. knife factory were invited to the residence of Herbert L. Taylor, senior partner, on Rochester street, in honor of his 36th birthday. About 25 persons were present including a few friends and relatives. At 7 o'clock the company assembled in the dining room where they partook of a luxuriant repast, consisting of meats, cakes, fruits, ice cream, etc. Excellent music was then furnished by Messrs Croak, Parker, Bogue and son, and the remainder of the evening was spent in various amusements. The company dispersed about 11 o'clock having heartily enjoyed themselves. It is a custom of Mr. Taylor's to celebrate his birthday in this way.

Skaden & Case have moved the balance of their stock of Crockery and Groceries to the vacant store on Oneida street, first door west of Dr. Bacon's office, where they will continue to sell at auction and at wholesale and retail until the stock is disposed of. This is a rare chance for a Bargain in Crockery and Groceries.

In the sparring exhibition which took place in Oswego last Friday evening, in which John Hastings and Foss Peters of this village took an active part, resulted in favor of the Oswego pugilists. The Oswego Palladium says that in the exhibition between Hastings of Fulton, and McCloskey of Oswego, Hastings dodged around in a most ridiculous manner and twisted himself into all conceivable shapes, and that the exhibition created more amusement than a Humpty Dumpty show.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. M. M. Williams the Popular Proprietor of the City Drug Store to act as Librarian for the Fulton and Oswego Falls Librarian Club, and Samples of Books showing average size Type and Bindings have been placed in his posession. The Citizens of both villages not yet members are urgently requested to call and satisfy themselves that there is no humbug or swindle about this plan and then to join our club and assist in a good work. As we are asking each family a very small sum for a membership entitling them to the FREE use of the Library for a term of two years, we can think of no reason why any citizens should hold back their help and influence. Respectfully, Peoples Library Co.

Dr. Vincent's Lecture.

The closing lecture in the Fulton course was delivered in Stephens Opera House last Thursday evening by Dr. J. H. Vincent, who is at the head of the management of the Chatauqua assembly. He was greeted by a large audience. Dr. Vincent is a fluent and easy speaker and won the admiration of his auditors, and he will find a warm welcome should he ever return to Fulton. The subject, "That Boy" should be heard by every parent, and if the theory Dr. Vincent preaches in regard to the obedience and education of "that boy" was practiced there would be a decided change in the coming generation.

The reception given by the C. L. S. C. at the close of the lecture in the Presbyterian church parlors in honor of Dr. Vincent, was a pleasant affair, nearly 200 people being present including the circle and their friends. After half an hour of social intercourse, refreshments were served. Miss Markham then sang a solo which was followed by short speeches by E. R. Redhead, F. E. Bacon, S. B. Mead, Rev. W. F. Markham and Rev. Dr. Vincent, who thoroughly explained the beneficial results obtained in the study and review of the Chatauqua course.

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. Hall's Hair Renewer has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of Hall's Hair Renewer wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

How Watch Cases are Made.

A plate of SOLID GOLD 14 2-10 karats fine is soldered on each side of a plate of [illegible] nickel composition metal, and the [illegible] are then passed between polished [illegible] rollers. From this plate the various [illegible] of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. [illegible] cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

DUBUQUE, IA., Dec. 14, 1830.
I have used one of your James Boss' Gold Watch Case for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good for ten years longer. Did not suspect it was a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and more.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of The Sun have gone out of our establishment the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of The Suns printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House Square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the Moon, then back to Printing House Square, and then three quarters of the way back to the Moon again.

But The Sun is written for the inhabitants of this earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of a copy of The Sun during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or grandfather has spent another hour this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

The Sun is and will continue to be a newspaper which tells the truth [illegible]

THE WORLD CHALLENGED

TRADE MARK

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty five years and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an internal remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy as a specific when externally applied. This being compounded of Oils, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a liniment is demanded. The oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease, and Paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth and we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils, and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers.

BRANDETH'S PILLS

They are compounded of Roots, Herbs and Gums of the most healing and beneficial kind.

As a Family Medicine they are unrivalled, curing Head-ache, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia—clearing the blood of all impurities—acting on the Liver, Kidneys and other important organs, removing the waste tissue, and adding years to the lives of all who use them.

A Perfect Remedy in 20 Diseases.
ASHFIELD, MASS.

I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to Brandreth's Pills which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three pears of my life is owing solely to their use. Your Pills saved me many times after the best medical skill in several States had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with Brandreth's Pills, and have seen them perform almost miracles of care. For children, a few doses have cured measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney diseases, dysentery and diarrhoea; even dropsy, paralysis, and appoplexy have yielded to a persistent course of Brandreth's Pills. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual preventives against the effects of time, disease and labor.

RELIGIOUS READING.

The Church Missionary Society of England has established a Home for the children of missionaries. Not long ago it was desired to remove the Home from London to a rural district, when to the great surprise and delight of the managers a gift of $50,000 was received to aid them in the work, from an English clergiman and his wife, who gave it as a practical token of deep sympathy with missionaries engaged in the Lord's work abroad. That is a long way from Sydney Smith's cold sneer at the "consecrated cobbler."

The Presbyterian Hospital of Philadelphia, which so courteously but firmly refused the tender of $2,500 as its share of the proceeds of a "Charity Ball" in that city, has received a check for $3,000 from a resident of Buck's County. The donor explains that $2,500 of the amount is in lieu of the sum refused and the remaining $500 is given in recognition of the Managers' adherence to principle in their rejection to the offered gift.

The Independent suggests a tax of twenty-five cents on every member of a Ministerial Conference who gives an opinion of a book which he has not read, the suggestion growing out of the fact that at a certain Conference all the clergymen present condemned a certain book, when it was afterwards found that no more than three of the whole number had read it. Now what tax would The Independent suggest to be laid on editors who publish notices of books which neither they nor the reviewers of them have ever read?—[Examiner.

A Business Melody.

There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise, for when he marked his prices down he them did advertise

And when he saw his trade increase, with all his might and main he marked still lower every price, and advertised again.

And when he advertised again, his rivals stamped and tore, to see folks rush with might and main to patronize his store.

And while they sat in solitude, and saw him custom win, that man behind the counter stood and raked the sheckles in.

And when he raked the shekels in, and saw his fortune rising, he took a goodly lot of tin and kept on advertising.

AN ORPHAN'S TRIUMPH.

It was a sad day for little Paul Hamilton when they carried to the cemetery all that remained of the mother he loved so well. With a heart so full of woe, he watched them silently fasten down the lid of her coffin, thus forever shutting off a view of those beloved features. Although Paul was only twelve years old, he fully realized what death was in all its awful solemnity, for his mother recently had prepared his youthful mind for the event she knew was so near at hand. And it was because he did so fully understand it all, that his heart was so full with its new-born grief.

After the funeral was all over, he looked around the little room, now so empty, and wondered what would become of him; for his mother had fully impressed him with the idea that he could not remain there. He and his mother occupied this so long, it was in fact the only home he remembered ever having. To be sure, one of the neighbors offered him another, for which he was expected to work on the farm in payment, but Paul disliked the prospect—not that he was afraid of the work, but the master was known to be a hard one for whom to work.

While Paul was sitting by the window thinking this all over, the stage rumbled along noisily on its way to the town five miles distant, where its passengers took the railway cars to the city. Paul's one desire all his life had been to go to the city, and now he thought what was there to prevent him? Nothing he could see stood in his way to accomplish the journey, and so he determined that early on the following morning he would be among the passengers.

That night when Paul went to bed he could not sleep for thinking of his prospective journey; he allowed his youthful imagination full sway, and his fancies carried him through the most wonderful scenes, till at length he fell into an uneasy fitful slumber, from which he aroused with a start as the first gleam of early dawn warned him to make his preparations for departure.

Paul moved quietly about the room while he gathered together a few of his possessions, fearing to disturb the landlady from which his mother had rented their room, not feeling quite sure he could get off if she was aware of his purpose.

With the little package of his treasures in one hand and the cage containing a petted white rabbit in the other, he stood ready to leave; first, however, his glance roved around the room, resting an instant lovingly on each familiar object, while the tears welled up into his great brown eyes as he bade them all a mute farewell.

Another moment, and he was gone. Noiselessly he descended the stairs, unbolted the door, and as he stepped out, he heaved a sigh of relief.

A short brisk walk brought him to the village inn, from whence the stage started. At last, after a long time it seemed to Paul, who was impatient to be off, the driver cracked his whip and they actually started.

After a ride of a couple of hours, Paul found himself at the railway station, and with a fast beating heart inquired at the ticket office the fare to L——.

"Seventy-five cents," laconically replied that supercilious official—the ticket agent.

Paul slowly counted his money—sixty cents was all he could make it. He [illegible] up into the man's face before [illegible] for some sign of encouragement to [illegible] the question which was hovering on [illegible]. A blank stare met Paul's wistful eyes, and his question died before it [illegible] even been framed into speech, and [illegible] slowly turned away. As he did so, [illegible] his glance rested on the driver, [illegible] standing near, and who had [illegible] a witness of the scene [illegible] at the window of the ticket [illegible] in the situation at a [illegible] up to Paul, and holding [illegible] said; "You can pay [illegible] back."

[illegible] had no intention of re[illegible] his sense of honor [illegible]

"There now, you will have to hurry; the last bell has rung. Here's your ticket and there is ten cents change."

Paul thanked him and hurried on into the car, and it was not until he was well on his journey that it occurred to him, the ten cents change was in reality a free gift of the stage drivers.

"Cedar Grove" shouted the conductor, and Paul picking up his bundle and his rabbit let the car hurriedly, having already determined to walk the remaining distance—which he remembered was but five or six miles—to L——. With a cheerful heart he bravely set out, inquiring first his way.

It was now nearly noon, and after walking a couple of miles he began to feel a little warm and tired; then he was very hungry, and to the pangs of hunger were added those of exhaustion, for Paul had not slept well, and had had nothing to eat all day. His spirits began to droop, and his footsteps lagged, and he almost wished himself back again. He doubted the wisdom of leaving so suddenly, and rejecting unceremoniously the farmer's home which had been offered to him—for he concluded if he had gone to farmer Jones' he would never have been so hungry as he was just then.

Quite despondent, he slowly trudged along. Hearing voices, he stopped and looked around, and saw a few workmen under a tree eating their mid-day meal. He stood watching them rather wistfully, as each mouthful disappeared. Finally, unable to silently endure this state of things any longer, he asked for a piece of bread. Each of the three workmen contributed to appease his hunger, two a piece of bread and meat, and one a piece of pie.

Thanking them, he hurried on to find a secluded spot where he could eat undisturbed and unobserved.

A few steps brought him before a low stone wall which had partially given way from the ravages of time and weather, so that it was with little difficulty that he stepped over it.

It seemed delightfully cool and shady here, for Paul was very warm, and Oh! so tired. He sat beside the wall and ate his lunch with great relish, regretting he had not as much more, for he gave a good share of the bread to the rabbit.

After he had finished he concluded to sit there a little while and rest before resuming his journey to the city. For the first time he seemed to realize the step he had taken; he was dispirited, and yet he felt he could not retrace his journey—he knew that he had gone too far for that; and a feeling of utter desolation crept over him as his present situation dawned upon him in all its dreariness, for he began now to realize how very far from home he had wandered, and perhaps he never would see it again. In his entire loneliness he cried out "Oh! mother, mother! why were you taken from me!" And throwing himself full length upon the ground, he suffered his combined grief to take possession of him and sobbed as though his heart would break. Presently this outburst subsided and he gradually grew calmer, as he began to think of what must be done next; but before he had decided, sleep, nature's "sweet restorer," closed his eyes into forgetfulness of his present sorrows.

Alone, and far from home, he lay soundly sleeping on Dame Nature's couch, while the green trees above him whispered a soft and soothing lullaby and a gentle breeze cooled his parched lips and aching head.

How long he slept he never knew, but it must have been some hours; for when he awoke, which was by the barking of a dog, the setting sun was just shedding his parting glory over the scene which met Paul's view. To his surprise he was not alone; and he almost doubted the evidence of his own senses, for before him stood a beautiful boy, nearly his own age, dressed in a dark green velvet, while upon his head a cap of the same rich material scarcely concealed a wealth of golden hair. The boy stood there with his hands in his pockets, earnestly gazing down upon Paul, while his little white dog went sniffing, and barking around the cage containing Paul's pet rabbit. In the path beside the stranger was a wheelbarrow, seated upon the side of which was a little girl who so much resembled the boy that Paul took them to be brother and sister. Paul took all this in at a glance; then springing to his feet, asked how much further it was to L——.

"More than two miles from here," answered the boy.

"Do you live there?" asked the little girl.

Paul mournfully shook his head.

"What are you going there for, then?" asked the boy.

"I have no other place to go, and—" Paul's lip quivered; brought face to face with such a question somewhat staggered him, for he had no ready nor reasonable answer to make.

The little girl, quick to notice some trouble in the heart of the stranger before her, kindly took his hand and said: "Had you not better tell us who you are, where you came from, and what you are going to do? Perhaps we could help you."

Paul, rather glad of the opportunity to talk to some one whose sympathy he felt was already assured, lost no time in relieving his mind of his burden. Upon concluding he said; "Now you know all about me, won't you tell me who you are, and where you live?"

"My name is Harry Russell."

"And mine is Edith Russell."

"My name is Minnie," piped a tiny voice in a very high treble, which came from almost a baby who had hitherto been only "a looker-on in Venice."

"[illegible]," said Harry, [illegible] to the house and rest while we get something for you to eat?"

Paul looked at the lengthening shadows. "I must move on, if I want to arrive at L—— before dark."

"But where are you going when you get there, if you have no friends?" questioned Harry, curiously.

Paul had a very vague idea that all that was needful was to arrive in a city, when he would have food, shelter and clothes provided in some mysterious way. Exactly how, he knew not, but he rather expected he would be obliged to work for it. This he was willing to do; he had been brought up to work; but he supposed the work would also be provided.

"Have you money?" queried Edith, who was somewhat of a practical turn of mind.

"A little—not much."

"How would you like to stay here all night, and start for L—— in the morning?" asked Edith, who was hospitable as well as practical.

"Perhaps your mother would not like it," suggested Paul, who had never acted independently of his mother's wishes as long as she lived.

"Oh! she won't care," Harry. "Father might but he is away."

So Paul's objection being easily overcome, he most willingly accompanied his now found friends up to the house.

Paul had never before seen anything so large and grand-looking, such lofty halls, and immense rooms. He looked in amazement on his surroundings; they were entirely beyond his wildest imaginings of luxury and elegance.

Polished armor and stags antlers greeted his eyes upon entering the wide hall; then such beautiful pictures and statuary met his view on all sides, as he trod upon rich carpet, so thick that his feet sank deep in the piling. He was ushered into a long low room with a beautiful oriel window at the end, seated by which, on a crimson plush divan, was a sweet-faced little lady, clad right royally, Paul thought, as he surveyed the mass of silks and delicate lace upon her frail form. She looked up from her embroidery as they entered the room, and smiled.

"Whom have you here?" she asked, in a soft, sweet voice, looking earnestly at Paul, who, being rather dazed, stood the searching glance remarkably well.

An explanation soon followed, upon the conclusion of which Edith received her mother's commendation for what she had done.

"Now, children, run and dress; dinner will be ready in a few minutes."

"Dinner!" exclaimed Paul, in whose mind dinner and high-noon were indissolubly associated.

"Yes, and you must be very hungry by this time, are you not?" asked Mrs. Russell.

"Oh! yes, ma'am," eagerly assented Paul, and he gave himself up to the delusion that he had fallen into a very strange place indeed, where people ate their dinners at night.

When Paul awoke the next morning, he could not for a long while remember where he was, nor how he got there—in fact, doubted the evidence of his senses, and thought he must be dreaming, but dreaming under very favorable circumstances. Presently, however, he was wide awake and cognizant of his situation, arose, dressed, and descended to the room he had been ushered into the previous evening.

Paul found his friends there engaged in an earnest conversation, which suddenly ceased as he entered the room.

After the usual greetings of the morning, Mrs. Russell, pointing to an empty chair beside her own for Paul to be seated, said:

"Harry and Edith have been asking me to let you stay here to-day. Would you like to remain with them another day?"

Paul, only too glad of such an opportunity, willingly assented. The following day, however, rained, and so it came about quite naturally that Paul remained nearly a week among his new-found friends. During this interval, Mrs. Russell becoming interested in the boy, secured him a situation with one of her friends who carried on a large business in L——.

The day at last arrived on which Paul was to leave, and mutual promises to see each other often, presented sorrowful countenances for they had all become attached to each other.

Harry and Edith accompanied Paul to the gate where they were to await the carriage, for Mrs. Russell was going to drive Paul to L—— herself.

At the final moment of parting, Edith thrust a little purse of her own knitting into Paul's hand, and bade him keep it for her sake. Paul afterwards discovered a gold dollar in it, and believing it to have been by accident, never dreamed of spending it, but determined to return it.

Paul found his new duties of an entirely different character from any he had ever been accustomed to, but being both active and observant, soon won his way to his employer's confidence.

In the course of time Paul rendered himself quite valuable, and being thoroughly reliable, by degrees had little offices of trust imposed upon him, until finally, after ten years of active life, he found himself the trusted confidential clerk of the establishment.

During all this time Paul never lost sight of the friends to whom he was indebted for his success in life. He frequently visited them, and the acquaintance so accidentally made had ripened into life-long friendship.

One morning, about this time, Paul was summoned to the [illegible] of his employer, who, [illegible]

Vienna. Coming [illegible] at a time when it is impossible for either of us to leave is exceedingly awkward, and may result in disastrous and heavy losses. I have sent, therefore, for you to ask you to take my place—to go there and take charge of the office until recalled. I feel satisfied you can carry out my instructions to the letter, and should you succeed in averting the impending difficulties and the consequent loss involved, you will be fully repaid for your efforts. It will be necessary to go at once. A steamer sails from New York to-morrow, and this business will, in all probability, require your personal supervision for at least two years, possibly longer. Are you equal to the emergency? Can you, will you go?"

How could Paul refuse such a position of trust as was offered to him? It was simply impossible to do otherwise than accept this proffered honor.

"I am both willing and ready, sir, to do as you request," promptly responded Paul, grasping Mr. Reade's hand fervently.

"Thank you, Paul. You are not only doing me a personal favor but laying the foundation of your own independent fortune. Such ready acquiescence merits my deepest regard, and richly deserves to be financially rewarded."

Then followed many hours of earnest conversation while Paul received his instructions. It was late that night before Paul left the office, and he was to be off early the following morning; much as he wished to see his friends to bid them good-by, he was obliged to content himself with a written farewell. The rest of the night was occupied with making his preparations for departure. He could not fail to recall just such another occasion many years ago, but under far different auspices. He thought over every little circumstance connected with his first venture far from home, and taking out a little knitted purse, looked long and lovingly at it. With a sigh he placed it carefully away, first, however, removing the little gold piece to his vest pocket. When, years ago he discovered it had been placed there intentionally by Edith for his use, he determined to keep it, if possible, as a souvenir of that turning point of his existence. And so through all these years he had carefully preserved it—and was now taking it with him to that new, strange country, the only pledge of that unspoken love between Edith and himself.

* * * * *

Three, four, five years had come and gone before Paul received his summons to return. In the meantime Mr. Reade's partner had died, and Paul had been offered and accepted the partnership with Mr. Reade. Under Paul's administration the business had increased profitably; and now Mr. Reade wishing to retire from active life desired Paul to return and take charge of the office. So it was under these favorable circumstances that Paul found himself once more in his native land.

Paul's first visit was to his old home, there to visit his mother's grave. He found everthing much changed, and thought he would like to go over again in the same way his first journey from home.

Accordingly he took the early stage, and smiled when at the depot he purchased a ticket for Cedar Grove, he thought of his discomfiture the last time he stood before that same ticket agent, who, though now quite gray Paul recognized at once. At Cedar Grove Paul alighted, and commenced to walk amid many and varied sensations.

Toward noon he knew that he must be near that old fashioned house that had sheltered him when a boy, and his heart beat tumultuously at the thought of meeting them once more.

His footsteps involuntarily quickened as he approached, till finally he was within the very grounds. He looked around for some familiar face or object but it seemed so changed—or was the change within himself?

A ring at the door brought a stranger who told him the Russels had not lived there for three years.

"Do you know where they are at present living?"

"No; but somewhere, I believe, in L——. You see," continued she, "Mr. Russel failed, and was obliged to sell this place and everything connected with it—the horses, carriages, and even all their silver and diamonds. Soon afterwards Mr. Russel was killed in some railway accident, and these two shocks, people said, just killed Mrs. Russell, who not long survived her husband."

"And what became of their children?" inquired Paul with a sinking heart.

"Oh, they moved to L——, and being young, I guess they can get along. Harry ought to be able to take care of his sister, although I have heard that Miss Edith gives music lessons."

"Thank you," said Paul as he turned and walked away. Everything was changed now to Paul. The walk had lost all pleasure to him now, and seeing an empty hack going by slowly he hailed it, and was driven to L——.

Here his search began for Harry and Edith. He tried various means, but a city is a large place to find anyone without some clue. Determined not to give up until he found them, he persevered, and finally in a few months his efforts were rewarded.

He found Edith but little changed in appearance, and cheerful through all her misfortunes. Harry was at best but earning a moderate income and at times despondent.

One day Paul offered the Vienna position to Harry, the one he had vacated the year previous.

[illegible]

[illegible], old boy, and I am sure so [illegible] I know none into whose keeping [illegible] would so gladly consign her."

"[illegible] happy you feel so. And now [illegible] that objection is removed, how about the Vienna Mission?"

"I am only too glad to accept it," replied Harry feelingly.

So it was arranged that at the expiration of three months, Harry was to sail for Vienna. In the meanwhile he gave up his position and entered Paul's office to acquaint himself with the business.

Three months afterwards there was a quiet wedding at the little church where Edith had been organist for two years. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony and after the usual congratulations of friends, these three (or rather four, for little Minnie had now become a young lady), stepped into the carriage, and Paul gave the order to the coachman—the one word "home."

"I declare, Paul," exclaimed Harry, "I am very anxious to see this house of yours that you have been so mysterious about."

"Well your curiosity will be gratified soon now;" and Paul leaned back in the carriage and laughed softly to himself.

Presently they left the city and drove out past familiar landmarks in the pure country air. A slight shadow passed over both Edith's face and Harry's as they drove near to the old home they loved so well.

Nearer and nearer until it was right before them; then the carriage gave a sudden turn, and they drove into the very grounds, and dashed up before the wide old entrance hall. Inquiring eyes were directed to Paul, who was enjoying the anticipated surprise he was about to give.

Harry, speechless, grasped Paul's hand and Edith flung her arms around his neck and sobbed aloud. Paul looked worried; he had grave doubts of the wisdom of his little plan.

"[illegible] my darling at your future home—does it please you?"

Edith looked up to Paul's face, smiling gratefully through her tears, and Paul, clasping her once more in his arms, whispered softly for the first time, "my wife."

Here we will leave them—here where, in his first adventure of life, Paul had found friends, here would he spend the remainder of his life, where he found shelter when as a boy he had wandered far from home.
